Preface.

WITH the completion of the present Volume, we enter on our FIFTIETH year of publication, and we take this opportunity of thanking all the numerous Contributors for their kindly help and assistance. During this lengthy period we venture to think that this Journal has been the medium of publishing some very valuable Genealogical and Heraldic material. Much, however, remains to be done, and we hope to continue to publish in the future equally valuable matter.

The New Volume commencing in 1916, in addition to many complete pedigrees, will comprise transcripts of additional genealogies from the Heralds' Visitations not yet published, Grants of Arms, genealogical extracts from the sixteenth-century Wills in the Consistory Court at Canterbury, and much other miscellaneous genealogical material similar to what has hitherto been published.

We beg, while thanking our Subscribers for their past support, to appeal not only for the continuance of that help in the future, but also to make known to others interested in this fascinating study, that more Subscribers are needed to carry on the work during these difficult times.

Phillipps of Droitwich, co. Worcester.*

Arms of John Phillipps of Hambury, co. Worcester.—Erminois, a lion rampant sable, ducally gorged and chained or, between two crosses-crosslet fitchée in chief, and an escallop in base gules. Crest.—On a garb, lying fesswys or, a lion rampant sable, ducally gorged and chained of the first, holding between the fore-paws a cross-crosslet gold. The arms and crest were granted on the 16 February 1825 to the said John Phillips by Sir George Naylor, Garter, and Ralph Bigland, Clarenceux. He had previously borne the arms and crest of Phillipps of Picton Castle, co. Pembroke, "thinking it probable," as the grant recites, "that his ancestors derived their descent from that family" (Prattinton MSS.).

NOTE.—The father of Thomas Phillipps, Surgeon, of Droitwich (who died October 1722), is supposed to have been a cadet of the family of Phillipps of Picton Castle, co. Pembroke. He is said to have left Picton to join the Royalist army, and to have fought at the battle of Worcester in 1651, afterwards settling at Droitwich, much impoverished. As an evidence of this it may be stated that the will of the said Thomas Phillipps, which was proved at Worcester 10 November 1722, is sealed with a seal bearing the arms of Phillipps of Picton Castle, namely, A lion rampant, ducally gorged, with a chain reflexed over the back, bearings which have been used continually by the family ever since.

Thomas Phillipps of Droitwich, co. Worcester, born in 1656; Surgeon; Churchwarden of St. Andrew's, Droitwich, 1707 and 1708; Burgess of Droitwich 1713; buried at St. Augustine's, Dodderhill, Droitwich, 9 October 1722. The Family of Boothby.*

The surname of this family occurs at a very early date, as will be seen from the following instances cited as evidence of this statement :—

1113. Sir Theodric de Botheby, Knt., who is said to have erected the present Norman manor-house of Boothby Pagnell, co. Lincoln, was present with his wife Lezelina 7 March 1113 at the foundation of the New Church, Croyland Abbey (Pet Blessensis Continat.—Ingulphus Hist. of Croyland, p. 113).

1324. Inq. p.m. Botheby, Robert and Margery de (York, 18 Richard II.).

1348. Inq. p.m. Botheby, Nicholas de (York, 23 Edward III.).

1380. Inq. p.m. Alicia de Botheby (Lincoln, 4 Richard II.).

1386. Inq. p.m. Thomas de Botheby (Lincoln, 9 Richard II.).

1371. "John Botheby, Clerk, made King's Chancellor in Ireland," 44 Edward III. (Book of Houth). Vide Carew MS., B.M. 2078[a], p. 336.

1390, May 7, was sworn at York the will of John de Botheby, Chancellor of Ireland.

3 Edward II. A Sir Theobald de Botheby, Lord of Melton and Botheby, was one of the chief Commanders of Pontefract Castle. (Nichol, vol. iv., 177.)

* * * * *

1382. From the Duchy Rentals, Crown Rentals, Roll 605, we find that another Thomas Botheby held land at Marchington, co. Stafford. "Thomas Botheby, tenant of 1 acre lately held by Rafe Stayncross." "Thomas Botheby, tenant of 1½ acre of land held by Walter Daycre."

1400. Thomas Botheby, King's Receiver, Tutbury Castle (Cal. Pat. Rolls, 1 Henry IV., pt. 5, p. 184).

1415. Thomas Botheby, auditor within the honor of Tutbury (Tutbury Cowcher Book, 2 Henry V., p. 331).

1423. Thomas Bothebye held land at Marchington, co. Stafford (vide Duchy of Lancaster, Cowcher Book, pp. 121, 144, 147, 153, 156).

1558. Villa de Marchington. Thomas Bothebye holds by copyhold pasture called Hobholme situate between the King's Highway on the one part East, Bustrach and Cardentach and Lownfields on the N. part (Duchy Rentals, 1 Elizabeth, p. 1).

This Thomas Bothebye is undoubtedly the Thomas Bothebye whose burial is recorded at Marchington 1583, "Thomas Bothebye (senior) sepultus fuit," and whose will was proved at Lichfield November 1584. This Thomas is likewise the direct ancestor of the late Sir Brooke Boothby, 11th Bart., who died 27 January 1913.

Subjoined are abstracts from the will of the above Thomas Botheby, and of those of his two sons—Robert Botheby of Uttoxeter (probate 1587), William Botheby of London (probate 1597)—also of Dame Judith Corbett, one time wife to William Botheby of London.

The will of Thomas Botheby of Friday Hill, Chingford, the 4th son of Thomas Botheby of Marchington, presently, with the pedigree of that branch of the family.

Also is subjoined the inscription from the tablet in Marchington Church concerning the Boothby bequests (vide "11th Report Charity Commissioners," 1824, p. 565).

The accompanying pedigree chart is drawn from these five wills, dating from the time of the Thomas Bothebye of Marchington, who died 1583, to his grandson Sir Henry Boothby, 1st Bart., of Clattercut, who died and was buried at Boddington 1648; and from him (Thomas) sprang four distinct branches of Boothbys—

(1) The Boothbys of Tooley Park by Peckleton.
(2) The Boothbys of Broadlow Ash and Ashbourne, from which the baronetcy branch descends.
(3) The Boothbys of Potters Marston, co. Leicester.
(4) The Boothbys of Friday Hill, Chingford.

Of these four branches presently.

FROM A TABLET IN MARCHINGTON CHURCH, CO. STAFFORD.

On these tablets are the names of divers benefactors to the poor of Marchington and Marchington Woodlands, whose charities are here recorded with the intent of preserving the same, and to excite others to the like works of Piety with other Charities. Henry Botheby, William Botheby, and Thomas Botheby, citizens of London, gave to the poor of Marchington and Marchington Woodlands for ever the sum of £153, with which an estate called the "Twenty acres," containing 24 acres 2 roods and 9 perches, situate in Marchington Woodlands, was purchased on the 10th of February 1613 for the benefit of the said poor. The said Henry Botheby contributed £30, William Botheby £70, and Thomas Botheby £53.

Vide the "11th Report of the Charity Commissioners," 1824, p. 565.

PEDIGREES OF

Ashe of Batcombe and Bond of Lutton.*

The following two pedigrees are taken from Harl. MS. 1538, a large folio volume, lettered "Arms and pedigrees of Devon families." It appears to be a copy for the most part of the 1620 Visitation of Devon, but also contains a visitation of Worcestershire, and a list of persons disclaimed in Wiltshire, Somersetshire, and Dorsetshire. At the end of the volume, commencing at page 304, the pedigrees written and the arms tricked by a different hand are the following pedigrees:—

Fownes, a South Devon family that came from Worcestershire; Bond and Ashe, both given below; Moulton of Plympton, South Devon; a large pedigree and shield of many quarterings of Lower of St. Wynnow in Cornwall; Spurway of Devon; and a shield of the arms of Radford, for Leonard Radford of St. Leonards (in Exeter).

The family of Ashe, anciently Esse, was of long standing and widely spread in Devonshire and Somerset, and have borne Argent, two chevronels sable. The usual crest of Ashe is a cockatrice closed. This coat and crest was confirmed by W. Camden, Clarenceux, in 1613, but different branches vary the colour.

* Communicated by A. J. JEWERS, Esq.

The family of Bond of Dorset is a younger branch of Bond of Earth in St. Stephen's-by-Saltash in Cornwall, and their pedigree appears in the Heralds' Visitation of that county, and the Dorsetshire line entered their pedigree in their own county; but the accompanying pedigree has additions that do not appear in the printed copies of the Visitations. The first two generations and the wife of the first William are additional, and there are some minor variations.

ASH.

Harl. MS. 1538, f. 305.

The above pedigree appears in the "Visitation of London, 1634" (Harl. Dethick, Garter." It omits the wife of the first John, as also his two daughters, and calls him "of Westcombe," and makes him son of . . . . Ash of Devon. It also omits the wife of John of Freshford, makes the wife of Edward a dau. of Christopher Woodward, and gives him two children, "Edward eldest son" and Katharine. The sisters of Edward are also omitted.

* In Berry's "Hampshire Pedigrees," quoting the Visitation of 1634, is a pedigree of Beconsaw (there in error Beronsaw), which shews Sir White Beconsaw to have been son and heir of William Beconsaw of Moyles Court in Ellingham, Hants, by Alice, dau. and heir of William White of Moyles Court. His wife's father is called "of Blakenston," and it gives Sir White two daughters, Alice and Elizabeth.

† These two sons appear to have been born after the date of the Visitation.

Herries Notes.*

Herries of Crochmoir or Croghmore.

The first mention of a Herries in connection with Crochmoir that the present writer has found is in a precept of sasine of 22 March 1561-2, wherein Archibald Herries of Maidenpaup (see "Misc. Gen. et Her.," Fourth Series, IV., 219) directs John "Heres in Croichmoir" and others to give sasine of certain lands to Sir John Maxwell and Agnes Herries his wife (Minutes of Evidence, "Herries Peerage Case," p. 151, No. 86). John "Herres in Crochmoir" was a witness, 3 December 1577, to the will of William "Herres in Bogre," which was confirmed at Edinburgh 28 May 1580 (see "Misc. Gen. et Her.," Fourth Series, V., 362). This John Herries probably had a son of the same name, for a John "Herreis," or "Hereis," always described as "junior, in Crochmoir," appears from 1584 to 1594 generally either as the bailie who gave sasine of various lands to William, Lord Herries, or as a witness at such sasines (Minutes, "Herries Peerage Case," pp. 70, 427, 428, 433, 436, Nos. 36, 236, 237, 241, 243). In February 1590-91 "Johnne Hereis of Crochmoir" gave surety that Katherine Kirks in Dumfries would not harm Archibald McBrair of the same town ("P.C. Reg. Scot.," iv., 575). Robert, brother to John "Hereis in Trochmoir" (qu. Crochmoir), was a witness, 3 April 1595, to the will (confirmed at Edinburgh 27 May 1595) of Edward "Hereis in Little Milntoun" (see "Misc. Gen. et Her.," Fourth Series, V., 84). "Joh. Hereis in Crochmoir" and "Harbert Herreis in Aickiebus"† were witnesses at Terregles, 29 October 1596, to a charter of William, Lord Herries (confirmed by the Crown 12 January 1609, see "Reg. Mag. Sig." under the latter date). The inventory attached to her will (confirmed at Edinburgh 19 December 1598, see Minutes, "Herries Peerage Case," p. 61, No. 31) shews that Agnes, Lady Herries of Terregles, at the time of her death, 14 March 1593-4, owed money to "Johnne hereis in trethmoir" (qu. Crochmoir). "Johnne Hereis of Crochmoir" was surety, 27 May 1598, that Cuthbert Greir of Dalscairth would not harm Daniel Hair, Messenger ("P.C. Reg.," v., 690), and "Johne Hereis of Croichmoir" gave surety, 19 February 1602, that Lord Herries would not reset or intercommune with Sir Robert Gordon of Glen and his accomplices (ibid., vi., 716).

In the inventory attached to the testament of Robert Herries, merchant burgess of Edinburgh (see "Misc. Gen. et Her.," Fourth Series, IV., 220), confirmed at Edinburgh 3 July 1604, Robert "Herreis of Crochmoir" is mentioned as one of his debtors; and Patrick "Murdoche of Camloddane" gave surety, 21 January 1605, that "Johne Murdoche in Holme, and Grissell Smyth, his spouse," would not harm "Robert Herreis of Crochmoir, Walter Herreis of Knokshynnoch" (see "Misc. Gen. et Her.," Fourth Series, V., 361), and others ("P.C. Reg.," vii., 584; see, too, ibid., pp. 587, 589).

Robert Herries was followed by another John. Thomas Adniston, merchant burgess of Edinburgh, complained to the Privy Council, 17 March 1613, that John, Lord Herries, as principal, and "Johnne Hereis of Crochmoir, Robert Hereis of Lawstoun" (see "Misc. Gen. et Her.," Fourth Series, V., 363), and "Johnne Hereis in Glesteris,"‡ as his sureties, remained unrelaxed from a horning of the previous 10th September for not paying the pursuer 5433 merks; the defenders not † "Harbert Herreis of Aikiebus" was surety, 30 May 1604, for Cuthbert Brown, Burgess of Dumfries ("P.C. Reg.," vii., 554). Robert [sic] "Hereis of Aikibus" married Margaret Stuart (or Stewart) 23 February 1603 (Edinburgh Parish Register of Marriages, 1595—1700, Scottish Record Soc.).

‡ Alexander "Herreis of Glaisters" was a witness at Terregles, 7 August 1682, to the will of Robert, 4th Earl of Nithsdale (Sir Wm. Fraser, "Book of Carlaverock," i., 405).

appearing, the Captain of the Guard was ordered to apprehend them, seize their houses, and inventory their goods for the King's use ("P.C. Reg.," x., 18). Similar orders were given against "Johnne Hereis of Croichmoir" as a surety for Lord Herries 6 March and 10 September 1617 (ibid., xi., 57, 230).

This last John Herries was presumably the husband of Elizabeth Herries, the eldest daughter of Richard Herries of Mabie (see Additions to Pedigree of Herries of Mabie, "Misc. Gen. et Her.," Fourth Series, V., 253, and see, too, ibid., 114), their marriage contract being dated 29 April 1611. She was no doubt the "Elspitt Hereis, spous to John Hereis of Lochmoir" [sic], denounced by the Privy Council as a papist in 1628 ("P.C. Reg.," Second Series, ii., 535), and the scandal given to good Protestants at her funeral in 1647 will be mentioned presently. This John and Elizabeth Herries had certainly one son John, and the former was perhaps the brother of Barbara, wife of John Herries, a burgess of Dumfries, for whose "tocher" or marriage portion he was responsible. The testament of this "Barbara Herreis, spous to John Herreis, maltman, burges in Drumfreis . . . . quha deceist in the moneth of December last bypast 1625 yeiris," was confirmed at Dumfries 31 January 1626. By the will dated at Dumfries 13 December 1625, when she was "seik in bodie bot rype in memorie," she constituted "Marie Herreis," her lawful daughter, as sole executrix, and nominated her "spous" John Herries to be tutor testamentar to the said "Mairie thair dochter" during her minority. She left legacies to "Agnes and Nicolas Herreissis, hir laufull sisteris." The inventory attached to the will shews that money was due to the deceased from John "Herreis of Crochmoir," as principal, and John "Herreis of Mabie" (see "Misc. Gen. et Her.," Fourth Series, V., 115), and "Gilbert Griersone of Chappell" as his sureties, being part of the tocher promised by the said John Herries of Crochmoir, conform to the "contract of mariage mad thairanent." The inventory also mentions "Robert Herreis in Lytillmylneton" and "Edward Memorane in Lochrutongait" and "Jonet Herreis" his spouse among the deceased's debtors.

"John Herreis of Crochmoare" is mentioned as a debtor in the inventory (confirmed at Dumfries 19 January 1628) of the goods, etc., of Roger and "Cristiane Hereis, spouseis in Laggan"* in the parish of Colvend, stewartry of Kirkcudbright, who had died in the months of February and November 1627. The inventory was given up by "Harbert Herreis, sone naturall to the said defunct," and by "Richard Herreis, lawfull son to Edward Herreis in Culdraine, oy [grandson] lykwyis to the said defunct," the executors dative, and Edward "Herreis of Culdraine" was cautioner.

Parliament considered, 30 October 1641, a complaint of "Jhone Herreis of Creichmoir" against John, Lord Herries, for "sundrie oppressiounes." The defender being "summondit be ane Messinger of Armis and, often callit publiklie at the dorris of the hous of parliament was absent and compeired not, and the pursewar compeirand personallie produced his supplicatione execute and subscryvit be ane messinger of armes." The matter was remitted to the "committee for the Billis" ("Acta Parl. Scot.," v., 444, or v., 690, in edition of 1870). "Johne and Robert herreiss in crookemore" were together with "Johne heireis of Mabie" and others of the name ordered by Parliament to be arrested in 1644 for non-

* "Laggane" and Bordland de "Laggane alias Bordland de Cowen" (i.e., Colvend) had been granted by a Crown charter of 20 January 1592-3 (see "Reg. Mag. Sig." under date) to Robert Herries of Mabie, and had been leased from the Crown by the Mabie family at a still earlier date (see the pedigree of that family, "Misc. Gen. et Her.," Fourth Series, V., 79, 83, 84); possibly, therefore, Roger Herries of 1627 was a cadet of that family. The inventory, etc. (confirmed at Dumfries 14 November 1716), of Jean Herries, spouse to Wm. McJore in Larg, which Jean died in May 1703, mentions a bond of 9 December 1676, granted by Charles Herries, eldest lawful son to umquhile John Herries of Laggan, to the defunct his youngest sister. "Johne Herries of Logan" [sic] was fined "three hundth sextie pd." by an act of parliament of 1662 dealing with various people excepted out of an act of indemnity passed after the Restoration ("Acta Parl. Scot.," vii., 428).

appearance when cited before the Committee of Estates for the South, and the lieges were warned against furnishing them with "meit, Drinke, house, herberie, or any other comfortable thing" (ibid., vi. [edition of 1870], pt. i., 136).

Mr. George Gladstanes* reported to the Presbytery of Dumfries in 1647 that John Herries of Croghmore had begun his obedience, or in other words had submitted to terms imposed upon him, for the purpose of being relieved from a sentence of excommunication. At the same time it was announced that his mother Elspet Herries (no doubt the daughter of Richard Herries of Mabie mentioned above), who had been excommunicated for recusancy, had recently died, and had been accompanied to her burial by divers gentlemen and others. For the purging of such a scandal the Presbytery ordered that such as had attended this funeral should be sought for and cited to appear before it. Accordingly on the 18th May 1647 John Herries of Croghmore appeared, and was sentenced by the Presbytery to acknowledge his fault before the congregation at Lochrutton in the Stewartry of Kirkcudbright (Wm. M'Dowall's "Hist. of Dumfries," 2nd ed., 370).

After this last date the writer has discovered nothing more concerning this family.

Herries in Castlefairn.

The testament testamenter and inventory of goods of "umquhill Robert Herreis in Castle Fairné . . . . quha deceist in the moneth of . . . . 1^{m} vi^{c} . . . . yeirs" was confirmed in the Commissariot of Dumfries 8 December 1658. The will is dated at Castle Fairn the 27th February 1658, when the testator was "sick in body but of ane perfyte memory." He "committs his soul to God by quhom he hopes to be saved by the merites of Jesus Chryst, and ordeins his body to be buried within the churchyeard of Glencairne."† He left twenty pounds Scots to the poor of the parish of Glencairn, and to "Johne Greir, his Sister sone," he bequeathed twenty "hoges to be delyvered to him at Beltane."‡ He left a similar legacy to his "good brother William Whytheid," and to his "eldest sone" John Herries he left "tua hundreth markes and the best staig§ more nor any of the other thrie off the first end of the twa pairt." He nominated "Johne, Robert, William, and James Herreissis and Marie Greirsone, his spous," to be his only executors. The said Marie was to have liberty to deal with the goods and geir for the benefit of the "four bairnes till they be of aige," but only with the special advice and consent of "M^{r} William Fergusone of Caitloche, Robert Greir of Milnemark, and Alexander Gibson of Auchincheane, or most part of them," and only during the "tyme of her widowheid." To his said spouse "Marie Griersone" he disponed the "just thrid of his haill frie geir," etc., together with the best horse or "meir and four of the best of the kyne or their followeris."

It was probably the second of the four sons mentioned in this will of 1658 who gave evidence in a trial of several persons of Galloway for treason in December 1682. These people were accused of being concerned in the religious disturbances which took place after the murder of Archbishop Sharp, and "Robert Herries in Castlefairne, aged threttie years, maried, purged and sworne," deponed that "he sawe William Griersone of Lochquhurr, ryding with the rebells in armes, at the Milntoun of Orr; and that they were, ane hundredth horse or thereby" (T. B. Howell's "State Trials," xi., 940). William Grierson was found guilty and sentenced to forfeiture of his possessions, and to be executed as soon as he had been apprehended, for he and several others who were condemned with him were tried in their absence, and according to Wodrow they were never caught and executed (ibid., 910). Steps, however, were taken towards carrying out that part of the sentence which related to forfeiture, for "Robert Herries of Castellffairne" was one of the jury at an inquest, held at Dumfries 13 June 1684, to ascertain what possessions James Gibson of Inglistoun and ". . . . Grierson de Loquhirr" had held during the five years preceding their forfeiture ("Inquisitiones de possessione quinquennali," No. 8).

Notes on Richard Duke the Poet.

In the Chancery Proceedings (Hamilton, 486) there is a Bill of Complaint brought by the executors of the will of his father; they complain that they are hindered in carrying out the provisions of the will, especially in the sale of lands in Essex and London, because otherwise willing purchasers are deterred by hearing from Richard the son that his father never executed the will, nevertheless eventually the will was proved, and the son's discharge to his father's executors is printed in full in "Notes and Queries," Second Series, vol. ii., and in the Third Series, vol. xii., are printed extracts from the Sloane MSS. giving particulars both of the Macro family and the register of the births of the children of the said Richard and some of their deaths.

I cannot trace the Poet's grandfather; he is stated in Rose's biographical dictionary to have come from Devon, but I think not, for in the will above alluded to Richard Duke, sen., appoints "my loving friends and cosins Robert Chilcott, George Dashwood, and Thomas Goodwin executors. I desire and entreate my much honoured friends Sir Thomas Byde, Knt., my uncle Kellam White, etc., to be aiding and assisting unto my said executors." And in the additional charters 29,553 in the British Museum there is a transfer of a mortgage on the Manor of Ware in Herts between Thomas, Viscount Fanshaw of Dunmore, from Sir John Pelham, Knt., acting for Jane Sheffield of Kensington, to Ralph Skinner and Richard Duke in trust for Sir Thomas Byde of St. Leonard's for £10,421, dated 7 May 1668; seal and signature of Richard Duke. The arms on the seal are those of the East Anglian family of Duke, whose chief seat was in Suffolk. I think this identifies the Poet with that family.

In the State Papers, "1693, April 20, Mr. Duke the Poet is made Bishop of Man," but he does not appear to have been consecrated.

Notes and Queries.

JENKINS.

Can any reader give any genealogical information relating to a Philip Jenkins, a West Indian planter about the time of the liberation of the slaves, from which he suffered great loss? He is supposed to have married a lady of the Grosvenor family, from a painting on vellum of Jenkins impaling Grosvenor. He was the father of (I.) Robert Jenkins, Captain Royal Cornish Rangers, and married .... daughter of Richard Hole, Archdeacon of Exeter, and had (1) Robert, a Lieutenant R.N., died unmarried; (2) Alfred Jenkins, in His Majesty's Ordnance Department, Halifax, married Cordelia Cardew, daughter of John Williams Chilcott of Truro, Cornwall, and sister of Gilbert Chilcott of Truro, Solicitor; and two daughters, Laura, died unmarried at Bath in 1860, and Amelia, died unmarried. (II.) Edmund, Lieutenant R.N., died unmarried. (III.) Frederick, died unmarried at Poole, Dorset. (IV.) David Jenkins, Captain 2nd or Queen's Own Regiment, married, about 1818, Anne Charlotte, daughter of Commander Richard Jewers, R.N.; baptized at St. Thomas, Portsmouth, 4 September 1782, and relict of Dr. James Reid, son of Admiral James Reid; issue one son posthumous, died an infant. She died in 1836, her will proved 5 January 1837, leaving two sons only, the Rev. Edmund Augustus Jenkins, born 27 August 1818, Vicar of Kensington, Australia, living about 1870; and Charles Alexander Jenkins, born 31 May 1820, Paymaster R.N.; died at sea about 1855. (V.) Henry Jenkins, a Captain in the Merchant Service, died unmarried. (VI.) Edward Jenkins, a Lieutenant R.N., died unmarried.

GORE.

Also any genealogical particulars of Admiral Gore who died about 1870, aged nearly 90, father of Canon .... Gore, Vicar of Cholderton (?), Wilts. Could he have been the Ralph Gore [2nd son of Paul Gore, 3rd son of Sir Arthur Gore, first Earl of Arran], born 1786, Commander R.N., who married Frances, daughter of Alexander Hay, and had two sons according to Burke?

Reviews.

The Manual of Heraldry. Crown 8vo, in cloth, 152 pp. Edinburgh: John Grant. 1914.

This Work is nicely got up, and is edited by Francis J. Grant, Rothesay Herald, and is well illustrated by 350 Coats of Arms, etc. It is in eight chapters, and the last chapter gives the Royal Arms of England, the Royal Arms as officially used in Scotland, and the Arms of the King of Scotland. Chapter I. is devoted to the Origin of Coats of Arms, which appears as a science at the beginning of the thirteenth century, no evidence of arms being in existence at the period of the Crusades. The next authorities regarding the earliest armorials are preserved in the Heralds' College, the British Museum and other public libraries, and the earliest record is dated about 1240. To Sir David Lindsay we are indebted for the official Register of Scottish Arms, compiled about 1542, and still preserved in the Advocates' Library.

Chapter II. gives when Ireland was granted arms by Ulster, and the fees were £44 for a grant of arms, £59 where supporters were granted, and £16 for a confirmation of arms. The Lyon Office of Scotland and the Office of Arms in Ireland were under the Crown, and all fees drawn are paid over to the Treasury, while Heralds' College in London receives all the revenue which is the property of the Corporation, it being incorporated in 1413, when it received a Charter from King Edward III., and is presided over by the Earl Marshal of England, now hereditary in the family of Howard, Duke of Norfolk, under Letters Patent dated October 1672, and under whom is Garter the principal and two "provincial kings," Surrey being instituted in the reign of King Edward III., and Norroy, the most ancient, a herald before the reign of Edward II.

Chapter III. gives the dates of the various heralds, Lyon appearing in 1377, and ten years later he is designated as Lyon King of Heralds; Rothesay Herald, Officer of the Prince of Scotland, is first mentioned in 1401; Marchmont, the title derived from the ancient name of the Royal Castle of Roxburgh, in 1436; Snowdon, derived from a part of Stirling Castle, in 1448; Albany in 1451, named from the title of one of the king's sons, and in 1447 called Pursuivant; Ross, from the Royal Earldom, in 1447; and Islay, from the island of that name, in 1493. This Chapter gives all the Officers presided over by Ulster King of Arms from 1552, besides those of Garter and Lyon, and also of Bath, King of Arms in 1725; and from Chapter IV. to VII. are given the Shields, Tinctures etc., with representations of them, twenty in number, also the Lines used in parting the field, with all the Differences, thirty in number, besides a plate shewing the Scheme of Cadency or Differencing in Scotland, thirty in number; and in Chapter VI. are thirty Charges on Escutcheons. The Order of Precedency is given in Chapter VII., followed by a list of Heraldic Terms, with 255 illustrations, followed by the Royal Arms, as referred to above, as the last Chapter.

The work is arranged in a useful and concise form, making it easy of reference. It is neatly bound in cloth, and the price only 2*s*.

Dwelly's Parish Records. Vol. II. The First Portion of the Bishop's Transcripts at Wells. Edited by E. DWELLY, F.S.G., Author of "The Illustrated Gaelic Dictionary," etc. Herne Bay. 1914.

THIS is an excellent example of preserving the records of the Bishop's Transcripts at Wells beginning with the Parish Registers of Christenings, Marriages, and Burials of Hill Farrance in 1602, and ending with those of Yeovilton from 1599 to 1623, giving altogether returns from Parishes of Hills Farrance up to Yeovilton, numbering 132 returns from each of births, deaths and marriages, and forming a volume of upwards of 400 pp. These are copied from the originals by Mr. Arthur J. Jewers, and the whole volume is edited by Mr. E. Dwelly.

To all those interested in the Bishop's Transcripts of the Parish Registers of Wells, Somerset, with all their surroundings, the volume will prove of great interest. This is the Second Volume of the Wells Transcripts, which is nicely got up and bound in green cloth, and price is 15*s*. nett. The sole London Agent is Mr. A. H. Mayhew, 56 Charing Cross Road. We strongly recommend to all our genealogical friends their patronage to what is a most painstaking issue of a return of such a number of persons involved in so many parishes as are here given.

Revista de Historia y de Genealogia Española. Año II., Nos. 11 and 12; Año III., Nos. 1 and 2. Madrid: November and December 1913, and January and February 1914.

THE last two Parts, for November and December, have the full notices as usual of Spanish Genealogy and Biography, and Indices to the Volume and the list of subscribers, and a plate. The two Parts for January and February 1914 contain short Biographies and Reviews, and the usual Notices, besides, in the February Part, being illustrated with a Portrait of Cutierea de Cetina and several coats of arms, and an autograph of 1600.

The Family of Adams of Cavan.*

Some years ago a genealogical account of the above family appeared in these pages. It was written by my father the Rev. B. W. Adams, D.D., and edited and published after his death by Maxwell R. W. Peers Adams, another member of the family.

Since then I have come upon some further information relating to the early history of these Irish settlers, as well as to the family of Adam of Blair Adam in Scotland, from which they were said to have sprung, and this a good deal alters the conclusions which can be drawn regarding the supposed connection.

My father gives, as his authority for the early history of the family, Burke's "Landed Gentry" and other modern genealogical works.

I find that the first mention of the Adams of Northlands, co. Cavan, appears in Burke's "Landed Gentry," published in 1863 after my grandfather, the Very Rev. Samuel Adams, Dean of Cashel, obtained a confirmation, 6 September 1854, of the arms at present borne by the family, to the descendants of his grandfather Allen Adams, Esq.

The arms are Gules, a heart between three cross-crosslets fitchée or; Crest: on a mount vert a cross-crosslet fitchée or, charged with a bleeding heart gules; and Motto: "In cruce Salus."

The "confirmation" of arms is only permitted by the Ulster King of Arms, and when it is issued it is usual for some slight change to be made in the arms previously used.

Before the establishment of the right of the family to bear arms I find that the coats used by many of the branches differed from each other in small details, and on a tray which formerly belonged to the senior line the charges borne on the field are similar to those of the Adamsons of Grey Crook of the shire of Lothian. These arms have a crescent instead of a heart between the three cross-crosslets. This family of Adamson is stated—in Sir G. Mackenzie's "Scottish Pedigrees," with additions by J. Ferry (Harleian MSS. in the British Museum), supposed to have been written during the seventeenth century—to have become extinct.

I should think it most likely that these arms were the ones from which ours were first copied, and there being no crest or motto these may well have been added at the fancy of some engraver.

In Burke's first account of my family he says we are traditionally supposed to be descended from the family of Adam of Blairadam in Scotland through one Colonel James Adam, son of Charles Adam, who came over to Ireland and changed his name to Adams. The fact that the surname of this brave officer is variously given as Adams, Mcaddams, Mcadam, does not lend colour to the supposition. Neither is James Adam mentioned among the sons of Charles Adam in the printed pedigree of the Adam family.

This pedigree, first printed in Douglas' "Baronage of Scotland," 1798, and still in existence in the MS., traces the family of Adam of Maryborough, now of Blairadam, as being descended from one John Adam, who was killed at Flodden 1513.

This John Adam was grandfather to the Charles Adam who was supposed by Burke to be the father of Colonel James Adams, killed at Bunratty Castle in 1645 presumably in the prime of life. In those days of early marriages the great number of years over which three generations extended seems unusual.

According to Douglas the Adam family was said to be "seated at Fanno in the parish of Roscoble in Forfarshire" in 1549.

* Communicated by CONSTANCE L. STALLARD.

The estate cannot have been a large one, as it has proved difficult to trace it. A record of it has, however, been found. On 25 November 1637 there is a confirmation recorded in the records of the Commissariot of St. Andrew's of the testament of Issobell Kemp designed as spouse of Archibald Adam in Easter Fannow in the parish of Rescobie.

The word "in" instead of "of" generally means that the family were tenants rather than landowners, and at the present day there is a farm on the Reswallie estate called Fonah which might possibly be identified with Fanno by those interested in the matter. At any rate little is heard of the Adam family until the great architects made the name a household word, and it is most unlikely that it has any connection with so brilliant a commanding officer as Colonel James Adams, who was the son-in-law of one nobleman and the trusted friend of others.

The family of Adam of Blairadam was granted arms in 1815 in the person of the Right Hon. William Adam of Blairadam, Baron of Exchequer. The arms are Argent, a mullet azure pierced of the field between three crosses-crosslet fitchée gules. An almost similar coat is mentioned by Douglas in 1798 as used by this family.

These arms again closely resemble those of Adamson. Most likely, as was probable in our case, it was the nearest name to the patronymic of the family about to obtain arms, to whom arms had already been granted in Scotland.

Nisbet, in his "System of Heraldry," 1816, states that all the descendants of Duncan Adam took the cross-crosslets into their arms in memory of his having accompanied the party of Scottish gentlemen, led by Douglas, who took the Bruce's heart to the Holy Land. That he did so as a knight may be doubted, since Nisbet (vol. i., p. 129) gives the following extract :—

"In the Chatulary of Dunfermline and in the Earl of Haddington's Collections, Fol. 577, there is a writ of King Robert the Bruce in the 14th year of his reign declaring Adam the son of Adam and his four sons to be freeman, tituled Libertas Adami filie Adami coram justitiario nostro, in these words : 'Compertum & declaratum est quod Adamus, filius Adami, non est homo noster, ligius sen nativus quin pro voluntate sua, etc., propter quod præfatum Adamum & liberos suos Robertum, Johannem, Reginaldum & Duncannum liberos nostros fore declaramus & ipsos ab omni juge & onere servitutis quietos reddimus per præsentes in perpetuum. In cujus rei testimonium, etc., has literas nostras perpetuo duraturas, sibi fieri fecimus patentes apud Aberdeen 10th Septembeŕ regni nostri 14th' (1320 A.D.) These letters patent are the oldest documents I have met with for the surname of Adam or Adamson, and I take them to be the first of that surname with us."

I may add that I wrote to the Librarian of the Advocates' Library, Edinburgh, and was informed that the original MS. of the Dunfermline Chartulary preserved there made no reference to this deed, and the reference to "The Earl of Haddington's Collections, Fol. 577," also preserved in the library, relates to a short entry of two lines in one of the manuscripts testifying that the King had granted letters patent to the effect that Adam Adamsone was made "ane freeman," so that from what Nisbet quoted is uncertain.

These matters are, however, of small account when considering the family of Adams of Cavan, as there is no real evidence to shew whether Colonel James Adams was English, Scotch, or Welsh. According to my father's history he married the Hon. Catherine Magennis, daughter of Arthur, first Viscount Magennis of Iveagh, by his wife Lady Sarah O'Neill, daughter of Hugh, Earl of Tyrone.

The first documentary evidence I have found of him is in a correspondence of 1643 published in "A contemporary History of Affairs in Ireland from 1641 to 1652," edited by John T. Gilbert, published 1879. It is contained in a note by Colonel Chichester of corn taken after "the Cessation" 1643 by the rebel forces under Owen O'Neill from the garrisons of Ulster, vol. i., p. 555. The correspondence regarding this alleged violation is preserved in Trinity College, Dublin.

"Corne belonging to Capt: McAdam: of oates in stookes estimat: 60. Burnt oates: 20. Barley in stooke estimat[ed at] 20."

The year after we find him mentioned in a MS. preserved at Kilkenny Castle, and printed by Historical MSS. Commission. In their Fourteenth Report, appendix, part vii., under "Souldiers resident at Newry under the command of Lieutenant Colonell Edmund Mathew," is the following entry: "Mc Addams hath souldiers in number, 39." This is dated "garrison at Newry, 1644."

The next year he was chosen to be the neutral holder of Bunratty Castle, co. Clare, by the Earls of Thomond and Inchiquin, no doubt because his wife was first-cousin to the rebel leader Owen Roe O'Neill, while he was a "stout" officer of the English army. The following slightly differing accounts of the siege are interesting:—

From "History of The Irish Confederation and the war in Ireland," 1645-6, by Richard Billings. Edited by J. T. Gilbert. Published 1889. Vol. v., p. 14:—

"Thirdly, the Earl of Thomond, who before lived peaceably, without offending the country, in his castle of Bunratty, admitted into it at this very time a garrison of eight hundred foot and threescore horse, most of them reformed officers, and, sayling into England, left that place, which was plentifully provided of victuals, and so seated, as the guarrison might from thence make excursions into the rich country which for threescore miles long bordered upon the Shannon in the hands of the Parliament, under the command of [Captain McAdam] a stout officer, who began immediately to raise works to strengthen the castle, that, by reason of the marshes with which is was environed, might in a short time be upon the matter impregnably fortified."

Page 20. "Bunratty is a noble ancient structure, reputed strong when engines of battery were not so frequent, and before time and experience had brought the art of taking in places to perfection. On the south it hath the river of the Shannon, distant from it about a mile, of marish and meadow ground. On the east it is washed by the river [Ogarney] which, falling to the Shannon, at the end of a goodly plaine, ebbs and flows with it. To the north, at some distance from the castle, it is environed with an eminent ridge of earth, which bounds a goodly parke, save that it wanted the ornament of timber-trees; it was then stored with the largest deere in the kingdom. And to the west, the spacious plaine of which we have formerly spoken, was bounded with a broad deep trench, which Nature had made to be the receptacle of the waters which issued from the springs in the neighbouring banckes, and the marish grounds that surround it. The space between the castle and the browe of the bancke, which the garden took up, as being the most approachable, was well fortifyed with earthenworkes, and a mount raised wherein they planted four peeces of cannon. At some distance from this platforme stood a little castle, and behind that the church, on a rising ground, all within a deep trench, well flancked, into which they intended to have drawne water from the river, which we have said ran to the east of the castle; but that being a difficult worke was not yet brought to perfection.

"The Lord of Muskery, having by his presence appeased the manie discontents of the souldiers and officers of the Mounster list, and composed them to a body, being now furnished with some money, and his strength encreased by the access of the auxiliaryes of Leinster, advanced, to encampe in the parke of Bunratty, having taken a castle upon quarter, which stood at the enterance into the parke, wherein the enemy had left some musquetiers. Here the souldiers, for some dayes, were refreshed with plenty of venizon, and the wood was preserved from distruction, because the dry pales made the better fire, and were gathered with the more ease. Lieutenant-General Purcell, Major-General Stephenson, and Colonel Purcell, who commanded the horse, all of them bred in the warrs of Germany, were entrusted principally with the conduct of the action, and the armie was now drawne toward the browe of the banck, where the enemie, from behind the quickset hedges, made some resistance, but being forced back to their workes, the Irish became masters of all the ground without that broad deep trench, which we have described to have been on the west side of the castle; and sat down at such a distance, as the browe of the banck sheltered the campe from being annoyed out of the castle, or from the mount. The abundance of [blank] and underwood which was in the park furnished them with fagotts and basquets for their approaches, the descent of the hill being in all the parts of it so strong, as they could not cast up the earth to run a trench, until they got to the ground which lay even with the garden. The besieged, who were often supplied with men taken out of the ships, sallyed often; but, by reason of the nearness of the hill and that the approaches which the enemie had made with their fagotts and basquets, lay by ascents one behind another, and took up most of the front of the rising ground, their sallyes did no great harme to the beseigers, who from the constant fire they gave successively from the degrees of their workes, still repulsed them with some loss, not without leaving markes of their courage, and the desperate attempts they made by coming up to the lower basquets sometimes, and pulling up whole rancks of them. Some weeks were spent before the trenches could be carried to the level ground, where their sallyes were more smart, by reason the horse had in that place more roome to second their foot; but the beseiged having suffered loss by a piece of ordinance drawne into the lower degree of those workes the enemie raised of fagotts and basquets filled with earth, they made not thence after so frequent sallyes, and applyed themselves wholly to fortifie the place with new workes.

"Now, although much time was spent, yet the beseigers found that they had done little more to the carrying of the castle and the mastering of the enemies' workes then to have lodged themselves in the neighbourhood; for they not only had the sea open to them, but they were supplied with fresh meat and forrage for their horses from that large peice of pasture ground which lay between the castle and the river of the Shannon; and save some out-guards they kept at a damme, which was made upon the poole on the west side, to keep up the waters at an ebb, they were engaged on no other duty but the defence of that quarter; so as there was much time spent, and the progress was but slow against a strong guarrison releived by sea and no way in danger to be wearied with watching or labour, while they had so much ground free, and their duty was no greater.

"The Lord of Muskery, seeing the party with him ready to fall into great distress, called on the officers and let them know that unless some attempt were made to distract the beseiged from being wholly intent upon that quarter where they made their approaches, necessitie would force them to rise with dishonour, the clamours of the souldiers being already very great, and the end they aimed at being in all appearance so far remote; wherefore he gave order for an attempt to be made that night upon those guards the enemie kept at the dam. The place, if gained, would have easily been fortified and a passage made there by which a parte of the armie might be transmitted to invest the castle in that side which stood free, and whence they received constant releif from the Parliament ships riding in the river of the Shannon. The designe was prosperously executed, and the guards, making no resistance, were driven away on the suddaine with the noise of so unexpected an attempt, and the place possessed by the Irish, which they held not four hours, when the guard left to maintaine it, seeing some lighted matches move as they thought from the castle, which stood half an English mile off, towards them, and imagining that they heard the noise of horses, deserted the place, carrying with them over the damme, which afforded passage but for one man abreast, some booty the English had left behind them, and the serjeant appointed to command the party was among the first that fled, encouraged, it seems, by the too great indulgence in such cases and the faint execution of martial discipline at all times used in the armies of the Confederates. But the Lord of Muskery caused ten of the souldiers, with the serjeant, to be the next day put into the hands of the Provost-Marshal and to be executed, which act of justice, although out of the customary remissness observed in matters of that kind, it was repined at even by some of the officers, yet it was easily discovered in other attempts how much good that example in the consequence of it did to the whole army.

"In the meantime the wants of the armie grew to be very great, notwithstanding the unusual wayes which the Council was forced to take to furnish the souldiers with some money, and notwithstanding that the Nuncio had brought with him not long before six hundred pounds to the campe. So it was necessary for the beseigers to undertake somewhat that probably might put a speedy end to the worke before their necessities compelled the men to disperse; for now it was too late to thinck of surrounding the castle, or of distressing them for want of releif from sea, who were abundantly provided of all things already. Wherefore it was resolved that the two peices of cannon newly sent them from Limerick should be planted, to batter the little castle, which we have described to have stood near upon the edge of the outworkes, which the beseiged had raised for defence of the place; the Irish being from thence much annoyed in their trenches, and their approaches retarded thereby. The battery was for two days continued against the side of the castle, which being thin, the bullets only peirced it, without shaking the fabrick; and so undauntedly did those intrusted with the guard of it maintain it, that still as the cannon enlarged the breach, they at every shot poured forth a volley by the hole the bullets had made, until, towards the evening of the second day Captain McAdam, who commanded in Bunratty, coming to view the place, and to give order for drawing off his men, in case he found it not tenable, received a shot about his hams from a feild piece that was planted among the gabions, in some of the higher stages of the fences made upon the side of the hill to incommodate the enemy on his sally, not with any designe to play upon the castle, where it could be of little use; but the cannoneer taking the upper window of the castle for a mark to try his skill, made that shot, which by accident was fatal to McAdam, who then was in the room, to which that window gave light, and being carried thence, dyed that night. Whereof the Lord of Muskery being advertised by one that came off from the beseiged, and knowing how much they were discouraged at the loss of so valiant a person, and how little unanimous they were in the choyce of one to succeed him, he caused provision of fagotts to be made, and resolved to take advantage of this their consternation and difference, and to assault them in their workes. But first he caused two small peices to be drawne to the seashore, near the damme, to beat off a ship that rid at anchor there, with intent to play on the back of those which again should attempt to recover that post; but the guns being planted by the break of day, and shot off as soon as aim could be taken, she slipt her cable and put to sea. And now all things being prepared for the assault, the Irish fell on at the same time upon all their workes that faced upon the hill, and entering by the breaches made in the castle, and by the dry ditch adjoyning to it, which they filled with fagotts, they possesst themselves of some of their inner workes, so sunck in the earth, as the beseiged could not come to charge them with their horse; but those that attempted to take in a half moon that lay on the east point of the garden, were repulsed with loss. Yet the beseiged seeing fresh men drawne up to renew the assault there, and the number of those encreasing who had taken that post, where the horse could not annoy them, and that others had possessed themselves of the damme, and were passing the water, they were content to capitulate for their lives only, and the officers their swords, leaving the place, cannon, horses, armes, ammunition, and provisions, to the Confederates, and, embarqueing their sick and wounded men, returned by sea to Cork."

From "Aphorismical Discovery of Treasonable Faction" in Gilbert's "Contemporary History," etc., vol. i., p. 105. The original MS. is preserved in Trinity College, Dublin:—

"Ormond and his faction examininge all theire witte, to invent a new scene, to frustrate this peere of this suposed comforte, to bringe this fatall design to the period of its wished end, had two strings in his bowe, that one faylinge the other could not misse, the Lord Lieutenant therefore seriously advised the Earle of Tomo[nd] (all this while behavinge himself neuter, and consequently not troubled by either partie) to be reconciled to his cossen Insichuyne (whoe alias were foes) and caused my lord of Muskry, Tomond's nephewe, to worke this attonment, not for any other intention, then to worke the distruction of the K[ing's] partie, the Catholicks, and to impower the Prespiteriants, which reconcilment was to be perfected conditiona[l], that Tomond did give upp his house of Bonrattie to Insichuyne, upon the hands of some prime comaun[der] of his; whereby would mightily indeere himself unto the Parliament, and would therby prove most gratfull* . . . . both did nominate for governor of Bonrattie Colonell Adams . . . . thither arrivinge with 600 men possessed himself of that brave house, and most comodious for the future trouble of the Royallists. But before the arrival of the said Colonell and his partie, Tomond did bringe in the walles of his house all his gould, silver, and plate, made up the same againe, and leaste any such to be suspected, caused all the roome to be plaistered and rough cast with fresh and hott lime. The garrison takinge viewe of the house, and settlinge there, would not admitt his lordship to continue there and soe must packe away: some knave or other discovered the shelteringe his coyne as aforsaid, whereupon the souldiers tooke hould of his lordship and must tell where his treasure lay, or sweared to kill and destroy him, to reede himself of that eminent danger, he revealed the truth, before his own verie face tooke all from off the walle, and would not bestowe himself a fardinge of it."

Page 106. "They choose my lord of Muskry to goe and leager Bonratty with 3 Linster regiments of foote and 300 horse, and all the Monster forces."

Page 107. "Muskry arrivinge at Bonratty did leager the house which was well maned, with 600 men, but not stronge. He went to work very leasurely and grave though no souldier, would not admitt a councell of warr, all must be done accordinge his onely dictamen." . . . . "The service goinge forward very sloe with a mightie fleame, without any great hurt done to the enemie, whoe every day acted somethinge prejudiciall to the campe, as not beinge in any posture of service, had neither trenches or batterie for their ordinaunce. The Generall will not batter the house, his uncle's chiefe mansion place, alleadginge it to be a world of pittie to batter such a brave house; whereby protracted time, the best he could, exposeinge his men, and specially the Linster, to all fatall triall. Five or six weekes did he spende thus, dalynge with the matter. That Insichuyne might have time to relive the place, an easie busines to ferie them over the Shannon to the garrison, which Muskrie might with a wett finger frustrate, if willinge, or capable of advice. Relife came as often as the deffendants were pleased."

Page 121. "When my Lord Nuncio observed how they were pent, and Muskries crastinations, he went to the campe to edge him on, if he could, thought now to make a good harveste havinge such a beginninge; to oblige the souldiers gave a fortnight's meanes to eache souldier; this don, were most gratfull and promised to obey his lordship to the uttermost of theire abilitie. Leavinge them in that disposition, addressed himself to Muskry, desiringe him to advance with his ordinance and plant it neere home, where it might doe service, whoe was unwillinge to comply, but obsearvinge the willingnesse of the whole armie, to shewe my Lord Nuncio some sporte (as he tearmed it himself), sayinge that he had noe sporte in martiall feates since he arrived to Ireland, except that relation of Benborbe battle. Muskry, rather by compulsion than willingly, gave orders to advance the ordinance; the souldiers soe well behaved themselves that in an instant forced the deffendants to flocke in unto the bawen and courte, wherby the ordinance was mounted, as my Lord Nuncio would have it, as neere the walle as he pleased, now began the ordinance to goe, and made an assayllante breache; which began very feirce and manly—noe orders needfull, all Irish before my Lord Nuncio to shewe themselves couragious, most desirous, all the contestation was now of honor, whoe should be the firste with emulation was tried, specially the Linster men, nay, such as hitherunto were reputed not soe forwarde, were now brave souldiers. deffendants cried for quarter against the common vote were heard, and a quarter onely of their lives grannted. Out they came, the matter of 200 (where were at the beginninge 600), with theire Colonell Adames, one of Insichuyne's comannders. They were convoyed to theire proper quarters, accordinge capitulation, and Muskry did man the house for himself; the armie continued there for 3 or 4 daies."

Reading these two accounts it is easy to see which writer had detailed knowledge of the encounter and which coloured his description to serve the purpose for which he wrote, so that I think we may accept the graphic description of Colonel Adams' death as accurate.

His death then took place in 1645. According to a story my father relates his son and successor James was a little boy in 1641, and if he distinguished himself at the Battle of the Boyne in 1690 he must have been over fifty years of age.

This James Adams who fought at the Boyne is more likely to have been grandson to the hero of Bunratty.

The following entries are in "English Army Lists and Commission Registers, 1661—1714," edited by C. Dalton, published 1892, vol. i.

Under Commissions of 1678 we find James Adams entered as Ensign in the Earl of Inchiquin's Regiment of Foot at Tangier, Colonel William, Earl of Inchiquin, being Governor of Tangier. The Commission was signed at Whitehall. No doubt the old claim between the families was not forgotten.

This James was a Lieutenant in the same regiment in 1683 and still a Lieutenant in 1686, but left the Royal Regiment of Fusiliers as a Captain in 1687. He was most likely the Captain James Adams of the Boyne, and we have still to seek the record of his father.

The following is preserved in the Public Record Office, Dublin :—

ROLL I., 94.—ACT OF SETTLEMENT.

Adjudication in favour of 1649 Officers.

"Whereas upon stating of the arrears of the Commissioned Officers who served his Majesty or his Royall father in the late warrs of Ireland before the 5th June 1649 it appears unto the Court that there was due to the severall persons hereafter for service don by them to his Majesty or his Royall father in the said late warrs of Ireland the severall sums of money hereafter mentioned, i.e., ... to Lieut. James MaccAdams by one other debenture £349 1*s.* 7*d.*, ... to Ensigne John Adams by one other debenture £47 19*s.* 6*d.*

"And that the aforesaid sums of money due unto Lieut. Col. John MacAdams, Lt. James MacAdams ...., Ensigne John Adams, and .... have been acquired by the said Langford."

This Lieutenant James MaccAdams or MacAdams may be the man we seek, i.e., son of Colonel Adams or McAdam, killed at Bunratty, and father of James Adams who received his commission in 1678.

The prefix "Mac" would point to Scotch descent, and account for the tradition that the first of the family to come to Ireland was of that nationality. That the name was used in describing the same man with and without the "Mac" we have clear documentary proof, so that it is not surprising later generations omitted the prefix altogether.

The tradition of Scotch ancestry would account for a later-day adoption of the arms belonging to the family of Adamson, and in consequence of such an adoption a still later confusion with the Adam family.

I think this all shews, if any history of the family exists prior to the Irish settlement, it should be sought with best chance of success amongst the records of the MacAdams of Scotland.

The Family of Boothby.

NOTE 1.—In the March Number of "Miscellanea," pages 7—12, was given a short account of the Boothbys prior to the first Baronet, Sir Henry Boothby, creation 5 November 1644. In the present Number is presented the pedigree of the Broadlow Ash and Ashbourne Hall branch of the family, through whom the late Sir Brooke Boothby, 11th Bart., obit 22 January 1913, is directly descended.

NOTE 2.—On the accompanying plate the centre portrait is that of Sir William Boothby, 8th Bart. (see page 54), and for the other four see page 55.

NOTE 3.—Also are presented illustrations of two shields, the Boothby and the Cobham, date circum 1657-8, through the marriage in 1657-8 of Sir William Boothby, 2nd Bart., and Hill Brooke, daughter of Sir William Brooke by Penelope, daughter of Sir M. Hill of Hillsborough and granddaughter of George, Lord Cobham of Cobham Hall, by Elizabeth, eldest daughter of Thomas, Lord Brough. The originals are carvings in oak, which came from Ashbourne Hall in 1846.

The one shield. ARMS.—Quarterly: 1 and 4, Argent, on a canton gules a lion's gamb erased and erect or (BOOTHBY); 2 and 3, Gules, on a chevron argent a lion rampant sable, ducally crowned or (BROOKE, LORD COBHAM).

CREST.—A lion's gamb erect or.

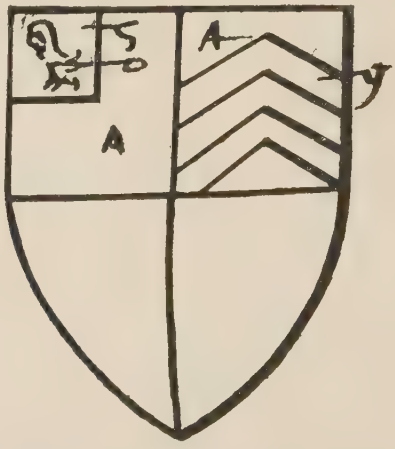
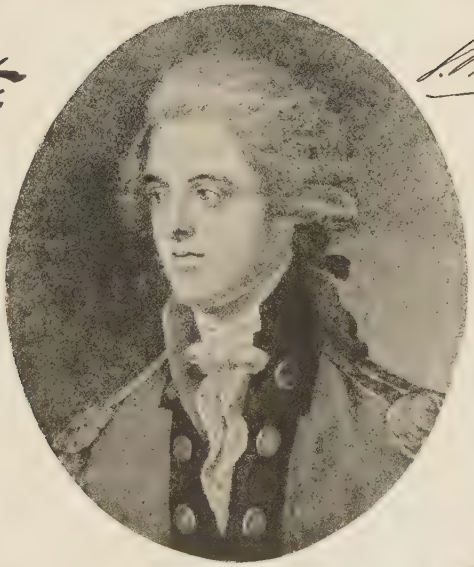
MOTTO.—"ESPOIRE EN DIEU." This motto was on the William Brooke, Lord Cobham, hatchment at Cobham Church, who obit 5 April 1597. See Lansdowne MS. 874; Harleian MS. 6587. The Boothby motto, however, is "MORS CHRISTI, MORS MORTIS MIHI."

In the Heralds' Visitations, co. Lincoln, 1561—1592, Harleian MS. 1550, fo. 192^{b}, appears a Boutheby coat of arms in which the dexter is the existing Boothby arms, and the sinister, the chevron, the ancient Boothby coat, thus—



The Harleian MS. 3875, fo. 296, and the Add. MS. 6118, fo. 496 to 526, both give with the ancient Botheby coat the genealogy of the family by Robert Sanderson, Bishop of Lincoln 1632.



As to the other shield, the Cobham, the following are its twenty-two quarterings : 1 Brooke, 2 Cobham, 3 Hannass, 4 Braybrooke, 5 Ledget, 6 Foliot, 7 Reyncourt, 8 De la Pole, 9 Peverel, 10 St. Amand, 11 Bray modern, 12 Bray ancient, Longvaile, 13 Hallywell, 14 Norbury, 15 Botelet, 16 Pantulf, 17 Sudeley, 18 Montfort, 19 Planche, 20 Haversham, 21 Crozier, 22 D'Abernon (vide MS. Harleian 6157, which give these quarterings ; also Harleian 6587 and Lansdowne 874).

Through the quarterings 11 and 12, when the Bray Barony case was contested in 1836, one of the heirs-at-law was Sir William Boothby, 9th Bart., as heir of Anne, the eldest sister and coheir of John, the last Lord Braye, whose grandson and heir Henry, Lord Cobham, was attainted in 1606. Vide Lords Peerage Claims, 1836, viii. ; Lords Report, vol. ii., 1837-8, xix. ; Sessional Papers, Lords, 1839, xvii. ; Sessional Papers, 1836—1839, Packet 12.

Correspondence.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "MISCELLANEA GENEALOGICA ET HERALDICA."

Dear Sir,

I should like to make a few corrections and additions to your pedigree of the Corsellis family in your March issue.

1. The arms (as quoted from Berry, and not, as I believe, those generally used by the family) should, of course, be "Ermine, two lions combattant gules." Three lions combattant would be a curiosity both from an armorial and every other standpoint!

2. In the second generation why is Lucas Corsellis said to be "ancestor of the Corsellises of Belton," etc., when in the next generation his daughter Mary, Lady Abdy, is called "coheir"? Also why does Lady Abdy, if the youngest daughter, come before her sisters?

3. Page 23. The present representatives of the Corsellises are apparently justified in quartering the arms of Child and Evance. Can any one give me the correct arms of the latter family, and also tell me the relationship between John Evance and Sir Stephen Evance? Were they brothers or more distant connections?

4. Page 25. The date of death of Sir Thomas Corsellis has been given me as March 14th, 1854. Surely it is known where he was buried.

5. Page 26. I am here able to supply a very important date, which I obtained from the India Office some years ago, viz., that of the marriage of Henry Corcellis [sic] and (Miss) Hannah Douglas. They were married at Fort Marlboro' Sept. 3rd, 1797.

6. Page 27. Here occur various mistakes which I am able to correct, besides many omissions which I am unable to supply:—

(i.) Rachel Edith Corsellis mar. Llewellyn Carless Foulkes Attwood, J.P., then of Wandsworth, afterwards of Pandy, co. Mon. (only son of the late Algernon Attwood of London, banker), and has issue.

(ii.) As regards her sister Eliza Douglas Corsellis, her first husband, Mr. Hamber, died without surviving issue, and she mar. secondly in 1899 Frederic Morgan Humfrey, J.P., of the Inner Temple and of Llanwenarth House, near Abergavenny.

While (iii.) as regards another sister, Marion Corsellis (who is deceased), her husband's name should be spelt "Ellis," and he is, I believe, a nephew of the late Sir John Whittaker Ellis, Bart., Lord Mayor of London in 1881. Mrs. H. Ellis left issue.

I am,

Faithfully yours,

THOS. A. C. ATTWOOD, F.S.A.

Herries Notes.*

Herries of Little Milntoun and Little Culloch.

"Eduarde herreis in litill miltoun" was a witness, 27 November 1584, "in ane gallarie of ye place of terreglis" to a deed whereby Sir Robert Maxwell of Spottes resigned all claim to the five pound land of "Richarne" in the parish of Urr and Stewartry of Kirkcudbright in favour of his (Sir Robert's) brother german William, Lord Herries (Minutes of Evidence, "Herries Peerage Case," No. 239, p. 431). "Eduard Hereis in Lytill Mylnetoun" had a crown charter in favour of himself and his heirs male and assigns whatsoever, 15 October 1589, of the four merk lands of the barony of Rerik called "Ovir Hessilfeild .... cum decimis garbalibus aliisque decimis tam rectorie quam Vicarie, que a trunco numquam separari solebant, in parochia de Drumdrennane, senesc. Kirkcudbrycht:—que regi devenerunt tanquam pars patrimonii monasterii de Dundrennane" ("Reg. Mag. Sig." under date). The testament of "Edward Hareis in Litill Myltoun" in the Stewartry of Kirkcudbright, who died 17th April 1595, was confirmed at Edinburgh the 27th May following. In the inventory "Bartill Hereis in Hessilfeild" and "Hew Somervell" in Edinburgh, described as brother-in-law to the deceased,† are named among the debtors. The testator, in his will dated at "Litill Myltoun," 3 April 1595, desires to be buried in the parish kirk of Kirkgunzton and constitutes William "Hereis," his son, as his only executor. He nominates "Bratill Hereis in Hessilheidfeild" and "Walter Hereis of Knokschynnocht" (see "Misc. Gen. et Her.," Fourth Series, Vol. V., p. 361) as tutors to his said son William, and in the event of the latter's death as tutors to Jonet and Agnes "Hereis" his (the testator's) lawful daughters. He ordains that Agnes Maxwell, his spouse, during her "undefylit widowheid," should enjoy the service and duty of his room of "Lytill Myltoun" to the upbringing of his three lawful bairns. In the event of the death of his son William he ordains that his (the testator's) eldest daughter by advice of Lord Herries should be married to a friend of the surname of Herries and that she should enjoy his room of Little Milntoun. He leaves legacies to two natural daughters Katherine and Helen Herries. There was a great gathering of the clan round his death-bed, for his will is witnessed by Robert Herries of Mabie and his sons Richard and William (see "Misc. Gen. et Her.," Fourth Series, Vol. V., p. 84), Bartill Herries in Hessilfeild, George Herries in Hoddum, William Herries in Barnecleuch, William Herries in Corsuado, Richard Herries in Tullidrane, and Robert Herries, brother to John Herries in "Trochmoir" (qu. Crochmoir, see ibid., Fifth Series, Vol. I., p. 15).

Whether William Herries, the son mentioned in this will of 1595, lived and left issue, or whether the eldest daughter succeeded and was duly married to one of her own surname in accordance with the provision of the will, and left descendants, there is no evidence before the present writer to shew.‡ Robert Herries, whatever his descent may have been, is the next of the name connected with Little Milntoun of whom record has been found. The inventory attached to the will of Barbara

* Communicated by David C. Herries, Esq.—continued from Fifth Series, Vol. I., p. 18.

† "Hugh Sommervell, indweller in Edinburgh, and Catherine Hereis his wife," had some claim in 1594 against Gilbert, Master of Somerville, afterwards 7th Lord Somerville, of whom he appears to have been an uncle, being himself a son, though perhaps an illegitimate one, of James, 5th Lord Somerville. He died in 1608, being then "of Wolfroddis" ("Reg. Mag. Sig.," 1634—1651, No. 342, footnote; see, too, the "Scots Peerage," ed. Sir J. B. Paul, title Somerville, vol. viii., pp. 22, 25).

‡ The inventory attached to the testament of Agnes, suo jure Lady Herries of Terregles, dated 13 March 1593-4 and confirmed at Edinburgh 19 December 1598, mentions David "hareis," farmer, of "ye littill mylne," as one of her debtors. Possibly the Little Mill and Little Milntoun may have been identical.

Herries, spouse of John Herries of Dumfries (see "Misc. Gen. et Her.," Fifth Series, Vol. I., p. 16), dated in December 1625 and confirmed at Dumfries 31 January 1626, mentions "Robert Herreis in Lytillmylnetoun" as cautioner for John "Allane in Lawsoun," one of the testator's debtors. The Privy Council directed, 18 December 1628, that certain Acts of Parliament against papists and excommunicated persons should be put in force against "Bessie Hereis, spous to Robert Hereis in Milnetoun" ("P.C. Reg.," second series, ii., 535).

In 1644 there was a "Johne herreis in litlemylnetoune" who, with others of his name, was to be arrested by order of Parliament for not appearing when cited before the Committee of Estates for the South ("Acta Parl. Scot.," vi. [ed. of 1870], pt. i., p. 136).

After this for a long time the Records contain nothing about this family, which seems to have ended in heirs-portioners who, acting in the spirit of the above-mentioned will of 1595, married men either of their own surname or willing to assume it, for Agnes Herries, wife of James Herries of Meikle Culloch, and Elizabeth Herries, widow of John Herries of Little Culloch, were served, 7 May 1743, heirs-portioners general to John Herries of Little Milntoun, their father ("Decennial Indices to Services").

The elder heir-portioner was no doubt the Agnes Herries, who in a sasine of Meikle Culloch in her favour, 30 June (registered in the Dumfries Register 2 August) 1749, is described as eldest lawful daughter to the deceased John Herries of Little Milntoun. According to its registration the sasine followed upon a contract of marriage between herself and James Morrison* of Meikle Culloch, dated at Dumfries 21 July 1741, which provided for an annuity for her of 100 pounds Scots in the event of children of the marriage, or in the event of no children of 120 pounds Scots "furth of the lands of Meikle Culloch" in the parish of Urr and Stewartry of Kirkcudbright. Presumably James Morrison assumed his wife's name and was the James Herries mentioned as her husband in the above-mentioned service of 7 May 1743.

John Herries of Little Culloch, the husband of Elizabeth Herries the younger heir portioner, who died before his wife's service of 1743, was served 13th December 1740 heir of provision general to his father James Herries of Little Culloch ("Decennial Indices to Services"), and presumably he died without issue, for Elizabeth Herries, wife of William Dod, merchant in Dumfries, was served heir general to her brother John Herries of Little Culloch 25 June 1743 (ibid.).

The present writer has been able to trace the ancestry of this John Herries of Little Culloch up to his grandfather, another John Herries, who had sasine 29 September (registered in the Dumfries Register 26 October) 1671 of the 40 shilling land of Little Culloch in the parish of Urr and Stewartry of Kirkcudbright in implement, according to the registration, of a contract of alienation dated at Dumfries 13th January 1648 between John Herries of Mabie (see "Misc. Gen. et Her.," Fourth Series, Vol. V., p. 117) on the one part and himself on the other part. William Herries, described as his second son, was a witness at the sasine. He conveyed the property in his lifetime to his sons William and James Herries, who had sasine, 18 March (registered in the Dumfries Register 6 May) 1674, of the 40 shilling land of Little Culloch Wadset (according to the registration) by John Herries of Mabie to John Herries of Little Culloch and his heirs and assigns in terms of a contract between them dated at Dumfries 13 January 1648. The registration says that this sasine followed upon a disposition by John Herries of Little Culloch in favour of the said William and James Herries, his sons, of this property equally betweem them, viz., to the said William and his heirs and assigns whatsoever, and to the said James and the lawful heirs of his body, which failing to the heirs and assigns of John Herries the father, who reserved his frank tenement and life rent in the property. The sons were to hold of their father in free blench ferme for the yearly payment of one penny.

The testament dative of James Herries (no doubt one of the two sons of John Herries mentioned above) of "Little Culloch in the parish of Urr," who died in July 1719, was confirmed at Dumfries 23 July 1740 and again 19 February 1751, the executrix dative on both occasions being Elizabeth Herries, spouse to William Dod, merchant in Dumfries, described as his only lawful daughter. The first confirmation shews that part of the tocher of his wife Margaret, daughter of John M^{c}Jore of "Meikle Cocklick," due by the marriage contract of 1 August 1716, was still unpaid at that date.

The following tabular pedigree will make the connection between the Little Milntoun and Little Culloch families clearer :—

JOHN HERRIES had a wadset from John Herries of Mabie in 1648 of Little Culloch, which he conveyed to his sons William and James in 1674.

WILLIAM HERRIES had sasine of Little Culloch with his brother James in 1674.

JAMES HERRIES had sasine of Little Culloch with his brother William in 1674 ; married Margaret, dau. of John M^{c}Jore of Meikle Cocklick (contract dated 1 August 1716) ; died July 1719 ; testament confirmed 1740 and 1751.

JOHN HERRIES of Little Milntoun, died before 7 May 1743.

ELIZABETH HERRIES, wife of William Dod of Dumfries, executrix to her father ; was served heir to her brother John 25 June 1743.

JOHN HERRIES of Little Culloch, died before 7 May 1743 ; had been served heir of provision general to his father James Herries of Little Culloch 13 December 1740.

= ELIZABETH HERRIES. She was served heir portioner general to her father, as widow of John Herries of Little Culloch, 7 May 1743.

AGNES HERRIES, served heir portioner general to her father, as wife of James Herries of Meikle Culloch, 7 May 1743 ; had sasine of Meikle Culloch 1749.

= JAMES MORRISON of Meikle Culloch ; contract dated 21 July 1741. He assumed the name of Herries (?).

HERRIES OF OVER HESSILFIELD AND CORSUADA.

There was a Bartholomew,* Bartill or Bratill, Herries established at Hessilfield as early as 1584. The testament, inventory, etc., of "Janet M^{c}Math sometime spouse to Bartilmo Herreis of Over Hessilfeild" in the parish of "Dundrynane" and Stewartry of Kirkcudbright (which Janet died in February 1584), was confirmed at Edinburgh 15 May 1591. The inventory shews that she was in debt to Edward Herries, David Herries, Robert Herries, and others. The will, dated at her dwelling-place of Hisselheid 15 February 1584, constitutes "Bartell Hereis, her spouse," and Helen "Gibbesone," her daughter, to be her only executors.

* There are earlier instances of this name among the Herrieses. Bartholomew and Florence Herries were witnesses at a sasine in favour of Roger Herries of Maidenpaup in 1518 (see Fourth Series, Vol. IV., p. 219). Bartholomew "Herys" was convicted, 22 Nov. 1533, for wilful error, because as assissor or juryman he had acquitted John Makilrewy and others accused of being art and part of the theft of a box containing money and jewels from the house of Sir James M^{c}Braar, Chaplain within the Burgh of Dumfries in October 1532. He was ordered to be imprisoned for a year and a day and further during the King's pleasure (Pitcairn's "Criminal Trials," i., 165*).

Probably Bartholomew Herries at this time was only an under tenant at Hessilfield, for, as has been related above in the account of the Little Milntoun family, Edward Herries of that place had in 1589 a charter from the Crown of Over Hessilfield. From Edward Herries, however, this property seems to have passed to Bartholomew Herries, though no record of such transfer appears in the Great Seal Register. Bartholomew Herries was, it may be remembered, one of the witnesses to the will of the same Edward in 1595, and in the will is nominated (as of "Hessilheidfeild") to be one of the tutors to the latter's children; and on 30 May 1595, about a month after Edward's death, he sold ("pro observatione contractus de data apud Over Hessilfeild, 29 May 1595, in libris commissariatus de Kirkcudbrycht registrandi") to "Willielmo Hereis in Corsuada fratri suo naturali et heredibus ejus masculis quibuscunque" the same property that the Crown had granted in 1589 to Edward Herries of Little Milntoun, viz., the four merk land of "Over Hessilfeild .... cum decimis inclusis tam garbalibus quam minutis ab eisdem terris non separatis in baronia de Drumdrenane, parochia de Rerik, senesc. Kirkcudbrycht." Bartholomew reserves for himself free tenement of the whole property, and for his wife "Cristine Cuitler" (a successor presumably of the Janet M^cMath above mentioned) free tenement of the half in which she was infeft. In the Crown confirmation of this sale, 26 July 1595 ("Reg. Mag. Sig." under date), in which his charter of sale is recited, he is called the late ("quondam") "Bartholomeus Hereis de Over Hessilfeild."

William Herries in Corsuada,* the natural brother to whom Bartholomew Herries thus sold Over Hessilfield in 1595, was not destined to enjoy an entirely peaceful possession of it. At a sitting of the Privy Council at Holyroodhouse, 1 February 1603, "Walter Hereis of Knokshynnauch" appeared and, "giving in a copy of the letters raised by Williame Hereis in Corsnak [sic] charging him to answer for his alleged ejection of the said Williame and family furth of the lands of Hessilfeild, spuilyie of their goods and plenishing, and certain other alleged acts of oppression," protested "that as the said Williame does not appear, he shall not be held to answer farther till warned of new." The Council admitted the protest ("P.C. Reg.," vi., 532-3). The Council Register contains no more about this affair, and the writer has not been able to discover what was the cause of the dispute or what answer Walter Herries may have made to the charges against him. If the will of Edward Herries given above in the account of the Little Milntoun family be referred to, it will be seen that this Walter Herries was nominated in it to be joint tutor of Edward's children, together with Bartholomew Herries, and he may have thought that the latter was not entitled to sell Over Hessilfield, which as has been shewn already, had belonged to Edward Herries the testator, and in ejecting Bartholomew's natural brother William Herries, the purchaser of the property, he may have considered that he was acting in the interest of Edward's children.

The writer has found nothing more concerning the Corsuada (or Corsnak) family except that "WILLIELMUS HEREIS in Corsnado" [sic] was served, 13 October 1618, heir general of "Willielmi Hereis in Corsuado, patris" (Inq. Ret. Gen., No. 783).

* There had been an earlier Herries in Corsuada, possibly the father of William and Bartholomew, for the testament, inventory, etc., of "Katrene Maxwell," described as relict of "Mungo Herres in Corsuado" in the parish of Lochrutton and Stewartry of Kirkcudbright, which Katherine died in December 1589, was confirmed at Edinburgh 11 August 1590. The will is dated 15 December 1589, and appoints Robert Maxwell of the Fourmerkland, Andrew Kirkheuch, and Homer Maxwell to be executors. There were legacies to Lord Herries, John Wallace in Carazell, Agnes Anderson, Isobell Maxwell, sister to the testator, and others.

Reviews.

Heraldry in Scotland, including a Recension of 'The Law and Practice of Heraldry in Scotland,' by the late George Seton, Advocate. By J. H. STEVENSON, Advocate and Unicorn Pursuivant. Glasgow: James Maclehose and Sons, Publishers to the University. 1914.

THIS Work forms two volumes, crown 4to, with upwards of 300 illustrations, of which many are in colour, and is issued in two forms. First.—The edition for sale is limited to 540 copies, of which numbers 1 to 210, forming the Edition de Luxe, is printed on hand-made paper, with all the coloured plates and all the photogravures and collotypes printed on Japanese vellum. This edition has as a frontispiece an important etching by Mr. D. Y. Cameron of the Royal Arms of Scotland, carved on the west-most buttress of the Abbey Church of Melrose (size of plate 7 inches by 4 inches), each print being signed by the artist. The price of this edition, which is bound in half-vellum, gilt top, is £10 10*s.* net for the two volumes. Second.—The Ordinary Edition, which contains all the coloured plates and photogravures and a reproduction of the frontispiece, is bound in cloth, gilt top, is issued at £4 4*s.* net for the two volumes, and is numbered 211 to 540.

The Editor, in introducing the Work, states that "The Law and Practice of Heraldry in Scotland, which issued from the facile pen of the late Mr. Seton in 1863, marked an era in the literature of its subject, and in no long time went out of print. Its learned author, however, though naturally gratified by the high estimation which his work had continued to enjoy, decided not to reprint it; but, in view of the extensive additions available to the student of the subject which had been made in the interval which had elapsed since the appearance of the publication of his work, he resolved to issue a new book which should contain all that was useful in the original work, and as much additional matter relative to its subject as was compatible with a general adherence to the style and method which he had already adopted with such acceptance.

For the purpose at the same time of leaving his original treatise, capable as it was of being referred to without qualification, under its original title, he desired that the new work should be issued under a new name. After consideration he expressed a preference for the title of "Heraldry in Scotland"; and, although Mr. Seton died before coming to any final decision on the subject, that title has been adhered to.

In the meantime, Mr. Seton had done the present writer the honour of inviting him to take the labouring oar as well as all the responsibilities in connection with the preparation of what was to be in a large measure a new work. In anticipation of some such undertaking, Mr. Seton had made a number of notes. He had also made an analysis in several respects of the contents of Mr. Henry Laing's Supplementary Volume on Seals, which had appeared since The Law and Practice had been printed. He had carefully preserved a large collection of letters dealing with various matters heraldic which he had received, mostly on the occasion of the appearance of his book. All these, and the very delicately-executed wood-blocks used in that work, which he naturally desired should be used again, he handed over to the writer for the purpose of the new undertaking. It is to be observed that, owing to the scale on which most of these wood-blocks were made, each of the tressures is represented by a single line. The Royal tressure consists, as is known, of two very narrow tressures, parallel and close to each other, flory and counter-flory, the field but not the fleur-de-lis being seen between the tressures.

That work, the issue of which, from various circumstances relative at one time to Mr. Seton, at another time to the writer, has been long delayed, was sufficiently advanced in Mr. Seton's lifetime to allow him to see and approve of its first and second Chapters. With regard to these it is therefore unnecessary in a Preface like the present to say more. But with regard to the subsequent chapters, it is proper, out of respect to Mr. Seton's memory, as well as for the sake of any authority with which the statements which they contain may claim to have been made, to state that on most if not all of the few points on which the present and former volumes appear to contradict each other, the writer had the advantage of conversing with Mr. Seton and of finding that, on consideration, they were of the same opinion.

No relevant matter written in 1863 (unless it has become obsolete) has been omitted, though some had to be curtailed to make room for more important additions, or because of the exigences of space. The scope of the original work will be found, therefore, to be in no respect diminished. On the contrary, it is in some parts enlarged.

In dealing with the early law and practice of heraldry, we have freely cited several famous cases which have been litigated in England, because at the dates to which these cases belong the law of both lands in these matters was the same. Mention of these minor differences between the armorial practice of the two countries, which now appear in their respective estimations and uses of certain heraldic bearings which are common to both, does not come within the scope of this work, and it is hoped that, in dealing with those differences which exist or seem to exist in matters of heraldic right, the law of England has been correctly stated."

The Work contains seventeen chapters, viz. :—

1. Introductory. 2. Armorial Bearings: their rise and ultimate recognition in law. 3. The Officers of Arms. 4. Jurisdiction of the Lord Lyon in matters of Armorial Bearings. 5. The Records of Early Practice. 6. Procedure in the Office and Court of the Lord Lyon in matters of Arms. 7 and 8. The Achievement. 9. The Classification of Coats of Arms. 10. Methods of Differencing the Arms of Cadets. 11. The right to bear Supporters. 12. Succession to Arms. 13. The Succession of Heirs of Entail to the Armorial Honours of a Family. 14. The Assumption and Change of Surnames. 15. The Royal Arms in Scotland. 16. New Grants of Arms and their Contents. 17. The Non-Armorial Functions of the Heralds. And eleven Appendices, with an Index.

The production of this Work is a credit to all parties concerned, and we can confidently recommend all our readers who are interested in Heraldry to take an early opportunity of at once subscribing for a copy of this most important Work.

Revista de Historia y de Genealogia Española. Año III., Nos. 3 and 4. Madrid: March and April 1914.

THE March Part has its usual Bibliographia, Reviews, and Notices, and is besides illustrated by Portraits of D. Lope Butrón of Múgica, Dona Teresa de Ugarte and Don Lope de Mendaza, Don Francisco Antonio de Agurto, Marquis de Gaztañaga, as a plate, and a further account of the Inquisición de Valencia. The April Part has the Inquisition de Valencia continued, likewise Bibliographia, Reviews, and the usual monthly Notices and Questions. Both Parts begin with Genealogical History in Spain.

Fleetwood Family Records.

THIS is a large 4to edited by R. W. Bass, issued in January 1914 as Part I., and giving the various branches of the Family in pedigree form, beginning from 1590. It chiefly affects the Fleetwood Family, and the issue is only 10 pp., stitched in a coloured wrapper, and the second Part is to be issued about June.

* Extract from a letter to J. F. Fuller from the late Benjamin Fuller, J.P., D.L., of Hyde House and Germans, Bucks (dated February 25, 1875, when he was 85 years of age): "John Fuller [who married Jane Hale] was called 'poor Mr. Fuller, who had an estate for each of his sons [6], but nothing for himself.' With an attendant named Cordery he walked up to London to get excused from serving the office of High Sheriff. The weather was bad. They were met by the Member for the County, who offered to take them up, saying: 'You will get very wet.' Fuller declined the offer, and when Cordery remonstrated he was met by the retort: 'You fool! I'd have to give his Coachman a shilling, and we can dry our clothes at a Coffey House.' Owing to the ill conduct of his parish clergyman, and no notice being taken of complaint made to the Bishop, he and all his family withdrew from the Church, and one of them built a meeting house at Aston Tirrold, which still exists [see Joseph Fuller, Y in pedigree]. The village of Blewbury being nearly equi-distant from Oxford and Newbury—at the former of which, during the Civil War, the King's forces were quartered, and at the latter the Parliamentarians—foraging parties went out from both, and it so happened that on one occasion, when dinner had been prepared at John Fuller's house, the King's troops came and carried it off. Further preparations being made, the Parliamentarians appeared and made a clean sweep of the second meal. My father succeeded Dr. Dodderidge as one of the tutors of his Academy [Dr. Dodderidge kept a school], and was pastor of a church in Northamptonshire, afterwards called to Carter Lane in London. He married Mary Stratton, a person of good fortune; living afterwards in retirement at Germans, where he died. No one of the family lives at Blewbury now, and the

The Scotts of Harperrig.*

This branch of the Scott family was settled at Irvine, Ayrshire, as early as the sixteenth century. After their migration to Midlothian, about 1600, they were recognized as kinsmen by the Earls of Buccleuch, who at various times appointed the head of this family along with representatives of other Scott families to be executors of their wills, commissioners to manage their estates, and tutors to their children.[1]

The earliest member of the family who can be fitted into a consecutive pedigree is :—

Hew Scott of Scotsloch, Irvine, Provost of Irvine 1616,[2] died circa 1618,[3] said to have married Margaret Wallace, one of the Shewalton family, and had :—

1. Laurence (see infra).
2. James, bought his brother's interest in Scotsloch 1617,[4] bought Clonbeith near Kilwinning, Ayrshire, 1633 ;[5] Provost of Irvine 1633-4 ;[6] died May 1636 ;[7] married (1) Agnes Blair, who died 21 December 1620,[8] leaving a daughter, who married Thomas Cunningham ; (2) Lillias Scott, by whom he had three daughters : (a) Agnes, who married Captain Bryce Blair of Bogside ; (b) Margaret, who married, in 1645, John Eleis, Advocate ; and (c) Lillias, who married Hew Boyd, merchant in Edinburgh.[9]
3. Margaret, who died unmarried.
4. Janet, who married John Blair, Provost of Irvine 1628. He died in October 1628, leaving two daughters, Agnes and Bessie.[10]
5. Susanna, who married James Blair (brother of John Blair), Provost of Irvine 1646.[11] He died circa 1649, leaving two daughters, Agnes and Marion.

Laurence Scott, apprenticed before 1592 to Robert Scott, Director of Chancery,[12] passed Advocate 6 January 1607 ; bought Harperrig in Midcalder parish 1605,[13] Bavelaw in Penicuik parish 1628,[14] Bonnington in Ratho parish 1629,[15] Clerkington in Temple parish 1634,[16] and other lands in Midlothian ; married Elizabeth, daughter of William Pringle, litster (dyer) burgess of Edinburgh ;[17] died in December 1637.[18] His widow died in November 1666,[19] aged 104 years.

Their family consisted of :—

1. William (see infra, Scotts of Clerkington).
2. James (see infra, Scotts of Bonnington).
3. Laurence (see infra, Scotts of Bavelaw and Harperrig).
4. Marion, who married (1) James Scott, brother of Sir John Scott of Scotstarvit, and had two daughters ; (2) Richard Lauder of Hatton,[18]

      - John = Eleanor = John Brown of Wellsburg, Va. 2nd husband. — John Gautt of Frederick, Maryland. 1st husband.

The proof that Philip Doddridge of Isleworth was the ancestor of the American line lies in the fact that every other Philip in the English Pedigree is accounted for but him.

SIDNEY E. DODDERIDGE.

Notes on the foregoing Pedigree.

The above Pedigree has been enlarged upon that in the Heralds' College recorded by Pentecost Doddridge of Barnstaple in 1628, when the arms were confirmed and allowed. In this pedigree the surname is spelt Doddridge and Dodderidge. The object has been to correct the faulty notices of the Doddridge ancestry found in the life of the Rev. Dr. Philip Dodderidge as given by Orton, Humphries, Kippis, Stoughton, Boyd, Harsha, and Stanford.

The recorded pedigree names Joan, daughter of .... Harder of Devonshire, as Richard Doddridge's wife, while John Doddridge Humphries in his "Correspondence and Diary of Philip Doddridge, D.D.," 1829, gives Joan Badcock of South Molton as the wife. Possibly he was twice married, or his wife may have been a widow.

Sir John Doddridge married as his 3rd wife, according to the recorded pedigree, Anne, widow of Gabriel Howman, and daughter of Hugh Culme of London. Wescott, however, says she was the daughter of Nicholas Culme and widow of Gabriel Newman.

Curiously enough, Philip Doddridge of Isleworth is not mentioned in the recorded pedigree. The Harleian MSS. on Devonshire pedigrees, date circa 1630, first name him under the recorded coat drawn by Richard Munday.

Burialls in March 1658-9 : M^r John Dodridge the 15^th.

The inscriptions to Sir John Doddridge and his Lady Dorothy in Exeter Cathedral will be found in Prince's "Worthies of Devon" and the "Dodderidges of Devon" (Pollard, Exeter), in which latter work are also the inscriptions at Lisbon and Doddridge Chapel, Northampton, to the Rev. Dr. Philip Doddridge.

Herries Notes.*

HERRIES OF AUCHENSHEEN.

In an account of the family of Herries of Mabie contributed to this Magazine (Fourth Series, Vol. V., p. 83) by the present Writer it was shewn that Robert Herries of Mabie had a crown charter of the lands of "Auchinschene et Auchinskeoch" in the parish of Colvend and Stewartry of Kirkcudbright, 23 April 1575, and that these properties are mentioned among the lands of the lairds of Mabie in retours of 1604, 1622, and 1632 (ibid., pp. 114, 115, 117). These lairds from time to time seem to have let out Auchensheen to kinsfolk. In 1586, some ten years after the date of the crown charter above mentioned, John, Lord Hamilton, Lieutenant of the West March, "respittis and remittis to Richard Hereis in Barnebarroch" (for whom see Fourth Series, Vol. V., pp. 298-9) and to "George Hereis in Auchinshein, all danger and perrell of thair lyfis quilk we haif, hes, haid, or may haue aganis the saidis personis, throw being of the saidis personis convictit be ane assyss for resett of David Murray of the Eckat, his brethir, and thair complices" (Sir W. Fraser's "Book of Carlaverock," ii., 493). In the account of the Mabie family (Fourth Series, Vol. V., p. 114) it has been related how "Beatrix Wolsoun, relict, and Penuel, Margaret, Susanna, Issobell, Blanse, Hellene, and Ewphame Hereis, poore bairnes of umquhill George Hereis in Auchinscheane," made a piteous appeal to the Privy Council in 1607 against "Richart Hereis of Mabye," complaining of his cruelty in trying to oust them from the lands of Anchensheen, which they had held since the death "divers years ago" of the said George Herries, who had been kindly tenant of these lands under the said Richard Herries and his predecessors. Richard Herries, they complained, had no pity on them, the widow and children of "his own deceased kinsman," but was "altogither avariciouslie disposit to have the saidis landis" and to drive them out to "undergoe miserabill begging throw the haill cuntreye." They prayed therefore that "summons should be directed against him and order taken with him." Their petition is endorsed "fiat ut petitur."

After the time of this George Herries and his family of daughters no mention of a Herries of Auchensheen, apart from the lairds of Mabie, has been found till 2 February 1676, when a contract of marriage was drawn up between John Herries, son of Robert Herries of Barnbarroch (see the account of that family, Fourth Series, Vol. V., p. 300), and Janet, "eldest daughter to John Heiries of Auchinchean"; and John Herries of Auchensheen was a witness, 31 March 1676, to a sasine in favour of Constance Gordon, wife of Robert Herries of Barnbarroch (ibid.). The testament dative, inventory, etc., of John Herries of "Awchincheane, who died in the month of .... 168–," was confirmed at Dumfries 22 October 1685, "Christiane and Margaret Hereissis, his lawful daughters," being the executors dative. The inventory mentions John Herries, described as laird of Mabie, among the deceased's debtors, and John Herries "in Barcloy" among his creditors. The daughter Margaret was presumably identical with Margaret Herries, who was served, 9 November 1725, heir portioner general to her father John Herries of "Auchinscheen" ("Decennial Indices to Services").

There continued, however, to be male Herrieses connected with Auchensheen. Indentures between James Maxwell, wright, and Andrew Herries, described as lawful son to John Herries "in Auchinchein," were drawn up, with consent of Andrew's sister Marion Herries, on 15 May and registered in July 1695 (Minute Book of the Register of Deeds of the Dumfries Commissariot now in the General Register House at Edinburgh). The confirmation of the testament of George Herries "in Auchenchain" in November 1700 is noted in the Minute Book of the Dumfries Commissariot, but actual record of it is missing.

After this time a family (whose relationship, however, with any of the Herrieses already mentioned in connection with Auchensheen has not been traced) held land in Auchensheen for some generations, as shewn by the following tabular pedigree :—

JOHN HERRIES, elder, made a disposition, 20 July 1721, of the 2 merk land of Auchensheen, parish of Colvend, in favour of Robert Herries, described as his grandchild and as eldest lawful son of the marriage between John Herries, younger, and Elizabeth Gordon, with remainder to James Herries, described as youngest lawful son of the same marriage, as appears from the registration of the sasine of the property in favour of the grandson Robert Herries mentioned below.

JOHN HERRIES, younger = ELIZABETH GORDON.

A

ROBERT HERRIES, had sasine of Auchensheen, 20 (registered at Dumfries 25) July 1721, by virtue of his grandfather's disposition mentioned above. He was educated at the Scots' Colleges at Madrid and Douai and became a physician. The testament dative of "umquhile Robert Herries of Auchensheen, who died in the month of August 1759," was confirmed at Dumfries 19 August 1767, the executrix dative being Jean Douglas, described as his widow.

= JEAN DOUGLAS. She was living in August 1767.

JAMES HERRIES (sometimes called Gordon), aged 15 in 1731; was educated at the Scots' Colleges at Madrid and Douai, and subsequently entered the Militia.

JAMES HERRIES, entered the Scots' College at Douai* at the age of 11 in November 1764.

HERRIES OF BARCLOY.

Barcloy, which like Auchensheen is in the parish of Colvend, was leased from the Crown in the late fifteenth and early sixteenth centuries by the family of Herries of Mabie and was granted by crown charter to Robert Herries of Mabie in 1593 (see the account of the Mabie family, Fourth Series, Vol. V., pp. 79, 82, 84). In later times there were various Herrieses of, or in, Barcloy distinct from the lairds of Mabie, though perhaps cadets of the Mabie family.

John "Herries in Barcloy" was a witness, 23 March 1675, to a sasine (recorded in the Dumfries Register of Sasines 10 May 1675) in favour of William Herries of Flock, and on the 25th March 1675 he acted as bailie at a sasine (recorded in the same Register 5 May 1675) in favour of Margaret and George Herries, wife and son of the same William Herries. "John Heiries in Barclay" was a witness, 2 February 1676, to a marriage contract between John, son of Robert Herries of Barnbarroch, and Janet, daughter of John Herries of Auchensheen (see above in the account of "Herries of Auchensheen").

The testament dative, inventory of goods, etc., of "umquhile John Herries in Barrcloy," who died in January 1686, given up by John Herries, his eldest lawful son, for himself and in name of "Samuell, Harbert, Mary, and Jeane Herriessis, lawful bairns" of the deceased, was confirmed at Dumfries 5 August 1686. Among the deceased's debtors mentioned in the inventory was Robert Herries of

* The entries in the Records of this College and of that at Madrid concerning this James Herries, his father Robert, and his uncle James are as follows:—(1) Douai Diary: 1724, "2 Oct., Robertus Herris, ex patre Joanne de Auchine vel Achinhine [in Gallovidia] et matre Elizabeth Gordon, cum Ernesto Leslie ivit in Hispaniam, inde in Scotiam redux medicinam exercet." 1731, "12 Aug., Jacobus Herris, vulgo Gordon, 15 annorum, frater Roberti, de quo 2 Oct. 1724; brevi abiit in Hispaniam, unde 5 Dec. redux ad grammaticam; ex qua abiit ad militiam." 1734, "5 Dec., Jacobus Gordon, de quo 12 Aug. 1731, redux ex Hispaniâ ad grammaticam; factus miles, alias Haris." 1764, "6 Nov., Venit ex Scotia Jacobus Herries, annorum undecim, filius D. Roberti Herries de Achenshun et Dñœ Joanne Douglas, conjugum Catholicorum." (2) Madrid Register: 1722, "Robertus Herries, ex patre Joanne de Auchencheen prope Minihive et matre Elizabeth Gordon. Ivit cum Ernesto Leslie Matritum. Redux etiam medicinam in Scotia exercuit." 1734, "Joannes [sic] Herries, frater Roberti. Ingressus 1731, venit Duacum 3 Dec. 1734. Factus Locumtenens in militia" ("Records of the Scots' Colleges of Douai, Rome, Madrid," etc., vol. i., pp. 73, 76, 79, 92, 200, printed for the New Spalding Club, 1906). The Douai Diary (ibid., 71) also mentions, 19 November 1721, a William Lindsay, "ex patre Alexandro et matre Herries," who was a few months at the College.

Barnbarroch (for whom see Fourth Series, Vol. V., pp. 300, 301), and among the creditors were Christian and Margaret Herries in "Awchincheane" (see above in the account of the Auchensheen families). The cautioner was John Herries, notary in Dumfries.

The Minute Book of the Register of Deeds of the Dumfries Commissariot (now in the Register House at Edinburgh) mentions a bond, dated 7 April 1688 and registered in December 1689, by John Herries in Barcloy (probably the eldest son named in the confirmation just mentioned of 5 August 1686) to Catherine Herries, relict of John Herries of Mabie (see the account of the Mabie family, Fourth Series, Vol. V., p. 118).

There also appears to have been at this period another set of Herrieses connected with Barcloy, and also with Auchensheen.

By a bond, dated at Dumfries 22 November 1671, John Herries of Mabie bound himself for 1000 merks to infeft Charles Herries in Auchensheen in the parish of Colvend in an annual rent of £40 "furth of his 1 merk land of Barcloy" in the parish of Colvend, reserving to himself a right of redemption. This appears from the registration in the Dumfries Register on 9 December 1671 of the sasine given on the first day of the same month to the same Charles Herries in fulfilment of the bond.

This Charles Herries was perhaps identical with Charles Herries in Milnbank, who had sasine, 1 October 1705, of the lands of Largs in the parish of Urr and stewartry of Kirkcudbright. According to its registration in the Dumfries Register, 7 November 1705, this sasine followed upon a charter of adjudication by William, Earl of Nithsdale, with consent of his mother Lucy Douglas, Countess of Nithsdale, and of his curator, John Maxwell of Brekenside, in favour of the said Charles Herries of these lands, which had been adjudged at the instance of the said Charles, son and heir served and retoured* to the late John Herries in "Barcloyie" and afterwards in Milnbank, on 27 January 1695, from John Brown, eldest son of the late Edward Brown of Nuntoun and apparent heir of line of the late John Herries of Mabie, and also from .... Herries, lawful son of the late .... Herries of Mabie, who was cousin german on the father's side and nearest heir of Taillie to the said late John Herries of Mabie (see the account of the Mabie family, Fourth Series, Vol. V., p. 119, and footnotes to same page), and that in satisfaction to the said Charles of the sum of money contained in the decreet of adjudication, which charter was dated at Terregles 13 January 1697 (John Herries of Bush being a witness), and also at "Butle" 14 January 1699.

John Herries, the father above mentioned of this Charles Herries in Milnbank,† was perhaps the John Herries "in Millbank," who died in May 1675 according to the confirmation at Dumfries, 27 October 1675, of his testament dative, inventory, etc., faithfully made and given up by his relict Margaret Murray and his son Charles, the executors dative decerned to him. Among the debtors named in the inventory was William Herries of Caigtoune.

* "Carolus Herries in Milnbank" was served heir general, 21 February 1691, of "Joannis Herries in Milnbank, patris" (General Retours, No. 7106)

† There was another Charles Herries (unless indeed he was identical with the one above mentioned) connected with Colvend Parish at this period. The Minute Book of the Register of Deeds of the Dumfries Commissariot (now in the Register House, Edinburgh) records that a bond by Charles Herries in Smithland of Colvend to John Maxwell of Barncleugh, dated 8 March, was registered in December 1689, and Halbert Herries in Smithland was served, 22 October 1728, heir special to his father Charles Herries in Smithland, who died in 1712, in a bond for 300 merks over Donnecroft of Auchensheen in the parish of Colvend ("Decennial Indices to Services").

The Family of Boothby.

In the March Number of "Misc. Gen. et Her.," p. 7, was mentioned the fact that from Thomas Bothbye of Marchington, who died 1583 (Probate, Lichfield, 1584), sprang four distinct branches of Boothbys :—

1. The Boothbys of Tooley Park by Peckleton.
2. The Boothbys of Broadlow Ash and Ashbourne, from which the Baronetcy branch descends. (Vide "Misc. Gen. et Her.," June 1914, pp. 40—56.)
3. The Boothbys of Potters Marston, co. Leicester, of which Mrs. Burn-Hartopp, wife of Captain Burn-Hartopp of Little Dalby, is a descendant.
4. The Boothbys of Friday Hill, Chingford.

In this Number is presented a pedigree of the Tooley Park Boothbys, the first owner of which, Thomas Boothby, was a brother of Sir Henry Boothby, 1st Bart., and sons both of William Boothby of London and Judith his wife, afterwards the famous Dame Judith Corbett of Blore, co. Stafford.

This branch of Boothbys ended with the Thomas Boothby, who took the name of Skrymsher in accordance with the will of his maternal grandfather Sir Charles Skrymsher, 1726. His only son Charles Boothby Skrymsher, who in 1792 assumed the name of Clopton, on 12 January 1793 (his mother was a Clopton of New Place, Stratford-on-Avon) entered the pedigrees of Boothby Skrymsher and Clopton in the College of Arms. He died 27 July 1800.

Thomas Boothby, the 3rd, of Tooley Park, appears to have been a great personality in the hunting field.

His death is recorded in the "Gentleman's Magazine," 1752, p. 385, as "one of the greatest huntsmen of England."

The "Sporting Pictorial," 5 November 1907, says of him "that he kept hounds in Leicestershire for 55 years, and was much addicted to Charnwood Forest, which had been one of the royal preserves from the days of William of Normandy. Here he woke the echoes with his silver horn, which is still in the possession of the Davenant family of Shropshire fame."

"An illustration of this instrument appeared in the pages of the "Field," 6 November 1875, together with the record of the legend it bears, which marks bold the statement that, 'with this horn he hunted the first pack of foxhounds then in England 55 years ago.'" Born 1677 ; died 1752.

ERRATA.

"Misc. Gen. et Her.," June 1914.

P. 48, Note 2.—It should read : Hill Brooke, daughter of Sir William Brooke and granddaughter of George Brooke of Cobham Hall, not, as stated, granddaughter of George, Lord Cobham.

George was not Lord Cobham ; he was younger brother of Henry, Lord Cobham, and died in 1603 at Winchester, while his brother Henry, Lord Cobham, did not die till 1619.

P. 49.—The same mistake occurs in the pedigree of Cobham.

P. 48, Note 2.—Lord Borough or Burgh, not Brough.

"Misc. Gen. et Her.," March 1914.

P. 9.—Incorrect the date given, 19 August 1644, of the death of Robert Bothebie of Bradley Ash.

His will was proved 3 May 1644 (P.C.C., Rivers O.W.).

Thomas Boothby (vide "Visitations co. Leicester," K. 2, Tooley Park, p. 176) of Tooley Park, Esq., by Peckleton, co. = Thomas Boothby the 2nd, of Tooley Park (High Sheriff for his County 1667), son of Thomas Boothby and Magdalene his wife; baptized 19 Sep. 1641 at Bredon, by Worthington (vide Chancery Proceedings, 1714—58, 1895); died 11 August 1695 at Kirby Mallory, "Thomas Boothby, Esq^re, of Tooley Park"; buried at Peckleton 1696, "Thomas Boothby, Esq^re, was bur. ye 13 Aug., being Thursday, aged 52." Probate (Leicester) 15 September 1696.

= Elizabeth Mary Faunt, 2nd wife (see opposite).

Thomas Boothby, baptized 1671 at Peckleton: "Thomas, son of Thomas Boothby, Esqre., and Magdalaine, Bap. 17 Aug."; buried 1677 at Peckleton: "Thomas, son of Thomas Boothby, Esqre., bur. 21 Oct. 1677.

Elizabeth Skrymsher, da. of Sir Charles Skrymsher of Norbury, by Newport; baptized at Norbury July 1697; married at Norbury July 1697, "Solemnicat fuit muto Thomas Boothby et Elizabeth Skrymsher, filia Carol Skrymsher"; buried at Peckleton 1704, "Elizabeth, wife of Thomas Boothby, 23 Sept. 1704, aged 28." 1st wife.

= Thomas Boothby the 3rd, of Tooley Park, a great huntsman, as follows: "Thomas Boothby of Tooley Park, Esqre., with this horn he hunted the first pack of foxhounds then in England 55 years; born 1677; died 1752. Now the property of Thomas D'Avenant, Esqre., County of Salop, his grandson." An illustration of this horn appeared in "The Field" of 6 Nov. 1875. Baptized 1680 at Peckleton, Thomas, son of Thomas Boothby, Esqre., and Elizabeth, baptized 3 March; married three times; buried at Peckleton 7 Aug. 1752, "Thomas Boothby, Esqre., was buried 7 Aug. 1752 in the floor of the Church." On the floor of the Church at Peckleton under the tower is a slab with the inscription: "Here lyeth the Body of Thomas Boothby of Tooley Park, Esq^re, who departed this life the 2nd day of Aug. 1752, aged 71." Probate (P.C.C., Bettsworth, Leicester) 26 Nov. 1752. The old Parish Registers go to prove that Thomas Boothby was a benefactor to his Church at Peckleton: (1) He gave handsome rails before the communion table. (2) A handsome slate altar-piece immediately over the communion table, containing the Commandments, which has this inscription, "The gift of Thomas Boothby, Esq^re, 1749." (3) He gave six bells about 40 cwt. in weight. The sixth bell contains the inscription, "Thomas Boothby of Tooley, Esq^re, gave these 6 bells MDCCXIIIII." (4) The communion plate consists of a handsome silver flagon with a top, a silver cup, a silver plate to collect the offerings, and a plated patten. The flagon and cup are each thus inscribed: "Ecclesie parochiale de Peckleton DDD. Thomas Boothby de Tooley, Armiger, A.D. MDCCXIII.

* In both "Notes and Queries," 7 March 1908, and "Visits to Fields of Battle," by Richard Brooke, 1856, he is stated to have restored the ancient monument erected over Blore Heath in 1459, near by Market Drayton. "On this spot was fought the battle of Blore Heath in 1459. Lord Audley, who commanded for the side of Lancaster, was defeated and slain. To perpetuate the memory of the action and the place this ancient monument was repaired in 1765 at the charge of the Lord of the Manor, Charles Boothby Skrymsher."

Reviews.

The History of Calwich Abbey. By MARY TERESA FORTESCUE. Demy 8vo, 220 pages, with 16 Illustrations and 4 Pedigrees. Published by Messrs. Warren and Sons, The Wykeham Press, Winchester, and Messrs. Simpkin and Co., London. 7s. 6d. net.

THIS is a well got-up Work, nicely bound in cloth, and written by the Authoress "in the swaying cabins in the tropics or on a dusty journey across the veldt," and shews a great amount of interesting notes, helped, as she acknowledges, by many friends contributing to the history of the families of the Fleetwoods of Calwich, and for the pedigree of the Fitzherberts to the kindness of Rev. John Cox, and to other friends for the portraits given in the Work.

The Work gives a full account of the conquering Romans. They had found Staffordshire wild and remote, and so they ran a road from their camp at Little Chester, near Derby, and on to Chester. As the writer says, the inhabitants were waiting for the Norman Conquest and the Domesday Records for the light they were seeking for the history of the valley of the Dove. In 1086, Staffordshire lay waste and desolate and the Romans moved with lightning speed, and both Norman and Saxon fell upon the wretched inhabitants, and for thirty years following there was peace.

Thus far the writer takes us, specifying afterwards the Norman Conqueror's favourites, among whom 131 manors were divided. From this early history the writer progresses, and in 1149 a small priory for Black or Augustinian Canons at Calwich was created by Margaret de Bubenton, the wife of Nicholas Fitznigel. Kenilworth Abbey was founded in 1122, and splendidly endowed by the guardian of Margaret. The monks were sent into residence there irrespective of their own wishes, and often as a species of banishment.

Calwich was a little foundation for four Canons, and the Prior was nominated by Kenilworth. Here the Canons lived and laboured for 400 years. Other monasteries were founded in Staffordshire during the century, among them being Croxden Abbey, founded by the Lord of Alton for the Cistercians in 1176. The Reformation in time swept away all traces of Rocester, but remains of Croxden Abbey still exist.

Chapter II. gives an account of the two Norman families of Longford and Verdun, the former suffering with the Fitzherberts for being Catholics, until we come to Nicholas, who died in 1610; he married four times, and his widow sold the Longford estate to Lord Chief Justice Coke, who left it to his younger son, and the estate remains with the descendants of the Langfords. This Chapter ends with an excellent pedigree from Ralph de Toeni, about 1000, down to Clement Coke, who married Sara Reddish and sold Reddish. The estate subsequently was bought by the Cokes in 1808, but Longford being left to Coke's younger son still remained with the descendants of the Longfords.

Calwich was suppressed in 1536, and the Manor and Ellastone Rectory, illustrated by an engraving, passed on to Sir Ralph Langford in 1543, and he seems to have passed away unknown. The new owner of Calwich was John Fleetwood, aged about 30, descended from an old Lancashire family settled in 1344. The family of three sons inherited large properties in different parts of England, and had families from fourteen to eighteen children each, and in 1700 were distinguished as soldiers, courtiers, lawyers, and politicians. He was High Sheriff in 1548-9 and 1567-8.

There is given a good plan of Norbury Church, so long connected with Calwich, and also a folding pedigree of John Fitzherbert of Norbury in 1517 up to William, the 18th Lord of Norbury. After Thomas Fleetwood's death in 1603 his son Richard succeeded to the estates of Ellastone, Wootton, and Calwich. Wootton Lodge has a good plate, and both Calwich and Wootton were engaged in the Civil Wars after an appeal by the king in 1642.

The Fleetwoods of Ireland came to a bad end. The last of them, Charles Fleetwood, gambled away a considerable property, and tried to retrieve his fortune by becoming the lessee of Drury Lane Theatre, but it failed, and he was a ruined man in 1747. He married an actress and had a son, who became an actor, went to India, where he made a fortune. He died in 1784, and his son Charles was the last descendant of the Fleetwoods of Calwich. There is a pedigree given shewing the various branches of the Fleetwood family, and also a map of Calwich in 1714.

The portrait given of Mrs. Delany and Harriett, wife of Rev. John Dewes Granville, as also of him and his son John Granville, also of Bernard Granville of Calwich Abbey, and of Lady Florence Duncombe, the wife of Dean Duncombe, are excellently done, likewise of the Hon. and Rev. Augustus Duncombe, and Captain Alfred Duncombe, of the 1st Life Guards. The Work finishes with two ample pedigrees, one of the Fleetwood families and the other of the Glanvilles.

In our rapid summary of the text of the volume, which is published at the low price of 7s. 6d., we have not drawn attention to the great care the Authoress has taken, both by references throughout to families particularized, as well as adding to each chapter an Appendix. We must not leave out the excellent plates of the Poet Moore's Cottage near Ashbourne, with the authoress's encomium of him as the charm of society about 1813, enumerating his Irish melodies and mentioning how he became enamoured with a very beautiful but penniless girl of 16 whom he met in Ireland as an obscure provincial actress, and what is more she was as good as she was beautiful, and proved all that a poet could wish, particularly now that he had £500 a year from Messrs. Longman for his songs. The account of Moore's life is at once charming and original, and the Authoress's admiration of his young wife and her three babies when she was only 18 is most interesting, and doubly so when told by an authoress. There is also an excellent plate of the residence of the Dean of York and Lady Harriett Duncombe just before the Index to the Work, which is always such an aid to any book.

We feel that we have given a lengthened notice of this Work, which deserves a rapid sale, and which adds so much in the reading that the Authoress needs but the time to favour the world with other works at her leisure, away from "the swaying cabin in the tropics"; she has all the ability to produce succeeding volumes, and with her present Publishers any issue would be welcome.

Revista de Historia y de Genealogia Española. Año III., Nos. 5, 6, 7, 8. Madrid: May, June, and July 1914.

THESE Parts (the last a double one) carry on Papers from previous Parts, and No. 5 gives a portrait of Friar Diego de San Christobal with his biography; the portrait is dated 1576, aged about 62, with arms given of 1790. The Part finishes with Reviews and the usual Notices.

Part 6 for June has several biographical accounts of Mayone families, besides the continuation of genealogical information comprised in the "Inquisition of Valencia." The usual Reviews of Works published and various Notices close the Part.

Parts 7 and 8 consist of 96 pp., and has a facsimile plate in connection with the autographs of Hernan Cortes, dated 1524, and three illustrations shewing architectural arches of Huesca. There is an article on the Village of Roa, and a Paper on the Order of San John of Jerusalem, with a list of the gentlemen from 1400 to 1830. Bibliographia and Notices of Books and other Notices finish the Part.

"A Copy of A Register of S^{t} John's College, communicated to me by the Rev^{d} D^{r} Desham, President of the same, 22 December 1752."

On the original Register in the custody of the President of St. John's College is the following note :—

"May 1st 1695. A Register for S^{t} John's College in the University of Oxon, in pursuance of an Act of Parliament made in the 6th and 7th year of the reign of William the 3rd king, etc., for granting his Majesty certain dutys upon Marriages, Births, and Burialls, and upon Batchelours and Widdowers for the Terme of five years."

N.B.—This MS. copy in the Bodleian Library is all in one handwriting, and entries are sometimes transposed. The names of the officiating clergymen also are spelt in different ways, as if the transcriber had improved in his reading of the original Register, but did not go back and correct the earlier spellings.

The Family of Boothby.*

In this number of "Misc. Gen. et Her." is presented the pedigree of the Boothbys of Marston Hall, Potters Marston, of which branch Mrs. Burn Hartopp of Little Dalby by Melton Mowbray, wife of Captain Burn-Hartopp, is a direct descendant. The Boothby descendants of Marston Hall in the male line ended in 1776 with the death of Thomas Boothby; consequently Edward, the son of his sister Elizabeth, who was married at Marston, vide Barwell Marriage Register, in 1755 to Edward William Hartopp of Little Dalby, became the next heir.

* * * * *

The manor of Potters Marston was bought shortly after 1630 by Dame Judith Corbett, whose 1st husband, vide "Misc. Gen. et Her.," March 1914, p. 8, was William Boothby of Marchington and of London. (Probate P.C.C., 1597; Cobham, 93.) Dame Judith presented the estate of Potters Marsden to their youngest son Richard Boothby.

Adjoining the hall of Marston is a chapel with burying ground and vault closed in with railings.

The inscriptions both from the chapel and burial ground give a greater part of the data to be found in the accompanying pedigree.

* Contributed by Mrs. L. Bazely.

The Registers of Barwell, the parish church to Marston Hall and its chapelry, provide data as well.

* * * * *

Curiously enough, the following interesting fact about the manor of Little Dalby is learned from State Papers, Domestic Series, B.M., James I., 2076—9, 1603 to 1610, p. 115 :—

"Grant to Thomas Boothby (probably of Friday Hill, Chingford) and his heirs of the manor of Little Dalby, co. Leicester, and of pastures in Islington, co. Middlesex, part of the lands of Barth Brookesby attainted 29 May 1604."

Inq. p.m. on Richard Boothby, first Boothby of Marston Hall, Potters Marston, co. Leicester, by Barwell, Croft, and Stoney Stanton.

Chancery Inq. p.m. Charles I., P.M., Vol. 600, No. 121.

Inquisition taken at Leicester 16 Oct. 16 Chas. I. before Thomas Levinge, Esq., the King's Escheator, in co. Leicester by the oaths of the jurors (named), who say on oath that before Richard Boothby's, Esq. death his mother Judith Dame Corbett was seised in demesne as of fee of and in a capital messuage called Marston House in Marston als. Potters Marston in co. Leicester, with all the lands, gardens, etc., thereunto belonging, and the chapel yard there, and of and in Ducketts Closes, the meadows, the Milne closes, the greater Shawe close and the meadow adjoining, the lesser Shawe close, the Cowper's close, and of and in a parcel of land called the Headland and the Balke adjoining a certain close called the Milne Close, and of and in 2 closes in or near the lane leading to Shilton, and of and in the said lane, and of and in all that close called the Mott Marshe, all in the lordship of Marston, and by indenture dated 13 August 6 Charles I. between said Judith and Sir John Fitzherbert, knt., John Curzon, Esq., and John Curzon, gent., on a marriage to take place between said Richard Boothby and Eleanor Curzon, daughter of said John Curzon, Esq., the above premises were settled on the said marriage taking place on said Richard and Eleanor in tail male, in default of any male issue, on the daughters of Richard and Eleanor in tail male, and in default contingent remainders to Thomas Boothby, eldest son of Judith, Robert Boothby, her youngest son, Henry Boothby, her second son, Elizabeth, Countess of Newcastle, Judith's daughter, Katherine, Dame Harpur, Elizabeth, Dame Corbett, daughter of Judith, in tail male ; said Richard and Eleanor were married 14 August in the said year, and entered into the said premises.

They say that before Richard's death said Judith and her sons Thomas and Robert were seised in demesnes as of fee of and in a messuage or farm in Longnor, co. Staff., in the tenure of said Richard and John Fennyhouse, and by indenture dated 13 August 6 Charles I. made between the said Judith, Thomas, and Robert of one part, and Richard Boothby aforesaid, the said premises and lands in Bradley and Lapley were settled on Richard, with remainders as before, and said Richard entered into same. Said Richard died at Potters Marston 15 August 15 Charles I., and William Boothby is his son and heir, and was aged 8 years on 18 October last past. The premises in Marston are held of the King in chief by knight service and are worth £6 a year.

The premises in Longnor, Bradley, and Lapley are held of Lady Stafford, as of her castle of Stafford, in free socage by fealty and payment of a heriott, and are worth yearly 20*s.* Eleanor, late wife of said Richard, survives her husband, living at Marston.

RICHARD BOOTHBY of Marston Hall, Potters Marston, co. Leicester, grandson of Thomas Bothebee of Marchington (vide "Misc. Gen. et Her.," March 1914, p. 8), 4th son of William Boothby of London and Judith née Oesten (vide as above, p. 9); brother to Sir Henry Boothby, 1st Bart. (vide as above, p. 9); brother to Thomas Boothby, the 1st of Tooley Park by Peckleton (vide as above, September 1914, p. 116); baptized 20 June 1596 at St. Lawrence Jewry; died at Potters Marston, co. Dorothy Boothby, married (Barwell Register) 14 Nov. 1717: "John Charlton, gent., of Normanton-on-Soar, co. Nottingham, and Mrs Dorothy Boothby of Marston, co. Leicester, married."
N.B.—The Charltons are now of Chilwell. = John Charlton.

Richard Boothby, son of Thomas and Mary, baptized 12 Dec. 1729 (Barwell Register). In burying-ground outside Marston Chapel enclosed in railings: "Here lyeth the body of Richard, the 3rd son of Thomas Boothby, Esqre., & Mary his wife. He died 23 Nov. 1740. In the 9th year of his age."

Elizabeth Boothby, baptized 9 April 1734 (Barwell Register); married 23 Oct. 1755; died 23 Oct. 1769: direct ancestress of Mrs. Burn-Hartopp of Little Dalby manor, wife of Captain Burn-Hartopp. = Edward William Hartopp, son and heir of Samuel Hartopp of Little Dalby; baptized 14 June 1731 at Little Dalby; married 23 Oct. 1755 Elizabeth Boothby of Marston Hall, Potters Marston (vide Barwell Register); succeeded to the Little Dalby estate on the death of his father in 1752. He died 1773.

Edward Hartopp, born 1758; succeeded to Marston Hall as heir to his uncle Thomas Boothby, who died 1766. On 6 Oct. 1779 commission was issued to Edward, now aged 21, in re his uncle's adm'on.

Elizabeth. Samuel Boothby. Mary.

Herries Notes.*

Herries of Armanoch.

In Wodrow's "History of the Sufferings of the Church of Scotland" (1st ed., ii., 242), it is said that in 1682 "James Harris of Ardmenoch" and John his son, "Men of known Integrity and Usefulness in their Station," were, for refusing to hear the Episcopal Ministers, "after many Ravages committed upon their Houses and Lands, carried Prisoners to Dumfries by Captain Strachan, and kept there till they paid Fifteen Pounds Ten Shillings Sterling Fine."

Richard Herries, described as fourth son of James Herries in Armanoch, had sasine, 22 April 1698 (John Herries in Meikle Cleak being bailie), of the lands of Armanoch in the parish of Kirkgunzeon, regality of Terregles, and stewartry of Kirkcudbright. According to its registration in the Edinburgh General Register, 8 June 1698, this sasine followed upon a charter of resignation in favour of the said Richard by William, Earl of Nithsdale (who reserved a right of redemption), dated at Terregles 14 February 1698, John Herries of Buss† being a witness.

John Herries had sasine 24 January 1724 (John Herries, "lawful son to Herbert Herries in Armanoch," being a witness, and the said Herbert bailie), of the lands of Armanoch. The registration in the Dumfries Particular Register 26 January 1724 shews that the sasine was by virtue of a precept of Clare Constat, dated at Edinburgh 2 October 1723, by the Commissioners and Trustees for the forfeited estates in Scotland recognising the said John Herries as nearest and lawful heir of the late Richard Herries, son of the late James Herries in Armanoch, and describing the lands as having belonged to William, "late Earl of Nithsdale, attainted." The lands are said to be redeemable for 1000 merks "conform to a contract of wadset" between the late John, Lord Herries,‡ and William Herries in Blairshinnock, dated 6 December 1660.

Herries of Flock and Bordland of Colvend.

William Herries "of Flock" had sasine 25 March (registered at Dumfries 10 May) 1675, of all and whole the three merk land of Bordland of Colvend in the parish of Colvend and stewartry of Kirkcudbright, following upon an obligation and corroboration in his favour by William Lindsay of Bonfill, dated 25 March 1675; and the same William Herries "of Flock" made a disposition of the same property in favour of Margaret Herries, his spouse, in life rent, and George Herries, his son,§ in fee, as appears from the registration, 5 May 1675, in the Dumfries Register, of the sasine in their favour of 25 March 1675.

* Contributed by David C. Herries, Esq.—continued from p. 104.

† The testament dative, inventory, etc., of John Herries "of Buss" was confirmed at Dumfries 7 December 1722. These proceedings shew that he died in 1717, and that he was a writer and (as early as 1700) Town Clerk of Dumfries. John Herries of "Bush," probably the same person, was a witness to a charter by the Earl of Nithsdale in favour of Charles Herries in Milnbank in 1697 (see "Misc. Gen. et Her.," Fifth Series, Vol. I., p. 104). On 23 March 1723 Isobel Herries in London, once at Buss, was served heir portioner general to her father William Fingas, Bailie of Dumfries, and to her mother Isobel Johnston or Fingas in Dumfries (Decennial Indices to Services).

‡ John, 7th Lord Herries, succeeded a cousin as 3rd Earl of Nithsdale, etc., in 1667.

§ Mr. M'Kerlie ("Lands and their Owners in Galloway," iii., 274) says that Margaret, spouse to William Herries of Flock, and George Herries, his son, had sasine of Caigton 4 May 1675. William Herries of Caigton (probably therefore identical with William Herries of Flock) served on an inquest at Kirkcudbright 27 January 1674, which found that Roger Gordon was heir to his grandfather John Gordon of Troquhame ("Cal. of Laing Charters belonging to Edinburgh University," Ed. Anderson, No. 2725; see too Kirkcudbright Retours, No. 325, where the land is called Aroquhaine, not Troquhame).

Mr. M'Kerlie ("Lands and their Owners in Galloway," v. 88) says that Sir George Maxwell of Orchardtown married about 1715 Margaret, daughter of .... Blacklock by his wife Barbara, daughter of William Herries in Flock.*

Herries in Mersehead.

Charles Herries in Mersehead had sasine 9 January (registered in the Dumfries Register 18 January) 1725, of the £3 land of Bordland in the parish of Southwick, the 40*s.* land of Bordland in the parish of Colvend, and other lands all in the stewartry of Kirkcudbright by virtue, according to the registration, of the following dispositions: (1) Disposition by William Lindsay of Wadhop to John Murray of Drumstanchell, dated 15 July 1706; (2) Disposition by John Murray to John Murray, eldest lawful son of his second marriage, dated 12 July 1706; (3) Disposition by John Murray to Charles Herries in Mersehead, dated 8 January 1725.

The testament dative, inventory, etc., of Charles Herries "in Mersehead," who died in May 1732, was confirmed at Dumfries 15 March 1736, being given up by Charles and Elizabeth Herries, children and executors dative to the defunct, and by William Raining, merchant in Glasgow, husband to the said Elizabeth and curator to the said Charles.

Herries in College of Lincluden.

The Minute Book of the Register of Deeds of the Dumfries Commissariot (now in the General Register House at Edinburgh) records a renunciation by Isobel Herries, sister to John Herries in College, dated 8 December 1686, and registered in the same month, but the registration is lost.

On 7 August 1713 John Corrie, merchant, in College of Lincluden, Elizabeth† Herries, his spouse, and John Corrie, their only son, had sasine of the lands of Mossop in the parish of Terregles and stewartry of Kirkcudbright, following upon a disposition in their favour by David Brainer of Mossop (who reserved the life rent of a house therein for himself and his daughter Janet Brainer), dated at Dumfries 30 July 1713, as appears from the registration of the sasine at Dumfries 11 September 1713.

Herries in Hopehead.

There was a Robert Herries in Hopehead in 1675 (see "Misc. Gen. et Her.," Fourth Series, Vol. V., 118; and see too "P. C. Reg. Scot.," Third Series, iv., 657).

Testaments, etc., confirmed at Kirkcudbright in 1752 (1 May) and 1783 (27 June) shew that a Robert Herries in Hopehead died in January 1752, and that his executors dative as nearest of kin were William and Elizabeth Herries, his brother and sister german; also that a William Herries in Hopehead, probably identical with the William last mentioned, died in May 1782, leaving a widow Jean Thomson, who became his executrix dative. Among the debtors mentioned in

* Sir Wm. Fraser, in a pedigree of the Maxwells of Orchardtown ("Book of Carlaverock," i., 590), says that Sir George Maxwell of Orchardtown, 5th Bart., married about 1715 as his first wife Margaret Blacklock, but he gives no particulars about this lady's parentage.

† Miss Corrie in her "Records of the Corrie Family" (part i., p. 292), in mentioning this transaction, gives the name of the wife as Isobel Herries. She also (ibid., part i., 272) mentions a tombstone in Terregles Churchyard to the memory of "Isabell" Herries, wife of John Corrie in College, which Isabell died in 1719, aged 66.

the inventory of William Herries's possessions was Ebenezer M'George of Cocklick* (Kirkcudbright Executory Papers: 1752, Bundle 10; 1782, Bundle 9; 1783, Bundle 3).

Corrections to the Pedigree of Herries of Little Culloch.

(See pp. 65, 66.)

The sasine of 8 April 1704 mentioned below, which had not been discovered when this pedigree was drawn up, shews that another generation should be inserted and other corrections made in it.

John Herries of Little Culloch, living in 1648 and 1674 (see p. 66).

William Herries, had sasine of Little Culloch in 1674 (see p. 66).

James Herries, had sasine of Little Culloch with his brother William in 1674 (see p. 66).

James Herries, had sasine of the 2 merk land of Little Culloch in the Barony and Regality of Terregles, the 2 merk land of Little Milntoun in the Barony of Urr, etc., 8 April (registered in the Dumfries Register 2 June) 1704, by virtue of a precept of Clare Constat (dated 6 April 1704) by William, Earl of Nithsdale, in his favour as eldest son and heir of the late William Herries in Culloch; the lands were to be held of the said Earl and to be redeemable by him, those of Little Milntoun for 300 merks in accordance with a wadset (dated 1 December 1658) between John, Lord Herries, with consent of Robert, Master of Herries, the Earl's grandfather, and father, and the late John Herries of Mabie, on the one and the other parts. James Herries died in 1719, having married Margaret, daughter of John M'Jore of Meikle Cocklick (see p. 66).

Elizabeth Herries, wife of William Dod (see p. 66).

John Herries of Little Culloch, was served heir to his father James in 1740, and died before 7 May 1743 (see p. 66).

= Elizabeth Herries, da. and heir portioner with her sister Agnes of John Herries of Little Milntoun (see pp. 65, 66).

* There were some marriages and other transactions between various M'Georges or M'Jores and Herrieses. James Herries of Little Culloch married about 1716 Margaret, daughter of John M'Jore of Meikle Cocklick (see p. 66) and Janet Herries, whose testament was confirmed at Dumfries 14 November 1716, was daughter of John Herries of Laggan, and wife of William M'Jore in Larg (see p. 16, footnote). For some dealings in land between the M'Jores in Larg and the Herrieses of Mabie, see Fourth Series, V., 120.

Lloyd of Cwm Bychan.

The task of connecting two extant pedigrees is one which has often baffled the ingenuity and exhausted the resources of expert genealogists as well as of private individuals; still such a problem always remains attractive, and if eventually solved may prove of material use and interest to many collaterals as well as to direct descendants of the line under examination.

In this memorandum we propose by supplying one name to link together one pedigree which appeared in print 130 years ago, and another which was printed in 1902.

The earlier pedigree we refer to is that of Lloyd of Cwm Bychan as it appears under the head of Cwm Bychan in Pennant's classic work "Tours in Wales," which was published in various editions circa 1780; and the later one appears under a similar heading in vol. x. of a "Visitation of England and Wales," by F. A. Crisp, F.S.A., 1902.

The earlier pedigree names eighteen generations and the later one four more, making altogether twenty-two generations covering approximately a thousand years—a respectable length of time as pedigrees go—and shewing a direct descent in tail male from a Welsh Prince to the present time, with every name except one, which we now supply.

Pennant, on whom we now rely for the earlier pedigree so far as our present purpose is concerned, in giving the pedigree says that his host, "the venerable Evan Llwyd" (=Lloyd), and his fellow traveller, the Rev. John Lloyd, Rector of Caerwys, co. Flint (1733—1793), are "the sons of brothers," but nowhere gives the name of the father of this John Lloyd, who was the progenitor of all the Lloyds in the before-mentioned later pedigree. This we now supply: it was John. This John the elder lived at Llanarmon yn Yale, and his wife was Elizabeth, daughter of John Jones of Gerddi Duon, near Mold. One account says he was Sheriff of Flintshire, but this the writer is doubtful of; he certainly died at Llanarmon yn Yale and was buried there on the 14th of July 1756. Thus we have a complete descent in tail male of twenty-two generations, and the two pedigrees are linked together.

It will be noticed that the earlier pedigree is in simple Biblical (and old Welsh) form, omitting the names of the wives. This omission we cannot now wholly rectify, though on some future occasion we hope to be able to do so. It may be mentioned that the earlier pedigree is corroborated by various authorities, and in old Welsh history and MSS. is carried back to Adam and Eve! or perhaps we had better say to prehistoric times, where we may consider it lost in the haze of antiquity, satisfied for the time being with our period of a thousand years.

If the curious ask for proofs of any of the facts stated, or further information as to the pedigree in Pennant, it can be found in the British Museum or in the very valuable collection of old books and MSS. now forming in the National Library of Wales at Aberystwith. The later pedigree contains intrinsic evidence of genuineness.

The appended record of three marriages and one death brings the record down to the year of grace 1914:—

On Michaelmas Day 1909, at St. Michael's Church, Kirby le Soken, Essex, Ruby Angharad Gertrude Lloyd married (as his second wife) Alfred Ernest Bright of S. Kensington and Melbourne, Australia, eldest son of Charles Edward Bright, C.M.G., and the Hon. Mrs. Bright of Elstree, co. Herts, and has issue two sons.

On Oct. 19th, 1911, at St. Mark's Church, South Audley Street, London, Rosamund Angharad Greaves (née Lloyd) married (as his second wife) Lord Henry George Grosvenor, 3rd son of the 1st Duke of Westminster.

On Aug. 21st, 1912, at St. Michael's Church, Kirby le Soken, Essex, Phyllis Gwenllian Angharad Lloyd married Maurice Leonard Hulbert, B.A. Cantab., only son of Maurice Charles Hulbert, J.P., of Ealing, co. Middlesex, and has issue a daughter.

On the 22nd of November 1903 Henry Meyric Lloyd died at Cholsey, co. Berks, and was buried there on the 26th of November, o.s.p., unmarried.

Heraldic Note.

The coat of arms of Lloyd of Cwm Bychan is remarkable for its antiquity, having been in use unchanged ever since about the year 1100, when it was borne by Cadwgan ap Bleddyn, who died in 1110. Thus it had been in use over 300 years when King Richard III. granted the first charter to the College of Arms.

The arms are: Or, a lion rampant azure, and some of the early authorities add, his tail turned towards his back. This peculiarity, it is understood, was supposed to indicate that the noble animal was of a particularly fierce and ungovernable ferocity! The crest, as used by the last five generations, is: A wyvern vert on a cap of maintenance. Motto: Duw ar fy rhan (God is my portion).

Several generations previous to Cadwgan used the same coat, but with varying metal and tincture, and it may be of interest to note that it is recorded that the great-grandfather of this Cadwgan, one Gwerystan ap Gwaethvoed, who must have been a sort of Heraldic humorist, "put his lion in a surplice." History gives no reason for this eccentricity and we cannot account for it, though the idea occurs to us that it may have been done as a penance to appease Holy Mother Church for cattle lifting on a too outrageous scale! or for some similar breach of mediæval decorum.

This coat appears on the shield of the effigy of Meuric ap Ynyr in Dolgelley Church. He is the seventh in Pennant's genealogy (q.v.) and lived circa 1300. Anian II., Bishop of Llanelwy (St. Asaph), whose effigy is in the Chapter House there, was his uncle (obiit 1292). Burke's "General Armory" gives this coat under three heads, viz., Cadwgan, Lloyd of Caerwys, and Lloyd of Rhyl, possibly unaware that the three represent the same line.

Several quarterings are claimed: we will mention two. The Rev. John Lloyd, in right of his wife Martha, added the coat of Williams, namely: Per pale argent and or, a lion rampant sable, holding in his gambs an oak tree palewise, eradicated proper; and Robert Watkin Lloyd, his son, likewise assumed the arms of Blick, viz.: Sable, on a chevron between three leopards' faces argent as many molets gules.

We do not think that this coat is officially recognized by the College of Arms of the present day, its bearers (with all proper respect to the College) having been content to rely on ancient user and an earlier title than any granted by that body, i.e., on inheritance from Cadwgan ap Bleddyn, which Bleddyn was the Founder of the 3rd Royal Tribe of Wales and Prince of Powys.

John Lloyd of Llanarmon, or his son, added to the coat a crescent "for difference"; and it is believed that a senior branch of the family is now settled in New Zealand, but the old domain in Merionethshire described by Pennant unfortunately passed into other hands about forty years ago.

Sidelights on these pedigrees previous to the year 1800 would be much appreciated.

Llewelyn Lloyd.

Correspondence.

To the Editor of the "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica."

Dear Sir,

In continuation of your notes on the Corsellis Family, I have copied the following notice from "Le Neve's Knights," Harl. Soc. Pub. 1873, relating to the Evance descent :—

"London, Sr Stephen Evance, Goldsmith, knighted at Kensington 14 Octobr 1690; he failed in the world, & shott himself in the temple; dyed unmar. being no longer able to keep shop, but afterwards, when his debts were cast up, there remained, after all his creditors were paid, a good estate, which came to his niece Hester, wife of Sir Cæsar Child, baronet, as I was credibly informed. See Evance of Treveleth, Salop. Sr Will. Dugdale's Visit.

* Communicated by A. S. Lewis, Esq.

.... Evance of New England in America.=

Hester, daughter & sole heir of John & neice & heir of her unkle; married to Sir Cæsar Child of Essex; liveing at Cleybury in Berking parish 1718."

Can any of your readers give the connecting links between the Visitation of Salop, 1623, and the above .... Evance of New England?

With regard to another point. In your October notes on the Corsellises you state (p. 109) that on June 10, 1568, Mychaell Corselous alias GRIFFIN, stranger, and Jocosa Vantpene, stranger, dwelling in St. Magnus parish, were married at St. Benet Fink. Now I find in Col. Chester's "London Marriage Licences" (published by Foster 1887) that Michael Curselis alias GOFFIN, merchant, and Joyce Vantexen of St. Magnus, London, spinster, had a general licence, June 4, 1568 B, to marry. This evidently relates to the same persons. Now which is the correct reading? Simply as guess work, in the one point it would seem that "alias Griffin" is more probable than "alias Goffin," and if it is so, I think it is a reasonable suggestion that the alias came from the Griffin sign which may have marked his place of business in the City, and which he may have adopted from his Flemish coat of arms; or which, on the other hand, may only have been used, so to speak, by chance, but which might in its turn have suggested the Griffin coat of arms used by his English descendants? Perhaps some expert in Flemish heraldry can help us?

I am, Faithfully yours,

Sion Hill House, near Kidderminster. THOS. A. C. ATTWOOD, F.S.A.

Kent Records. Vol. III. Sede Vacante Wills: A Calendar of Wills proved before the Commissary of the Prior and Chapter of Christ Church, Canterbury, during vacancies in the Primacy, with an Appendix, containing Transcripts of Archiepiscopal and other Wills of importance.

THIS is a fresh Volume of the Kent Records issued by the Records Branch of the Kent Archæological Society, and edited by the Rev. C. Eveleigh Woodruff, M.A.

The Volume commences with an Introduction to the Sede Vacante Wills, in which a resumé of the more important wills is given, including Winchelsey's made at Oxford, and Archbishop Reynolds, giving instructions for his burial near Winchelsey's tomb. Archbishop Stratford's bequest of his new mitre and cope embroidered with gold thread and pearls, with other valuable vestments, to the Cathedrals of Winchester and Lincoln; also to Prince Edward the Black Prince his missal and carved ivory and mother of pearl ornaments. Archbishop Islip left a thousand ewes besides Church ornaments to the Cathedral Church, and Wittlesey, Simon of Ledbury, Thomas Arundel, all left bequests of books and vestments to the Cathedral Church. Other Archbishops' wills are mentioned, including Dene's, and various Bishops, and likewise those of Thomas Langton and Edward Storey of Chichester, and John Buckingham of Lincoln, Buckingham of Canterbury, Philip de Turvile of Lichfield, and others, all making the Introduction valuable reading.

The Calendar of Wills is next given from 1500 of upwards of 1000 intestate persons, with an Index of Parishes, followed by the Appendix of Copies of Wills from A.D. 997, making nearly 100 pp. The volume concludes with a List of Subscribers, and is neatly bound in blue cloth,

The Titled Nobility of Europe. An International Peerage of "Who's Who" of the Sovereigns, Princes, and Nobles of Europe. Compiled and edited by the MARQUIS OF RUVIGNY, 1914. London: Harrison and Sons, 45 Pall Mall, S.W. £2 2*s.* net, cloth gilt.

THIS is a most acceptable Work of Reference for those interested in genealogy. Within its pages are found the existing titles of nobility in Europe with a biographical account of all the living titled members of each family. The first Part contains an account of all the European Sovereigns and of the members of the various Royal and Sovereign Houses with illustrations of their arms. The second Part deals with the mediatized Princely Houses and with the titles of nobility of each country.

We are glad to note that the Author and Publishers wish it to be distinctly understood that the insertion of any family is not in any way dependent upon the payment of any fee or of subscription to the book, and that no fee or condition has been or will be accepted for the insertion or exclusion of any name. All families will be dealt with in one uniform manner, the end in view being to produce an annual Work of Reference at once complete, reliable, and authentic.

There is much work in store for the Editor in the issue of the next volume, and we trust that the present one will receive the support which it deserves as a reward for the Editor's thoroughness.

A Genealogical and Heraldic History of the Landed Gentry of Great Britain. By SIR BERNARD BURKE, Ulster King of Arms. Illustrated with nearly 2000 Coats of Arms. Revised by A. C. FOX-DAVIES, Barrister-at-Law. 12th Edition, 1914. London; Harrison and Sons, 45 Pall Mall, S.W. £2 12*s.* 6*d.* net, cloth gilt.

THIS Work treats of the untitled aristocracy of this country as Burke's "Peerage" deals with the titled classes.

The last issue appeared eight years ago, and the constant change of ownership is at the present time very marked. The Editor observes that "the vicious and crushing burden of the taxation levied upon the land, dictated by a hatred of the landowner rather than by the necessities of Imperial finance, and the nightmare of the death duties, have converted the holding of land from an investment into a luxury to be maintained from extraneous sources. One by one our ancient families, whose sole resources have been from the land, are squeezed out of their ownership, and their places in the country are taken through lease or purchase by a new class."

An Addenda, together with those alterations which it has been possible to make in the body of the work, brings Burke's "Landed Gentry" up to 31 August 1914. None of the War Casualty Lists since published are included, though the bulk of the names of officers appears either in the "Peerage" or the "Landed Gentry."

After such a lapse of time since the 11th Edition appeared, this volume should be much sought after, and we wish it every success.

Debrett's Peerage, Baronetage, Knightage, and Companionage, 202nd Year, 1915. Royal octavo. illustrated with Armorial Bearings. Edited by ARTHUR G. M. HESILRIGE. London: Dean and Son, Ltd., 160 A Fleet Street, E.C. £1 11*s.* 6*d.* net, cloth.

THE Publisher claims that almost every page of the book reflects the effect of the war, for hundreds of both titled and untitled names familiar in "Debrett's" have appeared in the casualty lists, while the normal descent of many and many an hereditary dignity has been changed by the death in action of either the actual holder of the title or of the immediate heir, while thousands of naval and military appointments and promotions contained in these 900 pages of Gazette notices have been dealt with. The volume contains the names of all officers announced on December 2 as appointed D.S.O.

In addition to the recently issued official Roll of Baronets and many other interesting points, the issue of Privy Councillors' and Knights' widows, as well as the phonetic spelling of titles and names, have been included as new features in the volume.

We welcome this indispensable volume, and congratulate the Editor on the result of his labours and the Publisher on the admirable get-up of the volume, which appears in a new emblazoned cover.

* These members of the family re-adopted circa 1910 the former spelling of the name.

Pedigree of Henderson of Broadholm, Dumfriesshire.*

There were Hendersons in Dumfriesshire from an early period, the first to be styled "of Broadholm" that the writer has discovered was—

I. Robert Henderson, who was living on 11th January 1676, when John Irving of Whitehill entered into a bond of caution that William Murray of "Morriwhat" and others would not molest "Robert Hendersone of Bredholme, William Hendersone, his son," and others (P.C. Reg. Scot., 3rd Ser., iv., 666).

II. William Henderson of Broadholm was named as son of Robert in the above mentioned bond in 1676. Sir Richard Broun (of whom presently) in a letter (penes R. S. Herries, Esq., of St. Julians, Sevenoaks) to the Rt. Hon. J. C. Herries (see "Misc. Gen. et Her.," 4th Ser., V., 41), dated 7 February 1851, says "Your [Mr. Herries's] grandmother Catherine Henderson and my grandfather Robert Henderson were full cousins, their fathers being brothers . . . sons of William Henderson of Broadholm, . . Your late uncle Sir Robert Herries . . . married his cousin Grace Henderson, a second cousin of my mother," etc. William Henderson had issue, as far as has been discovered, two sons:

1. John, of Broadholm, of whom later (No. III.).
2. William, of Cleughheads. He died before 1 November 1746, and left a son by his wife Elizabeth, sister of Mr. David Wightman, Minister of Applegarth, Dumfriesshire, 1706—1748 (for whom see Dr. H. Scott's "Fasti," i., pt. ii., 598, 643)—

   Robert, who was served (1), 1st November 1746, as a "writer in Lochmaben," heir general to his "Father William Henderson of Clougheads"; (2) 19 August 1767, as "of Cleughheads," heir general to his "Uncle David Wightman, Minister at Applegarth"; (3) 25 May 1769, as "of Penlaw," heir general to his "Mother Elizabeth Wightman, Widow of Wm. Henderson of Cleughheads" (Decennial Indexes to Services). He assumed the name of Wightman and died before 9 April 1810, leaving by his wife Janet Carruthers of Whitecroft, who died 9 June 1805,† the following (and probably other) children—

   1. (a) William David Henderson Wightman, who as "of Cleughhead" was served (1), 13 April 1810, heir of line and provision special in Denbie in the parish of Meikle Dalton, Dumfriesshire, to his "Mother Janet Carruthers of Whitecroft (wife of Robert Henderson Wightman of Cleughhead), who died 9 June 1805"; (2), 9 April 1810, heir of line and provision general to his "Father Robert Henderson

* Contributed by David C. Herries, Esq.

† Grace, Lady Douglas-Johnstone of Kelhead (to be presently mentioned in this pedigree) in a letter (penes the present writer) dated "Balgray," 19 July 1805, to her cousin Colonel Charles Herries (younger brother of Sir Robert Herries mentioned in this pedigree; see too "Misc. Gen. et. Her.," 4th Ser., V., 40) says, "You would hear that Mr. Henderson, Whitcroft, has lost his wife. He is wonderfully well but very deaf."

Wightman of Cleughheads" (Decennial Indexes to Services). Whether he married or left issue the writer has not discovered.

2. (b) Marion. According to Burke's "Peerage" (1913, title Broun) she was the "eldest daughter" and died in 1825, having been married in 1798 to James Broun. He assumed the long unclaimed baronetcy of Broun of Colston, after having been served as "of Mayfield, Captain," heir male general to his "Cousin Sir Alexander Broun," 12 January 1826 (Decennial Indexes to Services). For this title and his rights thereto see Foster's "Baronetage," 1882, p. 682, and the Authorities there cited. By his first wife Marion Henderson he left at his death in 1844, with other issue, a son—

Sir Richard Broun, who died in 1858 (see "Dict. Nat. Biog."). He was the writer of the above mentioned letter in 1851 (see the account of William Henderson of Broadholm, No. II.).

III. JOHN HENDERSON of Broadholm.* His testament dative, inventory, etc., as of "Mr. John Henderson of Broadholm," was confirmed at Dumfries, 21 December 1744. In an "eik" to the same confirmed at Dumfries, 18 March 1747, the date of his death is given as the 21st December 1743. The inventory contains a list of his books, which were mostly of a learned nature, classical, theological, legal and historical, indicating on his part (if he himself collected this library) a more studious disposition than was common among the border lairds or even ministers of that period, if the account of his trip in Dumfriesshire in 1733 given by the Rev. Dr. Alexander Carlyle in his "Autobiography" may be trusted.

Mr. John Henderson married Grace or Grissel Young. As Grace Young, "Wife of John Henderson of Broadholm," she was served heir general to her "Father James Young of Broomrig," in Nithsdale, 26 January 1703 (Decennial Indexes to Services). In February 1706, as Grissel Young, she "with her Husband," brought a successful process against the sons of "Provost Craick" for redeeming a house in Dumfries disponed by her father "James Young of Broomridge" to the father of the defenders in 1675 (Morison's "Decisions of the Court of Session," 7210). For her pedigree see Mr. H. B. M'Call's "Some old Families" (pp. 263—281). Mr. John Henderson had issue—

1. JOHN, of Broadholm, of whom later (No. IV.).
2. Katherine. According to a mourning ring and her tombstone in Dryfesdale Old Churchyard, near Lockerbie, she died 8 February, 1768, in her 61st year. By her husband, William Herries of Halldykes, near Lockerbie (for whom see "Misc. Gen. et. Her.," 4th Ser., IV., 304), she had with other issue† (see ibid., 378; V. 40), an eldest son—

Sir Robert Herries (for whom see ibid., 4th Ser., IV., 380). He

* During the Jacobite Rebellion of 1715 Sir William Johnstone of Westerhall sent "seventeen Stand of Arms" for the use of his Militia "to Brado-Chapel, about half a Mile from Lochmaben, to be lodg'd in the House of Mr. John Henderson of Bradeholm, till he had Occasion for them. But some Jacobite Gentlemen, with the Lord Viscount Kenmure and Earl of Carnwath, who were drawn together the Night before at a Gentleman's House not far from thence, being advised of these Arms, came up that Morning [12 October 1715] and seiz'd them" (Peter Rae's "Hist. of the late Rebellion," 2nd ed., 250).

† William Herries, her third son, in the matriculation of his arms in the Lyon Register (28 May 1789) is described as brother of Sir Robert and third son of "William Herries of Halldykes by his lady, Katherine, eldest daughter of John Henderson of Broadholme" (see "Misc. Gen. et Her.," 4th Ser., IV., 301.)

married as his first wife his cousin Grace, daughter of his maternal uncle John Henderson, as will appear presently.

3. Grace. She was married to William Johnstone of Lockerbie, Dumfriesshire." "William Herries . . . married Catherine Henderson, one of the daughters of Henderson of Broadholm and Newmains. Her sister was married to the Laird of Lockerbie, and was thus the mother of the late Lady Douglas Johnstone. Both of these ladies are said to have been superior women, gifted with rare goodness, and exhibiting in their lives an admirable example of every womanly virtue." (Paper on Dryfesdale Churchyard in the "Annandale Herald," 4 October 1862.)* William Johnstone and his wife Grace had, with other issue†, an elder daughter and coheir—

Grace Johnstone. She was married "at Edinburgh," 11 March 1772, to "William Douglas, Esq., of Breckonwhat" ("Scots Magazine," xxxiv., 165), who succeeded to the family estates and title on the death in 1778 of his father Sir John Douglas of Kelhead, 3rd Bart. Sir William Douglas, sometime M.P. for the Dumfries Burghs, died at "his house of Charlesfield," 16 May 1783 (Ibid., xlv., 280). His widow "Dame Grace Douglas Johnstone of Locherby" died "at Glen Stuart in her 93rd year," 25 March 1836 ("Gentleman's Magazine," 1836, Jan.—June, 678), leaving with other issue (see the "Scots Peerage," ed. Sir J. B. Paul, vii., 151), an eldest son—

Charles Douglas. He succeeded his father in the baronetcy, and on the death of his kinsman William (Douglas), 4th Duke and Marquess of Queensberry, became in 1810 5th Marquess of Queensberry. He died leaving no male issue in 1837 and was succeeded in all his honours by his brother John.

IV. John Henderson as "of Broadholm" was served (3rd September 1745) heir special in the lands of "Broadholm, Prestdykes, Broadchapel,‡ Mosside, Longridge, Sandbed, Lochside, Browncloss, etc." to his "Father John Henderson of Broadholm, who died — December 1743" (Decennial Indexes to Services). The evidence furnished by a legal case decided on 4 January 1757 shews that this "John Henderson of Broadholm" was educated as a writer, and that in August 1742 he was living in Dumfriesshire "as a country gentleman" and acting as "factor to the Marquis of Annandale" (Morison's "Decisions of the Court of Session," 3527). He sold Broadholm in 1751 to Robert Herries (for whom see "Misc. Gen. et Her.," 4th Ser., IV., 304-5), a younger brother of his brother-in-law William Herries above mentioned. He died before 11 March 1756 (see the account of his son).

He married Grace or Grizel Maxwell. Burke ("Peerage," 1913, title Maxwell of Springkell) calls her Grace, but the "Scots Magazine" (l. 259) announces her death, on 19 May 1788, thus—"At Dumfries at a very advanced age, Grizel

* Reprinted with other papers at Lockerbie (D. Halliday, High Street, 1865) under the title "Dryfesdale Old Churchyard and Excursions round Lockerbie."

† Catherine, youngest daughter and coheir of the "late William Johnstone, Esq., of Lockerby," was married 27 October 1795 "at Kelhead" ("Scots Magazine," lvii., 682) to Major (afterwards Lieut.-Colonel) William Douglas as his first wife. He was eldest son of David Douglas, a younger son of Sir William Douglas of Kelhead, 2nd (not 3rd as stated by Wood) Bart. He died in 1831 leaving issue by his first wife (see Douglas's "Peerage," ed. Wood, ii., 387; Burke's "Peerage," 1863, title Queensberry). Lady Douglas-Johnstone in the letter already quoted from (see the 1st footnote) mentions a sister "Susie, who is generally with me."

‡ "Newmains or Broadchapel" is shewn in the one inch Ordnance Map, about half-a-mile S.W. from Lochmaben. The Hendersons of Broadholm were sometimes styled "of Newmains." For Broadchapel see also the second footnote to this paper.

Maxwell, widow of the late John Henderson, Esq. of Broadholm, and daughter of the deceased Sir Patrick Maxwell of Springkell," Dumfriesshire, 1st Bart. By her John Henderson had issue—

1. GEORGE, of whom below (No. V.).
2. Grace. She died without issue, 10 January, 1773, aged 36, according to a mourning ring (see too the letter of Sir Richard Broun quoted in the account of William Henderson of Broadholm, No. II.), having been married as his first wife to her cousin the above mentioned Sir Robert Herries (knighted in 1774 after her death), eldest son of her aunt Katherine Henderson, Mrs. Herries of Halldykes.

V. GEORGE HENDERSON. A legal case was decided on 11 March 1756 as to what was to be done in the following circumstances. By the terms of the marriage contract between Robert, 6th Earl of Carnwath, and his fourth wife Margaret Vincent (they were married in 1735) certain sums of money were vested for purposes described in the contract in trustees (of whom "John Henderson, younger, of Broadholm" was one) and the survivor of them and the heirs and assignees of the survivor. "Henderson of Broadholm, the last survivor" of these trustees died leaving "an only son George, an infant incapable of performing the trust" (Morison's "Decisions of the Court of Session," 16,204, where the solution of the problem will be found). Sir William Forbes of Pitsligo, a partner in business of the above mentioned Sir Robert Herries, says ("Memoirs of a Banking House," 27) that the latter in 1771 admitted to partnership with himself in certain businesses "George Henderson, Mrs. Herries's brother, who had been originally bred a writer at Edinburgh, but on his sister's marriage had become a protégé of Mr. Herries." When George Henderson died, or whether he married or left issue, the present writer has not discovered.

[1] Isaac Roberdeau and John Baptist Roberdeau received letters of denization 11 March 12 William III. (1700). In the same year, on the 25th November, there were married, at the Savoy Church, Isaac Robardeau [sic] of St. Anne's, Blackfriars, "Horloger," and Catherine Marchant. They were presumably, though this remains unproven, the parents of the Isaac who heads the pedigree. On the 21st October 1708 is recorded in the Register of St. Mary Magdalen, Fish Street, the marriage of Isaac Robardeau [sic] of St. Martin's, and Margaret Paillet (entered as Pillot) of St. Botolph's, Aldgate.

John Chauvel, London Merchant, of St. Botolph's, Bishopsgate, in his will of 1741, proved in 1747, names his nieces Louise Roberdeau, Frances Marchant, Susanna wife of David Le Quesne, and his deceased niece Susanna Triquet's son, John Peter Triquet, names which reappear among the Sponsors recorded above. And Henry Jonquier, in his will of 1747, names Isaac Roberdeau of Cox's Square, and the elder Mr. Marchant, his uncle.

[2] Elizabeth Roberdeau's godmother was Elizabeth Auriol (1731—1799), younger sister to Henrietta Auriol, wife of the Hon. Robert Hay Drummond, Archbishop of York, whose eldest son succeeded as 9th Earl Kinnoul. These ladies were daughters of Peter Auriol, a London and Lisbon merchant, who was cousin-german to James Auriol, a refugee from Castres, whose son, James Peter Auriol, became in 1780 a Director of the French Hospital.

The Roberdeaus of Philadelphia, U.S.A., also claim to derive from an Isaac Roberdeau, stated to have been a refugee from La Rochelle, who settled in St. Christopher's, W.I., where he married Mary, 4th child of Robert Cunyngham of that island, and Judith Elizabeth, da. of Daniel de Bonneson and Marie de Barat of Morlaix, France. Cf. the Genealogy of the Roberdeau Family, privately printed by Roberdeau Buchanan at Washington in 1876, which is to be found in the British Museum library. The name appears in the St. Mary Cayan Register, given in Mr. V. L. Oliver's "Caribbeana," vol. i., pp. 40, 41, as Roberdraw.

The Family of Boothby.*

BOOTHBYS OF FRIDAY HILL, CHINGFORD.

Thomas Boothby, merchant, of London, and of Friday Hill, Chingford, from whom this branch springs, was the youngest son of Thomas Boothby of Marchington (probate, Lichfield, 1584), brother to William Boothby (probate 1597, P.C.C., Cobham, 73), and uncle to Sir Henry Boothby, 1st Bart. (probate 1649, P.C.C., Fairfax, 20). Vide "Misc. Gen. et Her.," ante pp. 8 and 9.

An inscription, which is given below, from a marble tablet on the north wall of the chancel of the old Church, Chingford, states that Thomas Boothby the ancestor purchased properties at Chingford in 1608, presumably Friday Hill among them.

This Thomas Boothby mentions Friday Hill by name in his will, dated 31 Aug. 1623 (probate, P.C.C., Clarke, 114, 28 Oct. 1625), leaving to his son Robert "all my wainscotting in all the several rooms of my dwelling House called Friday Hill."

ABSTRACTS OF WILLS.

Thomas Botheby, the eldest, citizen and merchant of London.

Will dated 31 August 20 Jas. I. (P.C.C., Clarke, 114.)

I desire to be buried in the parish church of St. Antholin's, London (where I now dwell), near the graves of my two wives, Elizabeth and Ann. One half my goods I give to my children William, Richard, Walter, Elizabeth, Mary and Martha, to be equally divided among them. I bequeath to the poor children of Christ's Hospital, London, £13 6*s.* 8*d.*; to St. Bartholomew's Hospital £6 13*s.* 4*d.*; and to other poor in London. To poor of Chingford £5 4*s.* a year to be paid out of the tenement bought of M^r^ Richard Butterfield, where Anthony Perren dwelt and where James Tholland now dwells. My nephew Thomas Botheby of Marchington owes me a great deal of money, which I doubt his being able to pay, I forgive him £100 of it. To his three brothers, Robert, William and Walter Botheby £10 each. Whereas their father, my brother, Richard Botheby owed me a great deal of money and which his sons, being executors, should have paid but did not, which I took unkindly, I now let them off the same. To his daughter Ellen, whose husband's name I know not, £6 13*s.* 4*d.* To Richard Botheby, son of my late brother Robert, £20. To his three sisters, Joyce Dade, Elizabeth Weatherall and Margery Mors, £5 each. To Thomas Gilbert, son of my sister, £10. To his four sisters, Ann Cocke, Dorothy Holmes, Margaret Byrd and Sara Parkins, £6 13*s.* 4*d.* each. To the children of my late sister Porter £6 13*s.* 4*d.* each. To the children of my sister Boulton £6 13*s.* 4*d.* each. To my nephew Botheby Hurt £50. To Thomas, Henry, Richard and Robert, and Elizabeth, Lady Corbett, children of my late brother William, £50 each. To my son-in-law Thomas Grafton £100, and whereas I stand bound for my son-in-law M^r^ Richard Grafton, to Lady Pell in the place of her former husband M^r^ Alderman

Ratherann, £100 less the sum I pay her. To my daughter-in-law Margaret Livesay £200 towards her marriage. To her daughter Ann Livesay £50 at her age of 21. To the four children of my late daughter Ann Bedell £300 at their ages of 21. To the six children of my daughter Elizabeth Stiles £50 each at their ages of 21. To the five children of my daughter Mary Edmons £50 each at their ages of 21. To the three children of my daughter Martha Flyer £50 each at their ages of 21. To the child of Mary, wife of my son Robert Botheby, £100 at the age of 21. To my cousins John Dade, Thomas Wetherall, Thomas Mors, and Roger Grimes, a ring each. To my cousin *Martin Botheby £5 for a piece of plate with my arms thereon. To the Merchant Tailors' Company a cup with my arms. To Martin Billingsley £5. Small money legacies to Roger Jackson, John Spiller, Ephraim Thorne, servants Anne Smith and Mirable Latham, Kath. Berry; servants Wm. Barrett, Wm. Noone, John Lake, and John Blisdall; Mr Marlinge, preacher of Chinckford, Dr Whiteinge; my sisters Wilson and Mary Morgan; Lawrence Wood of Chinckford; my sister Lady Judith Corbet; friend Mr Alderman Pyott's wife; sister Mr Alderman Stiles wife; friend Mr Thomas Johnson, merchant tailor. To my son Robert Botheby £100 and all my wainscotting in all the rooms of my house called Friday Hill house. To my son Walter the furniture in my London house. To my son Thomas £100 (merchant in Spain). To my son William £500 out of my adventure into Spain, and a further £300. To the making of a causeway from Chinkford Hatch to Woodford, and in the needful places from Woodford to Epping, and a causeway from Woodford Ch. to Leyton Causeway £100. I have already conveyed all my lands to my four sons, Robert, William, Richard and Walter. Executors, my son-in-law Mathew Bedell of London, Esq., and my sons Richard and Walter. Overseers, son Robert and sons-in-law Humphrey Stiles, Symon Edmons and Francis Flyer.

Signed 2 Dec. 1623 by Thomas Botheby.

Gen. et Her.," p. 179, "William, younger son of Robert, brother to Sir Thomas Boothby, 1st Bart., uncle to Sir Thomas, 2nd Bart." Dates of death and Probate so far not traced, unless possibly the Adm'ons of 6 Dec. 1678 and 10 Dec. 1679 relate to him and not to another William. William, alive in 1674-5 (vide the codicil of his sister-in-law Elizabeth 29 Feb. 1674-5). Streatfield's Collection, B.M. Add. MS. 33,915, states there is an entry in the Burial Register at Westerham, County Kent, of the burial July 1676 of "William Boothby, Esq., buried."

= Maiden name, so far not traced, unless she was a dau. of Herbert Aubrey, Esq., of the Black , Hereford. William's marriage, according to the marriage licence of their son Robert Boothby to Sarah Jackson 21 Sep. 1689, as below, must have taken place in 1660.

HENRY BOOTHBY of Weston, born about 1630. No trace of Probate to be found. Is mentioned in his uncle Richard's will (P.C.C., Coke, 155). Date of writing 24 Nov. 1669. Also mentioned in the wills of his brothers George and Robert. Henry and his brother William had a moiety left them by their father of the manor of Weston, Shere, Surrey. In 1660 Henry sold his share to William.

ROBERT BOOTHBY of Friday Hill and Chigwell. Vide inscription on the tablet to Frances Charnock, née Boothby, in 1808, "Robert son of William." Born, according to marriage licence, in 1661, being 28 years old on 21 Sep. 1689; burial tablet also confirms date of birth; died 1 Dec. 1733, aged 72. In "Gentleman's Magazine," p. 162, Mr. Robert Boothby died at Chigwell, co. Essex, 2 Dec. 1733. Burial at Chingford Churchyard. On the south side of a cenotaph in the churchyard is inscribed : "In this Vault are deposited the remains of Robert Boothby, Esq., of Friday Hill in this parish, who departed this life Dec. the 1^st^ 1733, aged 72. Also Thomas Boothby, Esq., his only son, who died May 18, 1735, aged 39." Probate (P.C.C., Price, 306) 20 Dec. 1733. Dated 2 Aug. 1733. "To be buried next my wife in Chingford Churchyard," Donations to the poor in Chingford and to the poor of Little Dalby, co. Leicester. Legacies to my cousin William Boothby of London, and to his brother George. (These were from Potters Marston, and buried at Chingford.) Vide "Misc. Gen. et Her.," ante p. 132. Residuary legatee and executor my only son Thomas Boothby, Esq.

= SARAH JACKSON, dau. of Samuel Jackson of Bricher, co. Lincoln. Vide marriage licence, Faculty Office, "Robert Boothby, Bach., aged 28, and Sarah Jackson, spinster, at her own disposal at St. Bartholomew the Great, London, 21 Sep. 1689."

THOMAS BOOTHBY of Friday Hill, "only son," born 1696, dying 1735, "aged 39"; married 25 Nov. 1731; died 28 May 1735; buried in Chingford Churchyard. "In this Vault are deposited the remains of Thomas Boothby, Esq., his only son, who died 28 May 1735, aged 39." Adm'on 6 June 1735 issued to Frances Boothby, widow, relict of Thomas Boothby, Esq., late of Chingford, co. Essex, Esq. 1st husband.

= FRANCES WORTHINGTON, born 1712; married 25 Nov. 1731 (vide marriage licence at St. John's Church, Hackney. Vide Historical Register 25 Nov. 1731 : Mr. Boothby of Friday Hill to Miss Worthington of Stamford Hill, co. Middlesex. Died 9 Jan. 1804, aged 92 (vide inscription on back of cenotaph, north side, in Chingford Churchyard).

= Benjamin Moyer. He died 20 May 1759; buried at Leyton. 2nd husband.

SARAH BOOTHBY, born about 1697. Cannot trace anything further of her.

Adm'on, fo. 31, 17 Feb. 1733-4 issued to Thomas Boothby, Esq., executor, named in the last will of Robert Boothby, deceased, whilst living, and next of kin of Elizabeth Boothby, late of Chingford.

WILLIAM BOOTHBY. Query If the William Boothby to whom the Adm'on of 10 Dec. 1679 was issued, son of William and Anne Boothby, late of Shere, co. Surrey, and of Albury, co. Surrey, who died 1678, Adm'on 6 Dec. 1678, was the son of the William Boothby of Weston, who, according to the will of his brother Sir Thomas Boothby, 1st Bart., succeeded to the lands and property on the death of Sir Thomas, 2nd Bart., son of the said Sir Thomas 1st Bart. Then he must have predeceased his brother the Robert Boothby of Friday Hill, who died in 1733. aged 72. Vide will of Richard Boothby. Probate (P.C.C., Coke, 155) 22 Dec. 1669. "To my godson William Boothby, son of William Boothby of Weston, co. Surrey, gent., £20 at his age of 21." Streatfield's Collection, B.M. Add. MS. 33,915, states there is an entry in the Burial Register, Westerham, co. Kent, of a "William Boothby, Esq., buried July 1676."

THOMAS BOOTHBY of Friday Hill. 1st husband (see p. 192) = FRANCES WORTHINGTON.

ROBERT BOOTHBY of Friday Hill, "only son," born about 1730; Captain of the Troop of Horseguards 24 June 1768; first apparent entry of name in Army List in 1765; died 11 Oct. 1774, aged 41; buried in Chingford Church. At the back of the cenotaph, north side: "In this vault are deposited the remains of Robert Boothby, Esq., of Friday Hill in this parish, only son of Thomas Boothby, Esq., who departed this life 11 October 1774, aged 41." Probate (P.C.C., Bargrave, 360) 13 Oct. 1774. Date of writing 30 Aug. 1774. "I now reside with my mother at Layton, co. Essex. I desire to be buried in my family vault Chingford Church. My manor of Chingford & lands, etc. there, I bequeathe to said Lydia Heathcote & her heirs for ever. All my real estate in Co^{s} Leicester & Lincoln to the said Catherine Moyer & her heirs for ever." By this will the Boothby property passed over Robert Boothby's own sister Frances Boothby to his step sisters Lydia and Catherine Moyer. The former, Lydia, married John Heathcote.

FRANCES BOOTHBY, born about 1734; "only sister of Robert Boothby" (vide inscription on tablet in chancel of Old Chingford Church; died 3 Dec. 1808, aged 73.

Correspondence.

To the Editor, "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica."

Sir,

Volume II., Series V., p. 95, gives three Knight monumental inscriptions, that of William Knight, doubtless owing to the stone being worn, incorrectly. The following extracts will enable corrections to be made :—

"Gentleman's Magazine," 1811, p. 499.

"1811, 26 Apl. At Folkestone, Kent, aged 55, Mr. William Knight, surgeon and apothecary and Captain of the Folkestone Bombardiers."

"Kentish Chronicle" (Canterbury), 30 April 1811.

"Died

On Friday evening Apr. 26 at Folkestone, aged 55 years, Mr. Wm: Knight, Surgeon, one of the Jurats of the Corporation and Captain of the Volunteer Artillery."

Folkestone Parish Registers.

Marriages.

1785 Apr. 6 William Knight of this parish, widower, & Alice Baker of this parish, spinster, married by licence. Witnesses: Robt. Harvey, Mary Baker.

Burials.

1811 May 2 William Knight.
1840 Sept. 12 Alice Knight was buried aged 87.

There is no record of William Knight at the Royal College of Surgeons or at the Barbers' Company, and I would be glad of information as to his parentage. Alice Knight appears to have been sister to Elizabeth, eldest daughter and coheir of Thomas Baker of Dunkerque, French Flanders, who married, in 1767, Joseph Sladen of Folkestone, Lee, and Ripple Court, son of John Sladen by his wife Hannah Bayley (see Burke's "Landed Gentry"). John Sladen, brother to above Joseph, married Anne, eldest daughter and coheir of John Ramsay, and the names Bayley and Ramsay occur as Christian names amongst the Knight family in which I am interested. Query, who was William Knight ?

Review.

Maryland Historical Magazine, for June 1914. Office: Baltimore, Athenæum Building.

This Part commences with some Old English Letters of the early part of the 18th century, and the first pedigree given is that of Erasmus Wolseley, a connection of Lord Wolseley and Sir Thomas Wolseley, knighted 1617. Pedigree II. is that of Patrick Lane of Derbyshire 1615—1617, whose granddaughter Elizabeth married Colonel Devereux Wolseley in 1634, and another granddaughter married Mr. Charles Calcut, the third Lord Baltimore, from whence sprang the fourth, fifth, and sixth Lords Baltimore. Pedigree III. gives the children of Colonel Devereux Wolseley, who married Elizabeth Zouche, and whose daughter Helen married Thomas Speat, the Bishop of Rochester and Dean of Westminster Abbey in 1713 (Pedigree IV.).

Obituary.

We regret to have to record the death on the 13th inst., at the age of 83, of Mr. W. Essington Hughes, the senior partner of the firm of Mitchell Hughes and Clarke, the publishers, printers and proprietors of this Journal, who, in conjunction with W. Bruce Bannerman, Esq., F.S.A., had edited it since the death of the original editor, Dr. Howard, in 1903. He joined the above firm, which had been established since 1797, in the year 1856, and since the time when the Harleian Society, to which he was a Subscriber, was founded in 1869, devoted the principal part of his attention to the printing and publication of genealogical and archæological works, both for public and private circulation.

His interest in the above subjects was not confined to the business side, in which, however, he took great pride, but he had always evinced the keenest interest in the subjects themselves. Besides being one of the Members of Council of the British Archæological Society for many years, the Hon. London Secretary of the Kent Archæological Society from 1875, and a Fellow of the Royal Historical Society from 1876, he was also a Member of the Surtees Society from 1865, the William Salt Society from 1884, Navy Records Society from 1894, and the Surrey Parish Register Society from its institution.

For many years he was a Governor of the Middlesex Hospital, to which Charity his sympathies were greatly attached. In the days previous to the amalgamation of the various Boards of Guardians in the City of Westminster, he was a Member of the Strand Board of Guardians, to which he devoted a considerable portion of his leisure.

He also took a deep interest in the municipal and ecclesiastical affairs of St. Anne's, Soho. It was largely due to him that in the year 1896 the unusually interesting and valuable Registers of the parish were rebound by the vestry and the decaying and torn leaves were strengthened, and that the 9 volumes of Baptisms, 24 of Marriages and 9 of Burials are now amongst the best preserved series of Registers to be found in London.

Mr. Hughes was the youngest son of Charles Robert Hughes of Chelsea, whose grandfather had married one of the daughters of John Essington of London and Wandsworth (who was High Sheriff of Surrey in 1724). He married in 1862, Louisa Matilda Holland, who predeceased him in 1889 leaving no issue.

The Binnings of Wallyford.*

This family claimed descent from a peasant named William Bunnock, who is the hero of an exploit told by John Barbour in his poem The Bruce, written in 1375.[1] Linlithgow Castle was held in 1311 by an English garrison, who employed Bunnock to bring in hay. He concealed eight men in his waggon, and as it stood in the gateway he cut the traces, so that the portcullis could not be lowered. The guard was overpowered, and the Scots rushed in and took the Castle. Tradition says that Robert the Bruce rewarded Bunnock with a grant of the lands of Easter Binning in Ecclesmachan parish, about four miles south-east of Linlithgow.

The incident is symbolized in the arms granted in 1675 to Sir William Binning of Wallyford:[2] Argent, on a bend engrailed sable a waggon or, within a bordure of the second; Crest: A demi-horse furnished for a waggon proper; Motto: Christo duce feliciter.

So far as documentary evidence goes, the earliest Binning to be found in possession of Easter Binning, whether a descendant of William Bunnock or not, is:

William de Benyng, who in 1429 granted a nineteen years' lease of the lands.[3]

David de Bynene, his son, obtained a charter of resignation from James II. on 18 November 1446. A notarial copy made in 1531 was preserved in the family charter chest, and was seen by Nisbet.[4]

According to the records John Bynnyng was the laird of Easter Binning from 1484 till 1503.[5]

* Communicated by John A. Inglis, Esq.

In 1505 Thomas Binning took sasine,[1] and "in his urgent necessity for the sustenance of himself, his wife, and children,"[2] in January 1521 and at other times, disponed parts of the lands, amounting in all to seven oxengates, to Robert Bruce of Wester Binning in security for loans. He died before April 1526, and was succeeded by his daughter Elizabeth,[3] a minor.

Elizabeth Binning redeemed the seven oxengates from Robert Bruce[4] and sold them in January 1533-4 to William Hamilton in Pardovan.[5] She died within a few months,[6] and was succeeded by her uncle David.

David Binning had two sons, John and Thomas, and a daughter Elspeth.

John Binning, the elder son, was served heir on 14 March 1574 to his cousin Elizabeth in the remainder of Easter Binning.[7] He sold it to John Hamilton of Pardovan, who obtained a Crown charter of the whole property in 1596.[8]

Thomas Binning, the younger son, from whom the Wallyford family are descended, was a "servitor" of James, first Lord Torphichen, who, on 4 September 1571, granted him pro servitio impenso et impendendo a feu of the lands of Carlowriehaugh near Kirkliston in Linlithgowshire.[9] He married Catherine, daughter of William Livingstone of Ecclesmachan. He died on 17 February 1606,[10] and his widow survived him. His family consisted of—

1. James, his successor.
2. William.
3. Thomas, tailor burgess of Edinburgh, who had a son Thomas and a daughter Sarah. The latter married in May 1641 Alexander Brand, merchant in Edinburgh,[11] afterwards of Baberton and Redhall, Midlothian. She died in October 1689,[12] leaving issue two sons and four daughters.
4. Agnes, who married (contract dated 1 December 1611) Thomas Glen, merchant in Edinburgh.[13]

James Binning of Carlowriehaugh, born 1579, got a precept of Clare Constat from James, third Lord Torphichen, on 4 June 1619, and a Crown charter on 25 March 1635.[14] He was confidential "servitor" to three successive lairds of Cranstoun Riddel, Midlothian, viz., David Makgill (Lord Cranstounriddel), a Lord of Session,[15] and his sons David[16] and James (first Viscount of Oxfuird). They gave him the liferent of a house and lands on their property at Fuird, five miles south of Dalkeith.[17] He married (1) 20 September 1618 Marion, daughter of James Adinstone of Adinstone (now Alderstone) near Haddington, and by her, who died in March 1635,[18] had three sons and two daughters—

1. James, his successor.
2. Thomas, died unmarried v.p.
3. Robert, died unmarried v.p.
4. Katharine, born 31 October 1624; married (1) (contract dated 31 August 1643) Robert Paterson, surgeon in Edinburgh, who died without issue in August 1645;[19] (2) as his second wife (contract dated 28 February 1650), Laurence Scott of Bavelaw in Penicuik parish, Midlothian, with issue four sons and eight daughters.[1] She died in November 1704.

5. Margaret, born March 1626; married (1) James Ross of Swanston in Colinton parish, Midlothian, with issue a son James and a daughter Barbara, who married William Allan, writer in Edinburgh; (2) John Craig, third son of Sir Thomas Craig of Riccarton, the feudal lawyer, with issue a daughter Katharine, who married Mr. Andrew Lumsden, Bishop of Edinburgh.[2]

James Binning married (2) on 20 April 1636 Euphemia, daughter of Alexander Baillie, brother of Robert Baillie of Jerviston in Bothwell parish, Lanarkshire. By her he had an only son William (afterwards Sir William), see infra. James Binning died on 22 February 1663;[3] his widow died in April 1670,[4] aged eighty-three. He was succeeded by his eldest son—

James Binning, born 11 June 1620; passed advocate on 22 February 1650; married (1) Christian, daughter of John Livingstone, bailie of the barony of Corstorphine, Midlothian; in his marriage contract (dated 17 March 1654) his father disponed to him the fee of Carlowriehaugh, which he sold in 1661 to George Drummond of Carlowrie;[5] he was admitted a burgess and guild-brother of Edinburgh on 2 February 1676; married (2) (contract dated 21 December 1670) Margaret Burnett,[6] who died s.p. in April 1695.[4] He died in May 1681.[4] By his first wife he had issue—

1. James,[7] writer in Edinburgh, died unmarried in June 1691.[4]
2. John, merchant in Edinburgh, died in March 1693;[4] married in April 1686 Sarah Cant,[8] and had a son—
   John, who died in July 1699.[9]
3. William, died unmarried in March 1671.[4]

The issue of James Binning, advocate, having failed, the representation of the family devolved upon his half-brother William (see supra)—

William Binning, born 11 March 1637, apprenticed on 10 June 1655 to his cousin's husband, Alexander Brand, merchant in Edinburgh, was admitted a burgess and guild-brother of Edinburgh 27 April 1664; elected to the Town Council in 1666; Treasurer 1669 to 1671; Bailie 1671; Lord Provost 1675—1677; bought Wallyford in Inveresk parish, Midlothian, 1675; knighted in January 1677;[10] married (1) 27 December 1662, Elizabeth, eldest daughter of Laurence Scott of Bavelaw, with issue seven sons and two daughters;[11] she died on 4 December 1698, aged fifty-nine; (2) 28 April 1701, Mary, elder daughter of George Livingstone of Saltcoats near Gullane, East Lothian, and widow of Alexander Menzies of Culterallers, Lanarkshire. She survived him,[12] but had no family by him. He died on 7 January 1711. His family by his first wife consisted of—

1. Euphemia, born 26 December 1663; died in November 1665.
2. Laurence, merchant in Edinburgh, born 5 November 1665; died 17 May 1708; married, 24 September 1697, Margaret, eldest daughter of

ABSTRACT OF THE WILL OF JOHN DE RAYNFORD, A.D. 1361.*

[From Exchequer L.T.R. Memoranda Roll. 40 Edw. III., Mich. Recorda, mem. 24.]

At Leghton on Bromeswold 11 July 1361, I, John de Raynford, rector of the church of St. Clement of Hastyng̃ in the diocese of Chichester, make my will in this manner. I bequeath my soul to God, who by his precious blood redeemed me, and my body to be buried within the sanctuary in whatever part of the world I happen to die. All my goods shall be sold for the performance of my will as hereunder. A suitable sum shall be spent about my funeral at the discretion of my executors, and 60*s.* distributed to the poor on that day. My executors shall take care to pay all my debts, and do their utmost to satisfy any who have any complaint against me. I give 20*s.* to each of the four orders of mendicant friars of London. To the friars of Weringthon 60*s.* to celebrate for my soul. I will that Sir John de Ditton shall have my term in the manor of Aldenham, and my better cup called "bikre," twelve silver spoons and my silver girdle with the eagles, in remembrance of me. He shall make no further claim upon my goods, and shall faithfully pay to my executors the £500 he owes me, to be distributed for my soul. If he die before the said term run out, it shall be sold and the proceeds distributed for my soul. I will that there be given to Thomas de Molyneux another silver girdle of mine; to John de Holand, a new fur of foynes in the keeping of John de St. Albans. Three fine cups of one pattern shall be made at my expense, to be given, one to the said John de Holand, one to James de Langeleye, and one to Gilbert de Iues, upon condition they will do their best to assist my executors. I bequeath to the said John de St. Albans another of my cups called "bikre;" to Sir Martin, rector of the church of St. Faith next "le Nordur" [sic], London, my better portuous, upon a like condition. I will that the said James shall have one "ambler hakeneye" worth 40*s.*, or 40*s.* in money, on the same condition. To Eleanor, daughter of Robert de Scotfoldschagh, 26*s.* towards her marriage. To Thomas, Richard and John, my brothers, 40*s.* equally amongst them. To Alice, mother of my said brothers, 40*s.* To Broth. John de Scotfoldschagh, my kinsman, £10 to buy him books and other necessaries, to pray for my soul. To Henry de Ditton, in aid of his children, 10 marks. To the children of Margery, sister of the same Henry, 60*s.* To John Launfeld, his apprentice in London, 20 marks. To Thomas Scotfeldschage and Cicely, his wife, £10. To Henry Pudifat 40*s.*; to John Venor 40*s.*; to Richard Rynet 50*s.*, and to each of them a new tunic with a hood. To Sir William, chaplain of Zokesale, 20*s.* to celebrate for my soul. To John Gilbart of the same place, formerly my servant, 30*s.* and a tunic. To Adam del Hirst, in aid of his children, 66*s.* 8*d.*, and a black coat with black fur. I charge the conscience of Sir John de Ditton, who will have the profit of the farm of the church of Zokesale, to satisfy Sir William de Defford, rector there, if there be anything in arrears of the said farm, and also Hugh, clerk of Zokesale, and Robert le Rous of the same place for their trouble about the said farm. I bequeath three cups, one old chalice and two pieces of broken silver in the custody of John de Lanfeld to make a new chalice to be given to the church of Prestcote; and 50*s.* to make a new chalice for the church of St. Clement aforesaid. To Sir William de Derby, another portuous, to pray for my soul. To Robert le Mareschal, the value of sixty-nine pieces of money called "Riaux," which he delivered to me in Normandy to carry through his business in London. To William Fromond, "irnemonger" of London, 49*s.* of the debt of Sir Otto de Holand. To John Pogheden and Richard Annot, formerly my servants, 10*s.* apiece. To a certain poor recluse called "anker" near Criplegate, London, 6*s.* 8*d.* To a house called "les Menuresses" of London, 13*s.* 4*d.*, to pray for my soul. To Thomas de Langhurst, in discharge of his debt, 103*s.* 4¾*d.* I bequeath to be distributed to the poor or in some other manner, at the discretion of the Bishop of Chester, for certain goods belonging to the Priory of Breydesalpark, £4. To Isabel de Padiham and Laurence Corboille, for a debt, 13*s.* 4*d.* To John Perison and his fellows of Etewell in co. Derby 40*s.* To the friars of Werynton 40*s.* To the friars of Preston in Aundernesse 40*s.* To the prior and convent of Burchogh 100*s.* To the prior and convent of Holand 100*s.* And to the friars minors of Staunford £4. These last said bequests to be distributed at the discretion of Friar John de Blechelee, that they may pray and celebrate for the souls of my lords, that is to say principally for the soul of Sir Thomas de Holand, late Earl of Kent, and of Sir Otto de Holand, brother of the said Earl, and also for the souls of my father and mother, brothers and sisters, and all my friends and benefactors. Item, I bequeath £16 to find four suitable chaplains to celebrate for the souls of my father and mother and the others abovesaid for the first year after my decease, each chaplain receiving £4, and three of them shall celebrate in the said church of Prestecote, and one in the chapel of Farnworth ; and if so many chaplains cannot be found, the overplus of the said sum shall be applied to the fabric of the said church, and for books and vestments there. Item, I bequeath £8 to find a chaplain to celebrate as above for two years in the said church of Prestecote, in honour of the Blessed Virgin Mary and All Saints. To the fabric of the chancel of St. Clement of Hastynges, and for vestments and books in the said chancel, £25 ; and to the fabric of the church, 100*s.* ; and for a chaplain to celebrate there as abovesaid for two years after my decease, £10. To be distributed to the poor of that parish 100*s.* Item, to the executors of John Frouwyk of London, "spicer," for a debt, 3*s.* 4*d.* And in like manner to William Brex, "taylor," 13*s.* 4*d.* To Andrew Vernon 3*s.* 5*d.* To Thomas de Walden the younger 21*d.* To the executors of Robert de Litton, "draper," 7*s.* ; to John de Wyttelee, tailor, 20*d.* ; to John de Bonemarche, "hosyer," 6*s.* 8*d.* ; to a certain goldsmith called . . . 20*s.*, all these tradesmen being of London. My executors shall forgive 20 marks of the 40 marks in which Adam de Brikedenn is bound to me. I bequeath £10 for the discharge of poor folk detained for debt in Neugate prison and elsewhere, as my executors shall think best for the health of my soul. All my apparel not above bequeathed shall be distributed among my poor servants of Aldenham and Muriden. I will that Ellen, daughter of Robert de Scotfeldschaghe, shall have one "blu" bed, and my brother Thomas one checkered bed, and John de Lanfeld and Thomas de Scotfeldschaghe all my armour at Muriden. I give my tunic of ruby velvet to adorn the vestments of the said church of St. Clement. I will that some suitable distribution shall be made to the poor at the churches of Prestecote and St. Clement of Hastyng̃ for the good of my soul, every year for a suitable time. Item, I bequeath to Cicely de Bolde 13*s.* 4*d.* To Agnes Rysle 6*s.* 8*d.*, to pray for my soul. I will that if the manor of Muriden can be acquired in perpetuity by my executors, a perpetual chantry shall be made thereof of two chaplains in the church of Prestecote, for the souls of my father and mother and the others aforesaid. And if the said manor cannot be acquired, my executors shall purchase lands and rents elsewhere for the purpose ; and I bequeath the term I have in the said manor, and all my goods moveable and immoveable being there, in aid of the expenses of the foundation of the said chantry. I give to Adam Oletsone of Wynstannelegh, in aid of his children, 20*s.*, and in like manner to William de Stanyhurst the elder 20*s.* All the residue of my goods shall be disposed by my executors in finding chaplains, in the marriages of poor women, in distributions to the poor and in other works of piety in the kingdom of England and not elsewhere, for my soul and the souls abovesaid. And I make these my executors, to wit, Sir John de Ditton, John de Holand, Thomas de Molyneux, James de Langeley, Gilbert de Iues, Richard de Thorpe, Henry de Ditton, Sir Martin, rector of the church of St. Faith next "le Nordur" of St. Paul's, London, John de St. Alban's of the same place, William de Kellesill of the same place, John de Lanfeld, apprentice of the said John de St. Alban's, Adam del Hirst, Thomas de Stotfoldschagh [sic], John de Raynford the younger, and William de Wynestaneslegh ; and I will that the said John de Holand, Thomas de Molyneux, Gilbert and Richard, Sir Martin, John de St. Alban's, and William de Kelleshill shall exercise supervision in the premises ; and that the others, or four or three of them, shall undertake the labour of the execution of this my will. In witness whereof with my own hand I have affixed my seal to the presents.

* Communicated by F. Vine Rainsford, Esq.

Proved before the official of the Archdeacon of Hunts on Saturday after the Feast of the Assumption of the B.V.M. 1361, supervision and execution being granted as above directed ; and afterwards, viz., 3 Kal. Dec. following at St. Alban's, as regards goods in that jurisdiction.

PETITIONS TO THE POPE.

The King. Whereas John de Raynford, rector of St. Clement, Hastings, one day about noon fell into the hands of malefactors who attacked him and chopped off two joints of the index finger of his left hand and in other ways wounded him, he prays for a dispensation that, notwithstanding this defect, John may minister in the order he has received and accept other benefices.

PEDIGREE OF DODDRIDGE.

In the September issue of "Misc. Gen. et Her.," pp. 97, 99, I made Philip Doddridge, bapt. Isleworth 18 July 1631, to be the ancestor of the American Dodderidges. In doing this I relied upon the negative evidence of a friend, who copied the Dodderidge entries for me from the Isleworth Register. Thanks, however, to the Editor and Mr. T. M. Blagg I am able to withdraw this, and am glad to do so, seeing that both point out to me that the said Philip Doddridge was buried at Isleworth 15 November 1633.

A RING WITH SOUTH ARMS.

Sir,

On looking through an old volume of the "Gentleman's Magazine," No. 89, Part 2, I found the following letter, written by "T. A." of Great Surrey Street on May 28, 1819, also a drawing with heraldic arms on a very old gold ring, which ring I am very desirous of tracing :—

"Concerning a ring found in a field at Bayfield, near Holt in Norfolk, of gold, weighing 11 pennyweights; in Old English characters inside: 'All is, God Willing.' The impression on the ring is a shield with the following arms : Argent, two bars gules, in chief a mullet pierced sable. These were not for the first time granted, but confirmed by Camden, then Clarencieux King at Arms, on 22 June 1605, as appertaining to Sir Francis South of Kelsterne in Lincolnshire, and Sheriff of that county. From the shape of the shield the ring cannot be older than Edward I., but from the language and form of letters cut within, I should refer it to Edward III., certainly not later than Henry V."

In an earlier volume, No. 75, dated 1805, is a letter stating that the South family owned the manor of Kelsterne until the beginning of the last century, when it came into the possession of the Hildyards, by whom it was sold to William Dennison, Esq., and John Dennison is now Lord of the Manor. The estate lapsed from the South family under peculiar circumstances, and particulars are asked for.

Another ring of interest is that bequeathed by Dr. Robert South, D.D., Prebendary of Westminster Abbey, who was buried there in 1716 at the foot of the altar steps.

This ring was engraved with the arms of his father, who was supposed to have been a descendant of Sir Francis South; the arms on the tomb of Dr. Robert, however, are those granted to William South of Amesbury in Wiltshire by Gilbert Dethick, Garter, 1575, viz. : Sable, on a fesse humetée between three billets argent a chaplet or, flowered gules.

Dr. Robert, apart from being Chaplain in Ordinary to the Merry Monarch, would nowadays be considered a modest man, as he declined no less than an Irish Archbishoprick, the Bishoprick of Rochester, and the Deanery of Westminster.

Apologising for trespassing on your valuable space, and thanking you in anticipation,

Yours faithfully,

Geoffrey W. South.

Reviews.

Handbook to Kent Records. Compiled and edited by IRENE J. CHURCHILL, F.R.Hist.Soc. Issued by Records Branch, Kent Archæological Society. Price 7*s* 6*d*.

THIS Volume contains a summary account of the principal classes of historical documents relating to the County of Kent and a guide to their chief places of deposit. It will be found of great assistance to those who have not had any previous experience in record searching.

The first part consists of a brief survey of the main forms of documents valuable to the local historian, under the chief headings of Official Documents, Ecclesiastical Records, and Municipal and Manorial Records.

Examples are given of the various kinds of records, translations of which are to be found in an appendix.

The second part is devoted to an account of the various places where records are deposited, the Public Record Office, British Museum, Somerset House, House of Lords, the collections of cathedrals, counties, universities, and municipalities, together with particulars as to the records to be found therein and the regulations to be observed by those desiring to consult them.

To all those interested in Kentish family and local history this book is indispensable. It will also be of great value to those interested in other counties, so far as the great national depositories of records are concerned, and enables the searcher to discover what documents are to be found in the various collections.

The compiler is to be congratulated on the completion of a very useful work, entailing a considerable amount of time and labour in collecting the material and in its arrangement, which has been carried out in a clear and concise way.

Bishops' Transcripts at Wells. Vol. 3. Herne Bay: E. Dwelly. 10*s*. net.

THIS Volume consists of all the unpublished transcripts for the parishes of Abbas Combe, Aisholt, Alford, Aller, Allerton, Almsford, Angersleigh, Ashbrittle, Ashcott, and Ashill. The various dates range from 1598, and are carried down to 1812.

Fleetwood Family Records. Part III. R. W. Buss. Price 4*s*. 12 pp.

THIS Part contains a pedigree of Fleetwood of Wood Street, Cheapside, and a Royal descent from Edward I. of Fleetwood of Calwich and Penwortham.

The remainder of the Part consists of extracts relating to the Fleetwood Family from the Registers in Dr. Williams' Library, Wills, Administrations, and Chancery Proceedings.

The illustration facing page 241 is that of a draughts-board belonging to Mrs. Chetwood Aiken. Her son describes it as a copy of an original board made about fifty years ago by Mr. Crewe Townsend, a cousin of Mrs. Chetwood Aiken. It was let into a small table and covered with glass. The table was broken and the board spoilt, but a copy was made and it is from this copy that the illustration is taken. It will be noticed that the names of the different families are placed under each coat, with one exception, No. 27: Or, a fess between three mascles gules. This is apparently the coat of Hockley or Ockley, and Mr. Chetwood-Aiken thinks it probable that when the original board was broken the name under this coat was accidentally destroyed. The board has apparently been made to display the arms of alliances with the Chetwood and Aiken families as well as the arms of King Edward III., from whom they are descended.

The accompanying pedigree shows the various alliances which account for the arms on the board, and the list gives the various tinctures of the coats, which cannot be shown by photography.

Further information may be obtained by referring to Baker's "Northamptonshire," i., 712 and 739; The Visitation of Buckinghamshire, 1566, in the "Genealogist," vii., 121; "The Visitation of Cheshire, 1580," Harl. Original Grants of Arms in the Public Record Office.*

In the Public Record Office are a small number of original Grants of Arms as issued to the original grantee. How they should have got among the Public Records it is difficult to say with any degree of certainty. They must originally have been in the possession of the grantee, and probably were put among legal documents for safety, and with them passed into the keeping of one of the Law Courts with other evidences, and with the other records came in due course to the Public Record Office. We propose to print these grants from time to time in the "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica," excepting those that have already been printed in this Journal, viz., Roger Starkey in 1543, see Third Series, III., p. 65; Henry Draper of Colebrooke, Middlesex, in 1571, see Third Series, IV., p. 169; and Simon Heynes of Mildenhall, Suffolk, in 1575, see I., p. 250.

It is interesting to note that contrary to the present custom of impaling the official arms of the King of Arms with those of their family, they used two seals, one of their office and a separate one of their family arms. It is also worthy of attention that the official coat of Garter and Clarenceux differs slightly from the arms now used, thus on the seal of office used by Sir Christopher Barker, Garter, instead of the plain field with the cross of St. George there is in the first quarter one of the doves from the arms of College of Arms, as a corporate body, i.e., a dove with dexter wing expanded, point downward. Also in the seal of Tho. Hawley, Clarencieux, in like manner in the first canton is a fleur-de-lis. In these grants the seals are fixed in a circular wooden box, but unfortunately in many cases the seals have evidently been removed.

Some Lancashire Pedigrees drawn about the years 1425—1440.

The manuscript, from which the subjoined fifteenth-century pedigrees are copied, contains also two Lancashire Rolls of Arms and a number of Lancashire heraldic church notes made between the years 1564 and 1598; it is bound in a vellum cover composed of two deeds, relating to Warrington, dated 1526 and 1530. With the exception of these pedigrees I printed the whole of the manuscript in the "Transactions of the Historic Society of Lancashire and Cheshire," vol. xxxvii., p. 149, and vol. xlii., p. 255.

The pedigrees are drawn in an unusual form, the lines repeatedly crossing one another in a confusing manner, and the confusion is increased by parts of the leaves having been torn away. Mr. William Farrer, D.Litt., to whom the manuscript now belongs, has, however, with much care, succeeded for the most part in disentangling them, and, with his permission, they are here printed. They are especially interesting because they were evidently drawn nearly a century before the date of the earliest Lancashire Visitation. The Halsall pedigree has been brought down to the year 1567, apparently by the writer of the manuscript when he copied the pedigrees into his book.

A few additions are placed within square brackets.

Elizabeth, bapt. 6 September 1665; (?) mar. at Kingsclere, 22 Dec. 1684, James Gardiner of Kingsclere, co. Southampton, son of Sir William Gardiner, Bart., and Jane, dau. of Robert Brocas of Beaurepaire Park, Hants, Esq. Sir Brocas Gardiner, eldest brother of James Gardiner, Esq., mar. Alice, dau. of Sir John Keeling, Knt., J.P., Lord Chief Justice of England, whose sister Alice Keeling mar. John Freeman of Wallingford, Berks, Esq. By Elizabeth Ravenscroft James Gardiner had three children, James, John, and Sara. His first wife was Joanna, dau. of Pierse Cowdray, Esq., of Heriot Park, near Basingstoke, co. Southampton, whom he married in 1675 (see Kingsclere Registers). There is some little doubt as to the identity of this Elizabeth Ravenscroft, but the Freeman connection, and the fact that James of Pamber's property passed to the Brocas family, make it most probable that she is identical with Elizabeth, dau. of Robert and Alice Ravenscroft, and granddau. of James of Pamber.

Notes and Queries.

July 15*th*, 1915.

I should suggest that "Amstapleth" in line 1, p. 231, should read "Ainstapleth," the modern "Ainstable." In Sedgefield's "Place-names of Cumberland and Westmorland" the various readings for Ainstable are :— Ainstapelid (1178), Einstapeleth, Yorks (1210), Ainstapellid (1241), Ainstaplid (1241), Aynstapellith (1292), Aynstaplelith (1324), and Aynstapellyth (1335).

Yours faithfully,
C. W. RUSTON-HARRISON.

TH. WR. als Gartier Roy darmes des Angloys.

Per me RYCHEMONT Roy darmes de Clarenceaux.

There is no official seal to this grant; both are the personal seals of offices :—

Seal of Garter. Quarterly: I and IV, A cross betw. four hawkes closed; II, Obliterated; III, A pale of fusils within a bord. charged with roundels. Legend mostly gone, T. WROTHE, Gart., can be read, which does not agree with the two spellings with which the grant commences, but it will be remembered how very uncertain he was as to how his name should be spelt.

Seal of the Arms of ROGER MACHADO was of a foreign family. The impression is a poor one of a very good matrix, having the shield corner ways with the helmet resting on the sinister corner. On the helmet are what may be six ostrich feathers. The Arms are Quarterly: I and IV just indicates the coat of Machado, viz., Gules, five battle-axes, two, one, and two; II and III, A bend issuing from the mouths of two animals issuing from the dexter chief and sinister base.

The above grant supplies the tinctures of the Crest, which are not given in the "Visitation of Oxfordshire," Harl. Soc., vol. v. For pedigree of Weynman of Witney, Oxon., see above Visitation, pp. 175—179 and 307-8; and also under Witney Church, p. 45.

The Family of Ravenscroft.

NOTES.

"Fame represents you to us so qualify'd with all the Ornaments of a Gentleman, that you seem a new addition of Honour to your Family, and rather give Credit to the Name, than receive a Lustre from it: And yet it is so Ancient, that when William the Conqueror came into England one of his Nobles Marry'd a Ravenscroft: He Marry'd, 'tis said, (Ex per antiquissima Ravenscroftorum Familia) out of the most, or very ancient Family of the Ravenscroft's. From thence, Sir, you are descended. I boast the same."

This extract from the dedication of a play entitled "The Anatomist or The Sham Doctor," written by Edward Ravenscroft, gent., and published in 1697, clearly indicates the high antiquity of which the Ravenscroft family of the seventeenth century considered itself possessed, and it is given here because it throws a little light on the earliest recorded names which appear in the long list dating apparently from pre-Norman times.

The play was written by an educated man and dedicated to one who, notwithstanding the characteristic fulsomeness of the language used, really appears to have been a gentleman of high quality and considerable renown in the neighbourhood in which he lived, Thomas Ravenscroft, Esq., some time High Sheriff of Flintshire.

The allusion to the Norman noble is of course the interesting point of association and doubtless refers to Warin de Bevile, who, holding lands of the Abbey of Dieulacre in Staffordshire and close upon the Cheshire boundary, exchanged them for lands in Ravenscroft also held of the Abbey of Dieulacre and took the name of Ravenscroft. It would seem also he was in some respects regarded as the founder of the family as it has come down to the present time, but since there were men of the name before him, in all probability he not only exchanged lands but took for his wife one of the family, possibly an only surviving heiress.

The various pedigrees as given in Ormerod, Harleian publications, etc., practically agree as to the names and order of the predecessors of Warin de Ravenscroft, while as to those of his immediate successors, they are not quite so much in harmony, as will be seen by reference to the Pedigree.

There can be no doubt, however, that prior to the time of Warin de Bevile or Ravenscroft there are considerable gaps in the record, and if, as is correctly stated, this Warin was living in the time of Henry III., he can only have been the Norman noble referred to in the dedication of the play through some hazy and inaccurate apprehension of facts—a thing by no means unlikely at that time. Probably it was Warin who was in the Playwriter's mind, but whether he or his grandfather was not material to the purpose of the dedication.

A date given against the first name on the Chart, 806, occurs only in one pedigree, but that a very interesting one, now in possession of Mr. Leonard Ravenscroft of Chancery Lane. This pedigree, drawn out on parchment and beautifully illustrated with 100 coats of arms, appears to have been produced to shew the connection with the Foxe family, and cannot have been much later in date than 1630.

Like every other pedigree of the family hitherto produced, it has a few manifest inaccuracies, but in the main it follows the accepted order. How far it is justified in this very old date it gives it is impossible to say, but the name and its associations appear to date back to Saxon times.

In all likelihood this is a case of the name of the family being derived from the Place, and obviously the arms Argent, a chevron sable between three ravens' heads erased proper, are parlante and have reference to the place.

Ravenscroft, which now consists of a moderate sized residence of recent date standing in its own ground on the bank of the little river known as "The Dane," is situated about a mile from Middlewich. It is, however, within the memory of some still living that the house was a timbered and gabled mansion with the remains of a moat on three sides of it.

The Ravenscrofts of the elder line did not long survive, and the line terminated with Margery, who, in the time of Edward III., married Roger de Croxton, and through this marriage the estate passed to the Croxton family, whose lands joined those of Ravenscroft.*

The younger branch of the family, however, did not die out, and from this branch it may safely be asserted that all subsequent branches sprang.

To the marriage of Hugh Ravenscroft with Isabel, daughter and coheir of Ralph Holland of Bretton, Flint, is to be traced what may be regarded as the refounding of the family, partly because it dates from a new home and partly because it inherits from this union a coat of arms which remains intact to the present day.

The pedigree of Isabel Holland has been an exceedingly difficult one to trace, since the family was a very large one with several branches in the northern part of the Kingdom as well as in Wales and subsequently in the more southern portions of the realm; but the particular branch from which this lady came was that of Denbigh, and she appears to have been the successor of a number of heiresses, each bringing a contribution to the coat of arms finally achieved by the Ravenscrofts through this marriage and all associated with the Manor of Bretton.

Thus we have in 1304 the gift of the manor by Roger de Monte Alto, Baron of Hawarden, to Hugh de Brickill and Mary his wife. She brought the Swettenham arms. Then we get Mary their daughter, married to a Skevington and bringing their coat. Ralph Holland marries Rose their granddaughter and brings the Holland arms, and Isabel their daughter joins all these and the original Brickill arms to the Ravenscrofts, resulting in a coat quarterly of six: Ravenscroft, Brickill, Swettenham, Skevington, Holland and Ravenscroft.

For the time being Bretton was the one residence of the family, and, like "Ravenscroft," it was once a family mansion surrounded by a moat. At the present day there are but scant traces of the old buildings, but the moat still remains. There are a few indications of seventeenth-century work in some of the farm buildings on the site of Bretton Hall, but the old mansion has long since disappeared. Bretton is about three miles from Chester, being close on the Welsh border in the parish of Hawarden.

From the marriage of Hugh Ravenscroft and Isabel Holland are derived two branches which in these notes will be called the Bretton and the Hawarden lines.

From the Bretton line sprang those of Pickhill and Horsham, while from the Hawarden line sprang those of Barnet, Hants, Berks and Bucks, Market Drayton and South Africa.

On the male side the Bretton, Horsham, Hawarden and Barnet lines appear to be extinct, although this is not certain, since there may be representatives of these lines which the authors of these notes have not been able to trace.

* See "Misc. Gen. et Her.," New Series Vol. I., p. 203.

The Pickhill, the Hants, Berks and Bucks, the Market Drayton and South African lines, however, still subsist, while many well known families, as will be seen from the Chart, trace descent through the female line from practically all the branches.

With a pedigree so extended as this it will be convenient to deal with it in three portions, and thus the first of these will include the Bretton, Pickhill and Horsham lines; the second those of Hawarden, Barnet and Market Drayton, and the third those of Hants, Berks and Bucks and South Africa.

THE BRETTON LINE.

Raphe, grandson of Hugh and Isabel Ravenscroft of Bretton, married first Anne, third daughter of Sir John Stanley of Weiver, from whom the family claim two Royal descents, and secondly a daughter of George Hurleston.

By the first marriage he had two sons and three daughters. George, the elder son, carried on the Bretton line, and John, the younger, the Hawarden line.

Alice, one of the daughters, married Adrian d'Ewes of Hessel Gelderland, and their memory is perpetuated in Weever's "Funeral Monuments," where a description illustrated by an interesting drawing is given of a plate and inscription once in the Church of St. Michael Bassishaw, London, shewing both this man and his wife in the attitude of prayer. Moreover, she was buried in this church, having died in 1579.

With regard to the issue of the second marriage of Raphe Ravenscroft there is a little obscurity, but as the branch apparently soon became extinct and did not produce any persons of note, it is hardly worth while to burden these pages with evidence on the subject.

The main Bretton line was continued through Thomas, eldest son of George, who was elder son of Raphe and Anne Ravenscroft, and who married Katharine, third daughter of Richard Grosvenor of Eaton, by whom he had several children. This George, who died in 1592, alone, however, carried on the line, his brothers having all died apparently s.p. To this George, who was the first of the family to sit in Parliament (1562-3), there is a monument in Hawarden Church having a long Latin inscription, and his will contains numerous references to his wife, children, and others, both relatives and friends.

Raphe of the Bolles (Plas yn Balls, near Flint), second son of Thomas and Katharine Ravenscroft, was buried in Flint Church, and his will was proved in Feb. 1604-5 by Thomas of Bretton his nephew.

Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas and Katharine, gave her hand in marriage to a man in whom her father took a great deal of interest, noticing him from his boyhood as a very promising lad and recommending him to his friend and the father of the youth, Sir Richard Egerton, as worthy a better education than he was receiving. The result was that the husband of this Elizabeth, Thomas Egerton, became Lord Ellesmere and the founder of the Bridgewater family, as well as Lord Chancellor, first to Queen Elizabeth and afterwards to James I.

Of the numerous family of George, son of Thomas and Katharine, the most conspicuous was William of Lincoln's Inn, who appears to have been educated at Brazenose College, Oxford, where at the age of 17 in 1578 he matriculated, subsequently taking his degree of B.A., and ultimately becoming a bencher of Lincoln's Inn in 1621. He was Clerk of the Petty Bag 1598—1628. His arms are shewn in the west window of Lincoln's Inn Chapel, and he sat in Parliament, sometimes as member either for Flint borough or Old Sarum or as Knight of the Shire for Flint, for various periods extending between the years 1586 until his death in 1628. He was an enthusiastic admirer of Sir Julius Cæsar, and in 1617 wrote to him offering to live and die in his service. He was buried in Hawarden Church, and left a will full of references to various members of his family and others. To all appearances he was never married.

Roger, the younger brother of this William, claims a notice from the fact of his being the father of the well-known Thomas Ravenscroft, Mus. Bac., whose Book of Psalms was at one time in very considerable use in England, and whose other musical compositions once well known are now rare. This Roger was educated at New College, Oxford, matriculated there in 1586 at the age of 20, passed to the degrees of B.A. and M.A., and became Canon of Chester Cathedral in 1599 and Rector of Doddleston, near Hawarden, in 1616. He died in 1634, and was buried in Chester Cathedral choir.

The son Thomas, Mus. Bac., just above mentioned, in his Book of Psalms was assisted by John Milton, father of the poet, Tallis, and twenty other English musicians. A considerable number of his melodies are still in use. He was born in 1592, graduated Mus. Bac. at Cambridge in 1607, and before he was of age began to publish works on music. But for an extended account of him reference should be made to the "Dictionary of Musicians" and the "Dictionary of National Biography." The date of his death is unknown, probably about 1630—35.

Captain Anthony, brother to the last-named Roger, appears to have died a bachelor, and in his will describes himself as of "Pickhill," mentioning his nephew Thomas of Pickhill, from whom the branch of that name descended.

The eldest brother of the foregoing, through whom the Bretton line continued, was Thomas, who in 1588 married Katharine, daughter of Sir Roger Brereton. This Thomas was Sheriff for Flint in 1594-5, and again in 1606-7.

Of his family two only need mention here, viz.: Robert, through whom the line was carried on, and Mary, who married Roger Wilbraham. This marriage brought the Ravenscroft family into connection with the Wilbrahams and the Mainwarings, and in the Chapel of the family mansion at Dorfold there are monuments to various members of the family of Wilbraham.

The oldest of these is to this Mary, who at the age of 37 died in childbirth in the year 1632, and it contains a quaint but pathetic poem on her virtues following the inscription to her memory.

Robert, son of Thomas and Katharine Ravenscroft, was heir apparent, being born in 1589. He married Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Randall Mainwaring, who afterwards became Lady Gamul. He was M.P. for Flint in 1614, and died in 1640. Of his large family there is little to record beyond the fact that his eldest son Col. Thomas Ravenscroft took an active part in the Civil War, holding Hawarden Castle for the King so long as he was able to do so. The manner of its surrender to the Parliamentary forces is somewhat obscure, the Royalists declaring that it was taken through treachery and the Parliamentary party asserting that it was so unprovided as that it could not hold out. Whichever story may be true, it is clear that Col. Ravenscroft remained a Royalist at heart, since twelve years after the fall of the Castle he escaped the hands of the other side through the aid of Lady Gamul, who sent him a horse, whereupon it was recommended that "Ravenscrofts annuity of £30 should be stopped" (Calendar State Papers, Domestic, 1655).

Hawarden MSS. state that this man was a Colonel in the service of the Parliament, Sheriff of Flintshire in 1649, and "Forgiven his sins at the Restoration he was Dep. Lt. for Flint in 1674." He died in 1678, and was buried in Hawarden Church, where there is an inscription to his memory.

George, second son, Robert, fourth son, and Phillip, sixth son of Robert and Elizabeth Ravenscroft, were all buried in the Troutbeck Chapel of the Church of St. Mary-on-the-Hill, Chester, and this George appears to have served under the King in the Civil War and to have been with him at York in 1640.

The next generation appears to consist exclusively of the children of Col. Thomas Ravenscroft, of whom Edward, who married Anne, daughter of Sir Richard Lloyd, was the only one to carry on the Bretton line, and which terminated with Thomas, who in 1691 married Honora Sneyd. The brief story of his life will be best told by transcribing the epitaph to his memory in Hawarden Church : "Here lyeth the body of Thomas Ravenscroft of Broad Lane in y^{e} County of Flint Esq. the only Son of Edward Ravenscroft Esq. who departed this life the 3rd day of May A^{o} Dom̃ 1698 in y^{e} 28th Year of his Age. In y^{e} Year 1691 He Married Honora the only Daughter of Ralph Sneyd of Keel Hall in the County of Stafford Esq. by whom He had Issue one Son Thomas and 3 Daughters Honora Catharine and Ann.

He dyed in y^{e} Service of his Country a Memb. of Parliam. and Lamented by all that knew him, he was a Kind Husband and Father Just to his word and Freind. Quis desiderio sit pudor aut modus tam Chari Capitis.

Here also lyeth the body of his only Son Thomas Ravenscroft who was born after his death and deceas'd the 3^{d} of June A^{o} Dom̃ 1698."

In 1692-3 this Thomas, who married Honora Sneyd, was Sheriff for Flint, and is evidently the man to whom Edward Ravenscroft the playwriter dedicated his "Anatomist."

In this epitaph it will be noticed reference is made to "Broad Lane," which Willett, in his "History of Hawarden," describes as "a seat of the Ravenscrofts near Hawarden Castle." When the old house at Bretton was abandoned for the newer one at Broad Lane does not appear, but in 1723 Sir Stephen Glynne removed from Bisseter to this place, which he then rented.

The estate with the baronetcy passed to Sir John Glynne, who in 1731 married Honora Conway, a daughter of Henry Conway who married Honora Ravenscroft, and thus the property passed from the Ravenscrofts through the Glynnes to the present owners, viz., the Gladstones.

Broad Lane house and the modern residence known as Hawarden Castle were close together, the latter built in the grounds of the former, and indeed there are a few remains of the older house still in existence.

THE HORSHAM LINE.

This branch of the Ravenscrofts, now apparently extinct, comes through Peter younger son of George, who was elder son of Raphe, who married Anne Stanley. This Peter married three times, firstly to Jane, widow of Henry Voyce,* on 4 Feb. 1550-1, secondly, through whom the line came, to Elizabeth, widow of Roger Voyce (Foyce and Voyce in Horsham Parish Register), and daughter of John Hall of Horsham.

This marriage took place in 1569, and the line ended with Elizabeth, who married Thomas, son of Henry Delves, Bart., and from whom the baronetcy of Delves descended.

Of Hall Ravenscroft, Foster and Clarke's "Alumni Oxonienses" gives the following : "Ravenscrofte Hall of Sussex arm. fil. nat. max. Christchurch College, matriculated 8 Nov. 1616 aged 16, student of Lincoln's Inn June 1618 (as son and heir of John of Horsham, Sussex), M.P. Horsham April—May 1640 and 1640 (L.P.) till secluded 1648, re-elected 1660."

Elizabeth, wife of Thomas Delves, was buried in Horsham Church under an altar-tomb in the chancel, beautifully executed in white marble by Fanelli, and it bears on it the Ravenscroft arms and a long inscription setting forth the virtues of this lady, who died in childbed. The Visitation of Sussex (Segar) gives the arms of Ravenscroft (quarterly of six) as identically the same as those of the Bretton line.

* This information was obtained from the Horsham Parish Register, recently printed by the Sussex Record Society, since the pedigree was printed.

THE PICKHILL LINE.

Hawarden MSS. state that "Anthony Ravenscroft, living 1649, Captain in the Irish Wars, joined with his nephew Thomas in the purchase of Sidney Ellis' house in Pickhill, where he died s.p. 29 Jan. 1649." This nephew Thomas, younger brother of Robert Ravenscroft who married Elizabeth Mainwaring, was the first of the Pickhill line, and in 1636-7 he married at St. Asaph's Cathedral Margaret, dau. of Sir William Williams, Bart., by whom he had two sons and one daughter.

In 1649 he was High Sheriff of Denbigh and supported the Parliamentary cause. He died in 1682 and his widow in the following year. Their memory is or was preserved in a tablet in Holy Trinity Church, Chester, erected by their daughter Dorothy.

William, the eldest son, was High Sheriff of Denbighshire in 1686. He was educated at Jesus College, Oxford, matriculated 1656, and became a student of Gray's Inn in 1657.

The connection of this branch of the family with Pickhill ceased soon after the beginning of the eighteenth century, and as will be seen from the Pedigree several members of the family lived in India and became established there, at first in connection with the East India Company.

The Pickhill branch is at the present time represented in the male line by the Rev. Edward Ravenscroft, now living in Devonshire, and on the female side by Lord Hereford.

The arms of this branch of the family impaled those of Williams, but the crest appears to have been a different one, being : On a wreath a lion statant sable, instead of : On a chapeau gules, turned up ermine, a lion statant-guardant argent.

Note should be made of a connection with the Norreys family, which cannot be quite located.

Bray Church and Ockwells Manor, Berks, both contain remains of the Ravenscroft arms, the former in memorial stone, the latter in stone and glass. Indeed, the glass in the Ockwells Manor Hall is well known and justly celebrated, and distinctly shews the arms of Ravenscroft. Ockwells was the home of Sir John Norreys (Norris) of Bray, who in 1422 married Milicent d . . . ch . . Ravenscroft of Cotton End, Northants. Mr. Everard Green, "Somerset Herald," F.S.A., says the Norreys arms were those of Ravenscroft, and the connection with the family must have been about contemporary with the founding of the Bretton line by Hugh and Isabel Ravenscroft.

Note also should be made of a memorial brass in West Grinstead Church to the memory of Robert Ravenscroft and Joan his wife, both of whom died in 1522. This Robert possibly may have been a brother of Raphe who married Anne Stanley, since some pedigrees give this Raphe a brother Robert.

THE HAWARDEN LINE.

In what way the Ravenscrofts of Hawarden came to be called by that name is not clear, since the elder branch of the Bretton line would appear to have lived at Broad Lane House (now Hawarden Castle), but that they were so designated as distinct from the Ravenscrofts of Bretton is certain.

John, the second son of Ralph who married Anne Stanley, was the founder of this line, but of him no record remains beyond that of his marriage with Margaret Dod and that he was living in 1517. He appears to have had five sons, John, William, Henry, George, and Arthure, of whom George and Arthure alone left families.

GOULD PARK.

The will of William (his second son) refers to himself as "Citizen and Armourer of London," and directs he shall be buried in the "Churchyard of S. Sepulchre wherein I dwell." He mentions also one or two family connections.

The chief point of interest here, however, is that by this time, and even at an earlier period, several of the Ravenscroft family had become members of the various city companies, and while still in many cases retaining their country homes, being described as "Gentlemen" and bearing the family arms, they carried on either actual business or were connected with trade more or less through the city associations in which we find them placed. Either this or else they were parsons, lawyers, soldiers, or sailors. A little later and we find several described as yeomen. This seems to have been quite the order of the day in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, and the "Chancery Proceedings" preserved in the Public Record Office testify to the enormous extent of this trade connection on the part of noble and armorial families throughout the kingdom.

The fourth son of John Ravenscroft of Hawarden carried on the line by his marriage with Margaret Fowler, but there is little to record with respect to this branch until the time when from it emerged the Barnet line, which produced two or three somewhat conspicuous men.

Perhaps a note should be made of the will of John Killings, who married Jane, daughter and heiress of Thomas Foxe of Killings (a property in the near neighbourhood of the Ravenscrofts' home), in which he identifies himself with the Ravenscrofts of Bretton as evidently kinsfolk.

Mention also should be made of the will of Thomas, grandson of this last John, because in it he notices William Ravenscroft, the "Mercer," who it will be hereafter seen was a descendant of Arthure, the son of John and Margaret above referred to.

It will also be seen from a reference to the Pedigree that the wife of this Thomas was a Gifford of Crowmarsh, Oxon., of which family it is believed there are or have been descendants who took the name Ravenscroft Gifford. And of the last of this line shewn on the Pedigree, Dorothy, who married Major Edward Evatt, there are still representatives, amongst them being Surgeon-Major Evatt of Camberley, Surrey, who claims family connection with this Major Edward Evatt (the husband of Dorothy Ravenscroft), to whom a memorial brass in Hawarden Church bears testimony.

THE BARNET LINE.

The Ravenscrofts of Fould Park, Chipping Barnet, descend from Thomas, grandson of John, the founder of the Hawarden branch, who in some pedigrees is called "Thomas of the Bolls." At what time he came to the neighbourhood of London does not appear, but from the time of his coming until his death he was evidently closely associated with Chipping Barnet.

To the munificence of his son James is due the beautiful monument to his memory in a chapel on the south side of the Church at Barnet.

His remains were originally deposited in the chancel, and this monument, an altar-tomb in alabaster with a recumbent effigy of the man himself in civil robes with a large ruff round his neck, was erected over them. The monument was said to have been made abroad and conveyed to the church in pieces. It is an interesting specimen of Renaissance work wherein classic and Gothic detail intermix in a curious way, and is charged with several shields bearing the Ravenscroft and other arms, as well as having a good many references to the family.

To the wealth of this branch the Church and some of the charities at Chipping Barnet owe a great deal, endowments have materially increased in value, and the Ravenscroft Trust being to this day an important matter in the finances of Barnet. Indeed, it was the money which was forthcoming under this trust which paid for the very drastic "restoration" of the Church, whereby the chancel was pulled down and the nave turned into a north aisle, while a new chancel and nave were built and the tomb of Thomas Ravenscroft, together with his bones, were removed to a new chapel built to receive them. Moreover, the whole of the Church is seated with carved oak seats, and many other things have been done which but for this fund would not have been possible.

The principal member of this branch, however, was James, the eldest son of this Thomas, who is still known in Barnet as "the Great Benefactor."

He was a man of many qualities and of noble disposition, a strong churchman, and a devoted son, husband, and father. His life and that of his wife Mary, daughter of William Pecke of Spikworth Hall, Norfolk, were long, he dying at the age of 85 and she at 86. Both were buried under the vestry floor in Barnet Church, but whether their bones were allowed to remain there is not certain. The slabs of stone inscribing their memory were certainly removed and placed elsewhere in the Church. And this notwithstanding that at his own expense James Ravenscroft rebuilt the vestry, which had fallen into decay, and on the agreement that it should be a place of burial for himself and his family for ever.

It was this James who founded the trust still administered for the repair and maintenance of the Parish Church. He also founded in 1679 the Jesus Hospital, situated in Wood Street, Barnet, for the accommodation of six poor women, which formed a kind of sisterhood, one being the Superior and called the "Governess." He also endowed this hospital, and in it his son George placed two busts representing the benefactor and his wife. The Hospital bears the following inscription:—

D. O. M.

Charitas in Egenos
Perrenne Monumentum

et Maria Uxor eius

Benedicto	Benedicator.

From the date here given it would seem that the deed of foundation and endowment was some years later than the building, but the deed of foundation is certainly correct in its date of 1679. The endowment appears to have been derived from rents of houses and lands in Shoreditch.

The will of this James Ravenscroft describes him as of High Holborn, but he had considerable property in the country, one seat being at Alconbury, Hunts.

Fould Park is still in existence known as Fold Manor, and a part of Barnet is still known as the Ravenscroft Estate, while the Barnet coat of arms is that of Ravenscroft with a slight difference.

Thomas the eldest son of the "Great Benefactor" does not appear to have taken altogether the place he should as eldest son, and there are some curious little indications that he was not altogether the type of man his father was.

He was wealthy, owning estates in Fenton and Ridley, Hunts, as well as Fould Park, and is described as of S. Giles in the Fields. Chancery proceedings indicate certain eccentricities in his character which are brought out by his appointment of his servant Martha Richardson as sole executrix, although his second wife survived him. He managed, however, to reach the age of 80 years, and was buried at the Tomb of Thomas Ravenscroft, Esq., of Fould Park;

West end of the North Cloister of Westminster Abbey, where a gravestone marks, or did mark, his resting-place, bearing on it the inscription, "What I gave I have, what I spent I had, what I left I lost by not giving it."

His son John predeceased him, leaving no issue.

To his nephew James, son of John, he left the estate of Fould Park, and to his other nephew James, son of George, those of Fenton and Ridley.

George, the second son of the Great Benefactor, appears to have been his father's right-hand man, and he is described as of Alconbury, Hunts, where, according to Parish Registers, nearly all the children of the Benefactor were baptized. In his will he describes himself as of S. Andrew's, High Holborn, and he seems to have been engaged in a somewhat large commercial way, having considerable transactions abroad.

John, the younger brother of this George, had property in Colston Basset, Notts, and elsewhere. From this man descended the Ravenscrofts of Wykeham, Spalding, Lincolnshire, and through them the numerous families shewn on the Pedigree, including the Sulyards, Jerninghams, Scott Murrays, etc.

Most, if not all, of the Lincolnshire branch and their descendants were Roman Catholics.

From this man John and through the James whose uncle left him Fould Park are descended the Syme and Phillott families, the representative of which at the present time is Colonel Phillott, in whose possession is a handsome portrait of this last-named James Ravenscroft.

Mention should here be made of Edward, the son of the Great Benefactor, who suddenly in his day became a somewhat conspicuous figure in the Play-going world. He was a member of the Middle Temple, where he beguiled "a fortnight's sickness" by trying to write a play. This appears to have pleased the public, for although he died comparatively young, his career as a playwriter extended over a quarter of a century. His rivalry with Dryden called forth a good deal of sarcasm on either side, and in the prologues to their respective plays they were not sparing in spiteful allusions.

These plays of Edward Ravenscroft seem to have suited the age, and were popular. From the present day point of view, however, they are coarse—even in parts vulgar—and with no merit to compensate for these undesirable qualifications. They are, however, very rare, and from that point of view copies are valuable.

The Dictionary of National Biography gives a fairly full account of these plays, and must be referred to for further information as to the author of them.

Concerning the Barnet line, it only remains in these notes to make mention of the family settled in Wykeham, Spalding.

John of South Luffenham, Rutland, grandson of the Great Benefactor and son of John of Colston Basset, came to Wykeham about the year 1705, and was a member of the Gentleman's Society of Spalding.

His son George also lived and died at Wykeham and was buried in Wykeham Chapel, where a marble monument to his memory records particulars of his age, family, date of death, etc. On this monument also are shewn the arms and crest of the family, and with these, for the first time apparently, a motto "Deus pascit Cornutos."

Mary, his widow, was also buried in the Wykeham Chapel, and she was a connection of Edward Walpole the poet.

Their elder daughter Mary married Charles Stewart, Lord Linton, afterwards 7th Earl of Traquair, and Susanna the younger daughter married Edward Sulyard, from whose daughter Frances Henrietta, by marriage with Lord Stafford, descend several of the families already mentioned in this connection.

An elaborate pedigree printed in the "Genealogist," vol. iv., old series, 1880, p. 226, erroneously makes the Susanna who married Edward Sulyard daughter of John Ravenscroft, whereas she was his granddaughter.

MARKET DRAYTON AND ST. CLEMENT DANE, LONDON LINE.

Arthure Ravenscroft (son of John of Hawarden), in one of the old pedigrees erroneously called Anthony—evidently through a clerical error (the names being singularly alike when written)—was of "The Bell," Friday Street, being a citizen of London "Innholder," and of the united parishes of S. John the Evangelist, Watling Street, and All Hallows, Bread Street, E.C.

All these parishes lie close together, being quite small, and doubtless this man had property in each. He died in 1583, and his will (in which his name is spelt with an "e" at the end) mentions his second wife and thirteen children.

His first wife was buried at All Hallows, Bread Street, in 1563, and in his will he leaves to his second wife "Jane to have the Chamber over the Hall in the said house (the Bell), commonly called the wyves Chamber, with free Egress, ingress and regress."

To some extent Thomas, eldest son of this Arthure, appears to have succeeded to the business premises, and is described as "Innholder." He died in 1586, leaving two sons and three daughters—the elder Thomas of Newhall, the younger James of Islington. Both these names have the old border connection, for Newhall is near to the Hawarden Parish, and James of Islington held property in Peover, Cheshire, which he leased from a Mainwaring.

The will of Thomas of Newhall dated 1613 and that of his widow Frances dated 1658 shew several connections with the family generally and even with the Bretton line.

His elder son John may have representatives to-day, but if so they have not been identified so far as can be ascertained. His younger son Thomas, however, would appear to be represented at the present time by a considerable number of the family.

This last-named Thomas in all likelihood is the one known as Thomas of Basfurd near Wrenbury, yeoman, and his will is dated 1658. He evidently predeceased his mother, dying in the same year. The Pedigree will shew the names of his children, and the proximity of Wrenbury to Market Drayton, whence sprang the Ravenscrofts of S. Clement Dane, London, together with the fact that the family for some time retained interests in both places, point to Richard, the son of this Thomas, as father of Thomas, who is known to have been of Market Drayton and who became the head of the S. Clement Dane branch. This Richard, it will be noted, was married at S. Clement Dane's Church, and his son Thomas settled in London as a wigmaker, establishing a business which has been carried on ever since by his descendants. This was in 1726, and the Ravenscrofts of S. Clement Dane are regarded as being one of the oldest extant families in the parish.

James Ravenscroft of Islington, younger grandson of Arthure, appears to have been an unfortunate man, since he got into trouble through being a Roman Catholic. Moreover, he was worried with law-suits, had troublesome children, and to crown all, being a dealer to a considerable extent in cheese, as he was passing between London and his home in Islington with a sum of money in his possession, he was waylaid and murdered in 1649.

His son James, also a Roman Catholic, was also involved in a long sequestration trial in which also his mother Anne participated.

This branch seems to have become extinct in this generation.

James Ravenscroft of Fould Park, Co: Middlesex:
father of Mrs. John Syme.

Arthure Ravenscroft's second son John took orders and became Vicar of Portsmouth, to which living he was instituted in 1589. He married a lady whose association with Bermondsey, where as his widow she died, gives another link between various members of Arthure's family, as will be seen hereafter.

The will of this John is curious, since after directions as to his burial in the chancel he says: "My chemist's shop and all things whatsoever therein to be equally divided between my sons William and Edward." To his son Peter he gives a christening sheet, blanket, and 40*s*. All the rest he leaves to his "well beloved wife Amys." The total value of the adm'on of the "shop" was £13 16*s*. 8*d*.

He appears to have in some way dealt in the cure of bodies as well as souls. This will is in the Winchester Registry dated 26 Dec. 1605. It is not unlikely there are survivors of this man's family now living.

Next in point of time comes another parson, the Rev. Martyn Ravenscroft, younger brother of the last-named John, who, educated at Oxford, became Rector of Shipton Moyne, Gloucestershire, and who founded a branch of the family there.

Whether there are still living any descendants of this man it is impossible to say, but, as will be seen from the Pedigree, there are two or three through whom such might survive.

The most conspicuous of his sons was Samuel, who had three wives and by each a family. He must have been a man of wealth, since we find his son Samuel owned the manor of Hackney.

Samuel, senior, is described as "Upholster" of London, and was buried in the north aisle of St. Peter's-upon-Cornhill.

William the Mercer, younger son of this Samuel, senior, by his third wife, who came from Portsmouth, was a man of some note and influence in his day, and lived to the good age of 84, while his widow lived to the great age of 95.

Notice of this man has already been made as being mentioned in the will of Thomas Ravenscroft of Killings. He is described as "Gentleman" and "of the Worshipful Company of Mercers," and of Barking, Essex, also as owner of the "Ship and Castle" Tavern, Cornhill.

In the Hackney Register he is mentioned as of Hackney and West Ham, "Gent.," and reference to him is made in Lysons' "Environs of London" as being buried in West Ham Church.

Dr. Pagenstecher, a local antiquary, gives the following note: "On the north wall of the nave is a monument to the memory of William Ravenscroft, Citizen and Mercer of London, who died 1718, aged 84 years. Also of Margaret his wife, who died 1741, aged 95 years. She did good all the days of her life, she opened her mouth with wisdom, and on her tongue was the law of kindness. Here also lie the bodies of two children of Mrs. Frances Ball, daughter of William and Margaret Ravenscroft, who in her dutiful regard to the memory of the best of Parents has caused this monument to be erected."

The monument appears to have had a shield, now destroyed, supported by cherubs, and at its base are profile portraits of this man and his wife.

To this beautiful testimony of the life of Margaret Ravenscroft may be added a paragraph from the "Daily Advertiser" of Friday, 6 November, 1741:—

"On Wednesday last died at her House at West Ham M^{rs} Ravenscroft Relict of William Ravenscroft Esq., of Bennets Castle in the County of Essex in the 97th Year of her Age, whose whole life was a continu'd scene of Virtue and Religion, Adorn'd with a Sweetness of Temper which made her happy in herself, and admired by all that knew her, who are now in the greatest Concern at their Loss. Her jointure falls to her son M^{r} Ravenscroft, an eminent mercer."

Of this last-named man, described as of All Saints, Lombard Street, and of his son Thomas of Allhallows and West Ham, with whom this branch becomes extinct in the male line, the following is contributed :—

"The mural monument in All Hallows, Lombard Street, E.C., to Thomas, grandson of William the Mercer, is high up on the west wall of the Church, and is of somewhat fine design, being surmounted with the Ravenscroft arms (without quarterings), and Crest : a lion statant-guardant argent, etc. The inscription on it runs as follows :—

> This monument was erected by appointment of Thomas Ravenscroft
> Esq. in pious regard to the memory of his deceased parents > whom living he ever honored obeyed and loved.
> His Father enterred at Hampstead June 2, 1749,
> and himself in the same grave Jan. 24, 1752.
> As a friend he was Ever ready sincere and constant
> As a companion free easy and cheerful
> In business of strict probity integrity & honour
> As a man of fortune of secret large and extensive charity."

From the will of this younger Thomas it would seem he wished to be buried "near his mother in All Hallows, Lombard Street," and left money for the monument there, also two guineas for the composition of a suitable inscription.

By the marriage of Frances, daughter of William the Mercer, with Joseph Ball of Bennet's Castle, West Ham, descend a family of Balls in America, still surviving.

Reverting to the younger children of Arthure Ravenscroft, it will be seen that Agnes married a Richardson, and Martha, William Myles of Elmestre, Gloucester. Both of these surnames have associations which help to link up the various Ravenscrofts of this line as well as of the Berks and Hants line. Space, however, does not permit of the pursuit of this in detail, but it may be mentioned that from the marriage with William Myles are descended the Longs of Wiltshire, of whom it is believed the present Walter Long, M.P., is the representative.

THE BERKS AND HANTS LINE.

Henry, the youngest son of Arthure Ravenscroft, may be regarded as the founder of this line and the progenitor of perhaps the greater number of people bearing the name of Ravenscroft to-day.

With regard to this statement it may be as well to mention here that although the direct association of this man with Arthure Ravenscroft is not established by such a fact as a register of baptism, yet that the evidence from other sources is so conclusive as to leave the matter beyond question.

A note such as this would apply to one or two other descents in this pedigree, as indeed in all pedigrees more or less, but throughout these pages care has been taken to mention the point wherever relationship is not definitely established by wills or registers, etc.

The Rev. Henry Ravenscroft married Alice Stutteridge of West Tilbury, Essex, whose maiden name was associated with other Ravenscroft connections, and the marriage took place at Cholsey, Berks, in 1592.

They appear to have lived at Cholsey for a short time, for in 1593 we find him writing and witnessing the will of Joan Chare, a name associated with quite a number of Ravenscroft connections, Bermondsey included, and in the same year he baptized at Cholsey his eldest son Henry. Then in 1609 he was presented to the living of Sherborne S. John, Hants, probably through the influence of or by the direct gift of William, Lord Sandys.

He had not been there long before he quarrelled with his Lordship, and instituted proceedings against him and others because he had only vicarial rights, and one Rev. James Pearce appears to have had something to do with the rectorial rights. Several people were involved in the matter, and the document states that: "Compt is an unthankful person and of a troublesome disposition: not becoming a man of his calling."

The dispute seems to have ended in a payment to the Vicar of £40 a quarter in lieu of rectorial tithes, his Lordship holding all these except such as pertained to the Vicarage house and the churchyard.

He held the living until his death in 1631, and left his widow with one son James, his elder son having probably died a child. Letters of administration were taken out at Winchester by his widow.

James Ravenscroft of Pamber, Hants, Yeoman, the son of the Rev. Henry, seems to have been connected with the place for the greater part of his life.

Pamber is close to Sherborne S. John and Monk Sherborne, and was once the Priory church of the Benedictine order in that place. Shorn of its nave, transept, and aisles, there yet remain the chancel and central tower of the church, which are very interesting as architectural examples of the Norman and Early-English periods.

Close to the sanctuary screen the first on the south side is a seat still designated as the Ravenscroft pew, and seeing that James of Pamber appears to have been the only Ravenscroft of the place, the name of the seat must be an allusion to him.

Ravens Cot Farm, Pamber, as it is called to-day, was his residence. It is now in the hands of the County Council, and considerably modernised and transformed into two cottages. But it retains an interesting room with its original ceiling and fireplace, which date from the Ravenscroft occupation. On the death of James the property passed to the Brocas family hard by, the well-known owners of Beaurepaire, Hants, and the title-deeds refer to it as having been in the occupation of James Ravenscroft. In 1657 he witnessed the will of Thomas Lane of Pamber, Flaxman and Ropemaker.

James of Pamber had interests in property at Barking and Tilbury, Essex, and from lawsuits, wills, etc., he was clearly associated with such families as the Lanes, Harrisons, Fitches, Clarkes, Stutteridges, all bringing together the connections of the Ravenscrofts of this branch and their antecedents. He married Elizabeth (probably a Lane), who predeceased him, and was buried at Pamber Feb. 23, 1676-7. He himself was also buried at Pamber, as the following extract from the register will shew:—

"James Ravenscroft was buried Aprill 21 according to ye late Act of Parliament for burying in Wollen as was attested by ye oath of Mary Wiltshire in ye Affidavit Sent to me April 28, 1679, by Mr George Brown one of his Majesties Justice of peace." 1679.

The reference to this Act of Parliament is of course to the enactment for burial in woollen in order to promote the trade therein, burial in linen being permissible only by a somewhat heavy fee.

Four children are assigned to James of Pamber, but as regards two of them, Edward and Agnes, the evidence is somewhat slight.

The case of Edward is that he was of Stoke Poges, a place associated with Dame Judith Doe, who was a connection of the Pamber family, and apparently he was the first Ravenscroft of that place; that his wife Alice refers to names associated with this part of the family, and that their daughter married an Emerton, the name of one of the executors of the Great Benefactor.

The claim for Agnes is that the Sherfield Parish Registers give a marriage between Agnes Ravenscroft and Thomas Boothe in 1688, Sherfield being only a few miles from Pamber and the Boothes having other Ravenscroft connections, and that one Avis Ravenscroft (probably Agnes) of Pamber was witness to a burial in 1679, only three weeks before that of James Ravenscroft.

The remaining children of James of Pamber, John and Robert, appear to have removed to Reading, a distance of about seventeen miles.

John, on Sept. 1, 1655, married Magdalen Dell of Purley, three miles west of Reading. On March 1, 1662, he married Judith Doe, who was buried in 1686, and in the next year he married Ann Gray. Of these alliances only one son James, who was baptized July 30, 1671, remained to carry on his line. The marriage with Judith Doe, the mother of this James, gives another connection with the families and places associated with this line of the Ravenscrofts, Dame Judith Doe (probably mother or aunt of this Judith) being buried in her family vault at All Hallows, Bread Street, E.C., and a William Doe, grocer, being also of Bread Street. Sir Charles Doe, husband of Dame Judith, also was the defendant in an action brought by James Ravenscroft of Islington, who was second cousin to John of Reading.

The Ravenscrofts of Hedgerley, Bucks, not far from Stoke Poges, have some good reason for claiming descent from this last-named James, the son of John and Judith, and it is difficult, if not impossible, to find any other connection for them. At the same time the proof is not sufficient to justify the descent shewn on the Pedigree without this note of qualification.

From the Ravenscrofts of Hedgerley are descended the families of Yeats and Browne, the representative of which latter is the Rev. Philip E. Browne, who contributes this portion of the pedigree.

Robert Ravenscroft, a younger brother of John Ravenscroft, son of James of Pamber, is described as a yeoman of the parish of S. Laurence, Reading. He married in 1665, under a peculiar arrangement, Alice, daughter of John Howse of Reading, yeoman, he probably being one of the Howses of Whitley, a suburb of Reading. Arms: Argent, three piles, one issuing from chief and two from the base, sable.

There were several branches of the Howse family about Reading and other associations with the Ravenscrofts, but the peculiar thing about this marriage was that it was at Purley (whence John Ravenscroft brought his first wife) by licence, which gives no information as to place of marriage or ages of the contracting parties, but states they may be married without the consent of parents or governors. This licence mentions a Christopher Freeman of Reading, yeoman.

The Freemans were associated with the Myles, Chares and other families already mentioned in these pages, and the father of this Christopher is described as a "Sherman," which meant that either he was associated with the small Company of that name or else that he was a cloth worker, an industry which flourished in Reading in his day and had a notable Cloth Hall.

In closing these Notes it is with some regret that the authors have to confess their inability to link up a branch of the family which contains names of merit, and which, except as regards their connection with the race of Ravenscrofts, generally seems so very complete.

This branch may be called the Irish line, and commences with one Richard of Drumnabreeze Magharalin, co. Down, and of Lower Ballinderry, co. Antrim, Esq., who was born in 1731. Their pedigree is communicated by Capt. L. B. Ravenscroft.

"MISTLETOE."

Chapman of Whitwick, Ashby-de-la-Zouch, etc.

(Vol. III., 4th Series, pp. 54—63.)

Mr. Charles J. C. Mee has recently made investigations which have led to discoveries throwing light on the history of the Chapman family before the date of the commencement of the above-mentioned pedigree, and a re-examination of the Whitwick and Sibson registers and transcripts, by Mr. Hartopp, has afforded the additions and corrections noted below.

J. PAUL RYLANDS.

John, son of Hugh, son of Ralph Chapman of Derby, granted to Robert le Marechale of Derby a messuage in St. Mary's Street, Derby, 8 Dec., 38 Edw. III., 1364. (Jeayes' "Derbyshire Charters.")

John Chapman and others, chamberlains of the borough of Derby, lease to Thomas Blackesea, burgess of Derby, a pasture in St. Peter's parish, 28 Feb., 17 Hen. VIII., 1525-6. (Derby Muniments.)

This John Chapman was of the parish of All Saints, Derby, and died in 1543. His will was proved at Lichfield, 26 Oct. 1543, by Cecilia, his widow, and Edward Lenton, the executors, but the will is missing.

William Chapman and Ann Walker were married, 16 June 1583, at All Saints' Church, Derby, and were probably the parents of :—

1. John Chapman, born about 1590 ; died at Whitwick 1657, of whom presently.
2. Ann, married 30 May 1619, at All Saints', Derby, to William Woodhouse, by whom she had a son, William Woodhouse, named in her brother John's will, 1652.
3. Anna, married 13 July 1623, at All Saints', Derby, to Edward Allsopp, by whom she had a daughter, Margery Allsopp, named in John Chapman's will, 1652.
4. Marie (called Martha in her brother John's will), married 13 June 1625, at All Saints', Derby, to Christopher Cosbie, by whom she had a son, William Cosby, named in John Chapman's will, 1652.
5. Ellen, married 22 Feb. 1627-8, at St. John the Baptist's, Whitwick, to Andrew Broughton, by whom she had Mary and Gowen Broughton, named in John Chapman's will, 1652.

John Chapman (born about 1590, named above) died 1657. In his will, dated 8 June 1652 and proved in London 12 Dec. 1657, he desires his body to be buried in the church at Whitwick, but the burial is not recorded in the parish register. He married a wife named Agnes, and had issue :—

1. George Chapman, born about 1618 ; buried at Whitwick 22 July 1663. Married 25 March 1652, at Whitwick, Elizabeth Walker, who was buried there 27 Nov. 1657. He had issue :—
   (1) Elizabeth, born at Whitwick 7 Dec. 1653 ; married there, 18 Jan. 1675, to Edward Wright.
   (2) Isabel, married 29 July 1674, at St. Nicholas Church, Leicester, to John How of Whitwick.
   (3) Anne, born at Whitwick 20 Oct. 1657.
2. Ann, bapt. at St. Alkmund's, Derby, 19 April 1620 ; unmarried in 1652.
3. John Chapman, bapt. at St. Alkmund's, Derby, 19 Feb. 1621-2, of whom presently.
4. William Chapman, bapt. at Whitwick 9 Sept. 1625, who prior to 1655 married a wife named Ursula, by whom he had a daughter Lydia, born at Whitwick 19 Dec. 1655. He appears to have removed to Loughborough.
5. Agnes, bapt. at Whitwick 14 Nov. 1630 ; married to William Cresswell.

John Chapman (bapt. 1622, named above), of Whitwick, who begins the printed pedigree ; buried at Whitwick 15 Nov. 1684. Married first a wife named Sarah, buried at Whitwick 17 July 1658, by whom he had issue :—

1. John Chapman of Whitwick, died 1715, whose wife Sarah (Bennett) was buried at Whitwick 27 March 1735.
2. Thomas Chapman, died 1728.
3. George Chapman of Thringston, died 1729. (See Burton's "History of Leicestershire," edition of 1777.)
4. Sarah, born at Whitwick 24 Feb. 1655-6 ; married to William Franks.

John Chapman married secondly a wife named Katherine, who died 1682, by whom he had issue :—

5. William Chapman of Whitwick, born 1660 ; died 1734.
6. Anne, married to .... Fox.
7. Katherine.
8. Mary.

(Vol. III., 4th Series.)

P. 56. George Chapman of Thringston, 1718—1754, was only son and heir. His daughter Mary was bapt. at Whitwick 20 Dec. 1747, and buried there 3 Oct. 1754 or 1 Nov. 1755.

P. 56. Add to issue of John and Sarah, line C :—

Sarah, bapt. at Whitwick 1 June 1687.
Elizabeth, buried at Whitwick 6 Oct. 1702.
Mary, bapt. at Whitwick 21 July 1688 ; buried there 19 Jan. 1689-90.
Mary, bapt. at Whitwick 14 Feb. 1702-3 ; buried there 18 Nov. 1716.

P. 56. Elizabeth (Moore), wife of Thomas Chapman, was married at Whitwick 22 Dec. 1719, and buried there 9 Nov. 1774.

P. 57. Anne Chapman of Upton, probably a daughter of Thomas and Elizabeth, line D, was married at Sibson, 6 April 1760, to William Spenser of Atherstone.

P. 57. George Chapman of Upton, buried at Sibson 24 June 1802 ; his wife Hannah buried there 6 Jan. 1819. His son Thomas married at Sibson, 17 Jan. 1803, Elizabeth Collier.

P. 57. William Chapman of Atherstone was buried at Mancetter 4 June 1817. His wife Mary Eliza, daughter of John Hood, was buried at Mancetter 8 Oct. 1783.

P. 57. Under Elizabeth, bapt. 1735, dele "died 4 Nov. and buried at Ashby 7 Nov. 1799 unmarried," and add " ? buried at Whitwick 2 Feb. 1743-4."

P. 58. John Hood Chapman was bapt. at Mancetter 1 May 1760. His sister Elizabeth was bapt. there 30 April 1755, and married there 22 Feb. 1776. His sister Mary was bapt. at Mancetter 17 May 1758. His daughter Mary was born 1803 and married at Mancetter 20 April 1833. His sister Jane was married there 20 April 1833. His sister Eleanora was bapt. there 29 Nov. 1801, and buried there 4 Sept. 1889, aged 88. His sister Matilda was bapt. there 5 Oct. 1805, and buried there 3 Feb. 1881, aged 75. His sister Susanna, born 26 July, bapt. at Mancetter 1 Aug. 1808; buried there 24 Nov. 1893, aged 86. His sister Emily, bapt. there 20 Dec. 1809, was buried there 26 Nov. 1829, aged 19. His sister Sarah, bapt. there 14 Aug. 1795. His brother the Rev. John Mitchel Chapman, bapt. there 20 Nov. 1799.

P. 61. Mary, buried at Sibson 23 April 1832, aged 64.

P. 61. Thomas Chapman of Drayton, for "19 January 1770" read "17 Jan. 1770."

P. 61. William Chapman, bapt. at Sibson 8 Aug. 1771 ; buried there 17 Feb. 1854, aged 83.

P. 62. Anne (Nancy), dele "baptized at Sibson 6 Nov. 1782." Her sister Jane, dele "born 1784," and add "aged 65" to burial, and "bapt. at Sibson 6 Nov. 1782."

P. 63. Mrs. Elizabeth Hand died 24 March 1913.

Monumental Inscriptions in Hatton Church, Warwickshire.

Correspondence.

To the Editors, "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica."

COTEREL, COTTERELL, COTTRELL, COTTRILL, AND OTHER VARIANTS.

Sirs,

For some years I have been gathering materials for a volume of "Collections for a History of the Cotterell Family," and should be much obliged to any of your readers who would direct my attention to references to the name either as isolated references or otherwise.

Extracts from Parish Registers, Wills, Calendars of Wills, etc., are all of interest, as also references to pedigrees, printed or in MS., fly-leaf inscriptions, copies of Bookplates, etc.

The scope of these "Collections" will be confined to no particular county or country, so that all references are of interest.

The many sources of information which I have already exhausted would form too lengthy a list for insertion here in extenso, but I might name the following :—

The Harleian Society's Vols., both series; the Staffordshire Parish Register Society's Vols.; the William Salt Archæological Society's Vols.; the Derbyshire Archæological Society's Vols.; the Bristol and Gloucestershire Archæological Society's Vols.; Marshall's "Genealogist's Guide," references therein; Berry's Pedigrees; Rugby School Registers; Foster's "Alumni Oxoniensis;" Foster's "Our Noble and Gentle Families;" Burke's "Landed Gentry;" Lea's "History of Thame Church;" Collinson's "History of Somerset;" Atkyn's "History of Gloucestershire;" Graves' "History of St. Canice;" the various Indexes to Visitations and Disclaimers, etc.

Thanking you, Sirs, for affording me this opportunity of laying my object before your readers,

Yours very truly,

HOWARD H. COTTERELL.

Notes and Queries.

September 13th, 1915.

5th Series, I., 205. Achievement of Binning. Although the charge is given always as a waggon, yet here it is a cart as it has only two wheels, whilst a waggon has four. This may be an error of the draughtsman.

5th Series, I., 239. There is an error which wants correcting in the account of the South blazon of the Wiltshire branch. The blazon in the last paragraph but one runs thus: Sable, on a fess humettés between three billets argent a chaplet or, flowered gules. This humettée argent would make the chaplet not metal but tincture. The real blazon is: Sable, on a fess voided between three billets argent a chaplet or, flowered gules, when the chaplet would be on the sable field.

Reviews.

The Monumental Inscriptions in the Churches and Churchyards of the Island of Barbados, British West Indies. By VERE LANGFORD OLIVER, M.R.C.S., etc. Price £1. London: Mitchell Hughes & Clarke.

WE have here a very valuable book to all those interested in the history of families who have been connected with Barbados. The volume is divided up under the headings of the various churches, and contains 1,472 inscriptions, together with the coats-of-arms depicted on the monuments. Of these inscriptions 621 are in St. Michael's Cathedral, Bridgetown. Annotations have been added in a number of cases, supplying additional information to that contained in the inscription. There is a complete Index of names, in which there are references to over 1,400 families, and containing many well-known names.

The Author points out that Barbados, first settled about Feb. 1626-7, is the only island in the Caribbean Sea which has remained uninterruptedly in English possession.

Mr. Oliver is to be congratulated on the completion of a very useful record, for which genealogists will be much indebted to him.

Fleetwood Family Records. Part IV. By R. W. BUSS.

THIS part deals with the Fleetwood Ancestry of Lady French from William Fleetwood of Heskin, co. Lancaster, in the sixteenth century. Pedigree 11 deals with a Viking descent from Gilbert Fitz-Richard in 1115; Pedigree 12 relates to George Fleetwood, General and Baron of Sweden, and his descent from the Luke Family from his mother Anne Luke. In the notes to the last pedigree is an interesting letter from Sir George Fleetwood to his father Sir Miles Fleetwood, dealing with the Thirty Years' War.
